JIM ROOSEVELT GIVES 6-POINT JOBS PLAN

Before 200 business leaders, public officials and newspaper publishers whom he had called together, James Roosevelt, son of the President, this afternoon presented a six-point program to absorb 35,000 discharged Massachusetts WPA workers.

The program presented by young Roosevelt to the gathering, in the Hawthorne Room of the Parker House is as follows:

Free advertising for the discharged WPA workers in the positions-wanted columns of newspapers.

Establishment by the Chamber of Commerce of a statewide clearing house for information on jobs-wanted and workers-wanted.

Co-operation of federal agencies and the Massachusetts state employment service.

Posting of helpful notices in postoffices.

Co-operation of business men and indtstrialists with the clearing house arrangement.

Radio aid to be sponsored by the broadcasting companies.

Opening the conference, Roosevelt said:

TEACHER TELLS STORY IN TOWN HALL TONIGHT

In a setting more dramatic than any play she ever coached, pretty Isabelle L. Hallin, youthful and blonde Saugus high school English teacher and dramatic coach, today returned to her home town "for a public hearing before the world."

Looking rested after her collapse of last Saturday, the young teacher will tell her story tonight at a meeting which is expected to draw many of the 15,000 citizens of her town to the town hall where her fellow citizens have given her a public hearing.

As she returned today, "fit as a fiddle," she stated that she did not know the meaning of the word "quit."

Dropped by the School Committee after Superintendent of Schools Vernon W. Evans had recommended her reappointment and Principal John A. W. Pearce had reported her record "better than the average teacher," she was denied a public hearing by a 3 to 2 vote of the committee after it was

FOES LASH ROOSEVELT FOR COURT ATTACK

Washington, July 16 (AP)—A presidential injunction that it is "the duty of Congress" to pass judiciary legislation at this session drew angry, defiant replies today from foes of the court bill.

The armistice called after the death of Senator Robinson was shattered even before his state funeral at noon.

"We will select our own leader and dispose of the court bill in our own way without dictation from any source whatsoever," said Senator Van Nuys (D.) Indiana.

Senator Burke (D.) Nebraska, commented: "If the President is determined to have the matter brought back to life, he will find the opposition ready to welcome the contest."

Opposition senators struck back vigorously at the President's statement that he was expressing his views before Robinson's funeral because: "I find that advantage is being taken of what, in all decency, should be a period of mourning."

The tone of his statement and the replies of the foes gave a hint of the bitterness with which the Senate debate will be resumed next Tuesday.

Senator Burke declared the opposition's effort to avoid the controversy during the period of mourning had "not been followed by the other side."

$1000 LENOX PAYROLL ROBBERY

After slugging a girl cashier over the head with the butt of a revolver, three men robbed her of more than $1000 in payroll cash at the Hotel Lenox today and then fled.

The victim, Miss Mary Collins, of Heneshaw terrace, West Newton, employed as bookkeeper and cashier at the hotel, had just gone into the basement of the hotel to pay off employes.

As the girl was entering the steward's office, she was confronted by the three men who pointed revolvers at her.

SLUGGED, COLLAPSES

Miss Collins started to scream and one of the men struck her on the head and she collapsed. They then grabbed the two money bags which she was carrying.

Her screams aroused employes in the hotel kitchen, and when they arrived Miss Collins was found lying on the floor.

She was taken to one of the upper-floor rooms of the hotel, and a physician was called.

EXACT AMOUNT UNKNOWN

Hotel officials said they were unable to immediately determine the exact amount which Miss Collins had in her possession.

No immediate description of the bandits was available, as police believe the men entered the hotel through a rear entrance and hid in the basement.

Pilot Grimm, Ill, Leaves for Home

Charley Grimm, manager of the Chicago Cubs, left Boston today in a wheel chair for his home in St. Louis to undergo treatment for a sciatica condition which forced him to bed yesterday morning.

Grimm was taken to the train in a wheel chair. In St. Louis he will be met by Dr. Robert Hyland, club physician for the Cardinals and Browns.

Grimm insisted upon making the trip alone.

MAYOR UPSETS CODMAN QUIZ

Mayor Mansfield is shown here in the City Council chamber glancing over his own statement about the city's dealings with the Codman Hill Construction Co. while the finance commission members were in an anteroom voting not to let him have his say until a later date. Taking everybody by surprise, the mayor had stepped into the hearing and demanded a chance to tell his story today.

MANSFIELD 'CRASHES' CODMAN HEARING

Striding into the Finance Commission's public hearing on the Codman Hill Construction Co. today, Mayor Mansfield demanded a chance to testify, to defend himself and others, but after long argument the commission refused to hear him until a later date.

The mayor's sudden appearance came like a bombshell. For more than an hour thereafter the atmosphere in the city council chamber, scene of the hearing, was electric with excitement and sharp words.

The mayor argued the hearing was one-sided and that adverse public opinion was being formed without the defense getting a chance to counteract it.

In reply, Joseph A. Scolponeti, of the commission, charged the mayor with attempting to anticipate disclosures by getting them in, in his own way.

Agreeing to come in later for cross-examination, the mayor persisted in demanding a chance to read a prepared statement.

"I want to make my statement now, I would like to say, for ex-

Navy Prepares to Drop Hunt for Amelia

By International News Service

With hope rapidly diminishing for rescue of Amelia Earhart and Capt. Fred Noonan, the Navy today prepared to abandon search for the renowned fliers, whose plane dropped into the South Pacific two weeks ago.

Officials at Washington said the aircraft carrier Lexington, which raced westward to lead the search, probably would be withdrawn tomorrow.

The usual unverified reports persisted, meanwhile, that the missing fliers had been rescued or located.

From Auckland, New Zealand, came a report—apparently baseless and received with skepticism—that one of the Lexington's planes had sighted the 'round-the-world plane. International News Service's staff correspondent aboard the Lexington reported no progress in the search.

POLICE QUIZ WOMEN IN ASSASSIN HUNT

Providence, July 16—Dr. George W. Webster, 39-year-old society obstetrician, was shot to death at the front door of his home in exclusive Emeline street today by a mysterious assailant who used .45 caliber metal-piercing bullets.

He had reached home only a few minutes before the murderous attack, approximately at 1 o'clock. He had had time enough to take of his hat and jacket before something summoned him to the door—a ring of the bell, police believe.

As he swung open the inner front door, three shots flashed from the semi-dark of an outer vestibule. Two of the bullets hit the doctor—one ripping through his stomach—and he fell, mortally wounded.

But with the same horoism that he showed until he died an hour later, Dr. Webster crawled painfully up a 25-foot flight of sairs to a telephone to call police first, then the Homeopathic Hospital of which he was chief obstetrician.

Conflicting statements were accredited to him before he passed away on the operating table at the hospital.

To Patrolman Charles H. McNamara, who had raced to the house in a cruising car after police radios flashed emergency orders, Dr. Webster was quoted as having said:

"You won't need any clues to clear this up. I'll tell you all about it if I recover."

A second interpretation of the words he gasped to McNamara was:

"Don't look for clues now. Get me to a hospital. I'll tell you about the shooting later."

The doctor's most intimate friend, Dr. Carl A. Lindblad, superintendent of the Homeopathic Hospital, said:

"Dr. Webster told Miss Louise Cranston, assistant night superintendent, and Dr. Donald Denys, that he couldn't understand who had shot him—that he never injured anyone."

KNEW OF NO ENEMY

Dr. Ralph Purvine, the ambulance surgeon, told police that the doctor had said, on the way to the hospital, that "someone had tried to rob him."

Another close friend, Dr. Robert H. Marsh, who aided in giving Dr. Webster a hypodermic injection just before he died, quoted the victim as having said:

"I didn't know I had an enemy in the world."

All of which left police baffled in trying to reconcile themselves to a definite theory. Detective-Captain Thomas F. Ratigan was asked bluntly how he pieced these reputed statements together and he replied:

"We don't know. That's the answer—we don't know."

QUESTION 3 WOMEN

Detectives pinned their hopes of piercing the veil of mystery on three women—one the stricken wife who lost a race with death to the doctor's bedside; a second, the attractive 33-year-old blond secretary of Dr. Webster; a third, a 22-year-old girl who has rooms in the secretary's home.

Mrs. Webster, who was at the Webster summer home in Watch Hill with her seven-year-old daughter at the time of the shooting, collapsed after racing to the Homeopathic hospital, only to find her husband had died.

Before she was taken to Dr. Lindblad's home, however, she insisted to police she knew of no enemy who might have slain her husband, nor did she know any reason why he might have been attacked.

FRIEND BLAMES BURGLAR

Dr. Lindblad would allow no one to talk further with her until she had recovered fully from the shock.

"I am inclined to believe that Dr. Webster was killed by a burglar," Dr. Lindblad said. "Certainly he had no personal enemies. I would have known of any such thing. We were close friends.

"The street where the doctor lived is a beautiful field for burglars. He was alone and most of his neighbors were away for the summer. It was also late when he got home. I think he got into the house to find a burglar there and the man killed him."

Dr. Lindblad said that the Websters led an "ideal domestic existence."

"He was most happily married. He was extremely successful in his profession, especially for such a young man. There was no personal angle in this, in my opinion. There might have been someone 'lying in wait for him,' but I doubt it."

GIRL IS CALLED IN

The secretary, Miss Dorothea Gilligan, in charge of the doctor's offices in Broad street, was closeted with police from just before noon until late in the day.

She was at police headquarters only an hour or so before Miss Elizabeth Priffce, 22-year-old lodger in the Gilligan home in Woodman street, was also asked to report.

At the same time, detectives are scrutinizing all the professional and personal correspondence which they had seized in the doctor's home. They were also checking all business books and records.

The women, police explained, were aiding in going over these letters and books and in giving detectives details of Dr. Webster's activities in recent weeks.

"We're trying every way to get some one to shed some light on who might have done the shooting," one of the detectives said. "We hope that Miss Gilligan or Miss Prince may be able to help us."

SCOUT ROBBERY THEORY

Deputy Superintendent James Cusick, who had talked with Miss Gilligan most of the time, said later, however:

"We haven't learned anything that we didn't kno wearly this morning."

Police were incline dto disregard the possible robbery theory, because when Dr. Webster was found at his home, he had a wallet in his pocket with $300 in it.

Two of the three bullets fired out of the ambush had hit the victim, but it was a brass-jacketed slug which ripped through his stomach that killed him. The second slug lodged in the doctor's left shoulder.

The third had cut through the hallway floor, richocheted against a wall and dropped down into the cellar, where police found it.

Three shells were found in the vestibule, convincing police that an automatic pistol was the death weapon.

Prior to Miss Gilligan's questioning, police had talked for hours with two acquaintances of Dr. Wenster who were the last to see him alive, as far as is known, before he faced his slayer.

They told detectives that the doctor had stopped at a drugstore near his home and had remained talking to them there from about 11 p. m. until 12:30 this morning.

He had been visiting another doctor in Jamestown during the early part of the evening, they said.

Neither friend recalled Dr. Webster having indicated in any way that he was worried about anything or that he expected trouble. They said he was in excellent spirits. Both men went to their homes after aiding police in checking the doctor's activities prior to the tragedy.

LAY KILLING TO MAN

Police were asked if they were definitely committed to the theory that a man was the killer. They said that they were, because Dr. Webster said it was a man who shot him. They also pointed out that the heavy pistol used would have been hard for a woman to handle.

In the kitchen of the house, which is in Emeline street, on the exclusive East Side, an unopened bottle of beer and a clean glass stood on a table. Both were microscopically examined for fingerprints, but detectives said "they showed nothing."

There was a broken pane of glass in the outer kitchen door, but it was in such a place that no one could have used it to force open the lock, detectives said, and besides, it was an old break.

Dr. Webster, police said, had apparently returned home about 1 a. m. From the telephone calls to police and the hospital, of which he was chief obstetrician, it was evident that the shooting had taken place about 15 minutes later. He died at 2:25 a. m.

None of the neighbors—all of whom were questioned—was able to tell anything about the mysterious assailant. They had seen no one near the Webster house, they said, nor had they heard the three shots.

According to the police reconstruction, Dr. Webster had put his automobile in the garage before entering the house. The radiator of the car was still warm when detectives arrived.

That the doctor had been inside his house and had answered the front door bell just before he met death was quite evident from a number of things, detectives said.

COAT INSIDE OUT

His hat was inside the house. His keys were in a trouser pocket. His coat had been pulled off, hurriedly, so that both sleeves were inside out, when he was found.

In answer to one theory that the assailant had lain in wait in the outer vestibule and had fired when the doctor started to enter his home, detectives pointed out that a mortally wounded man would not have had time to take out his keys, open the door, replace them, then drag himself to a phone as Dr. Webster had done.

They also pointed to the finding of his hat inside the house. It would have fallen where he fell after he was shot, he had not been inside, they said.

While doctors and nurses at the hospital declined to say whether he had made any statement relative to the identity of his assailant, Deputy Superintendent of Police James J. Cusick, who was at Dr. Webster's side in the operating room in case the latter wished to reveal the identity of his slayer, later told reporters:

"He gave me no information that would aid in clearing up this mystery."

"TOO LATE TO TELL"

Detective Raymond E. Fenner was the first detective to reach the doctor's home before the wounded physician was rushed to the hospital. He found Dr. Webster sitting on his divan and his coat was turned inside out and lying on the floor.

"I've called for an ambulance," Dr. Webster told Detective Fenner.

"Who shot you?" pressed Fenner.

As if he hadn't heard the question, Dr. Webster pulled open his shirt and pointing downward, diagnosed his own wounds.

"That bullet went through my liver," he said, and then pointed to his second wound.

"The ambulance will be here in a few minutes, will you tell me who shot you?" Fenner repeated anxiously.

"I guess it's too late," Dr. Webster replied weakly, apparently realizing that his wounds had taken effect sooner than he had at first realized when Patrolman McNamara found him.

ample, that William J. Driscoll, president of the Codman Hill Construction Co., was at one time a client of mine."

This angered Scolponetti, who shouted:

"We don't owe the mayor the right to anticipate evidence which he knows we've got, but which he wants to put in himself."

"That's a cheap remark," retorted Mayor Mansfield, glaring at Commissioner Scolponetti.

The mayor agreed to a delay until two absent members of the Finance Commission arrived.

But when they arrived, the Finance Commission voted not to hear the mayor's statement at this time.

3 TO 1 AGAINST HIM

Although it was not announced, the commission apparently voted three to one against the mayor—Chairman David Lasker in favor of hearing the mayor, and Commissioners Robert Robinson, James E. Maguire and Scolponetti against it.

Attorney George R. Farnum, special Finance Commission counsel, admitted the mayor's appearance now would disrupt his plans, but he insisted he was being fair.

The mayor's appearance at the hearing was perfectly timed. He strode in through the double doors just as Farnum called Building Inspector Thomas Flynn to take the witness chair.

Before Flynn could leave his seat, the mayor was at the commissioner's table, while spectators in the gallery were audibly displaying their astonishment.

Addressing Chairman David Lasker of the Finance Commission, the mayor said:

"Mr. Chairman, I've come here now, voluntarily."

ONLY TWO PRESENT

Only Lasker and Scolponetti were present.

"Just a moment, please, Mr. Mayor," begged Lasker.

The chairman leaned over and whispered with Scolponetti and they invited the mayor to join them.

He did, but almost immediately he withdrew from this whispered parley and said in a loud voice:

"I'd rather have what I say, said openly."

"Now, please, just a minute, Mr. Mayor," said Lasker again.

The chairman called Farnum and Robert Cunniff, finance commission investigator, to the table and the mayor sat down in the witness chair, from which he was to be budged only with great difficulty and lots of argument.

The finance commission is investigating $400,000 worth of business given the Codman Hill concern, during the present administration, by city departments and the George Robert White Fund.

CUTS IN ON FARNUM

When the conference at the head table ended, Attorney Farnum opened his mouth to make a speech but the mayor anticipated him and cut in, saying:

"Now, just a moment. I am mayor of this city. I suppose the purpose of your conference is to decide whether you will hear me at this time.

"I am appearing here today voluntarily and without counsel to give such information as I have and make this statement, and then at the end of my statement, I shall answer any questions you desire to ask, if it is within my power to answer them.

"I noticed that your examination has gone on at times with only two members present and even sometimes with only one. I believe the mayor of Boston should testify in the presence of the whole commission and I am willing to wait until the others arrive.

"I am, of course, quite busy and I ask the commission to allow me to make a statement right now. Then Mr. Farnum and the members of the commission can study my statement and can cross-examine me now or at such time as they desire.

"I do, however, urge the commission to allow me to go on now."

WAITS FOR REPLY

He sat down, and Chairman Lasker, after a moment's thought, replied:

"Mr. Mayor, realizing the importance of any statement you may make, I feel that before you make it, it should be made before the entire commission. One member is missing today. Two others will soon be present and I feel that these two others should be present.

"If you desire, you can remain here in the council chamber, or I shall have you notified, as soon as the others arrive."

As soon as Chairman Lasker finished, Commissioner Scolponetti leaned across the table and said to the mayor:

"I presume that as a member of the bar, you must understand that Mr. Farnum has his own way of conducting this case."

"I am quite sure Mr. Farnum will permit me to appear now," said the mayor.

"You will be invited in time," said Scolponetti.

"I never have been invited and all that has gone in, thus far, has been for the other side," argued the mayor.

Farnum replied it was not a suitable time.

"It is not a completely fair time to yourself," he said. "Much evidence is yet to be presented. I would like to give the mayor assurance that when the case is all in he can make a statement on the complete record with all the facts before him.

"And I suggest that he defer his appearance until then. He will disorganize my plans now. We will give him all the time he desires."

The exchange with Scolponetti followed and the mayor, on Lasker's plea, consented to wait at the side of the chamber until the absent members arrived.

After a few minutes the mayor left the hearing and returned to his office but as soon as the two absent commissioners, Robert Robinson and James E. Maguire, arrived, somebody slipped out of the room and notified him.

He was back there almost as soon as they were.

Interrupting the witness, Inspector Flynn, the mayor said:

"I understand the other two members are here, and I am prepared to go on and make my statement."

CALLS CONFERENCE

But Chairman Lasker called for a conference of the commission members in an ante-room.

As they filed out, the mayor said in a loud tone:

"I want to say what I have to say in the open. I can see no special reason why you're holding a conference."

Scolponetti, turning on his heel, shouted back:

"Well, you leave that to the commission, Mr. Mayor."

For 15 minutes, while the commissioners were out, the chamber was in confusion, with everybody, including the spectators in the crowded gallery, eagerly discussing the situation.

A few bets were placed, according to reports, but the odds were against the mayor. The commissioners, other than Lasker, were known to be hostile to him.

INFORMED BY LASKER

When the members came back, Lasker said:

"Mr. Mayor, the commission met and after discussing the matter pro and con, and although I attempted to apply the same fervor to them that you did to Mr. Scolponeti and myself, before they arrived, nevertheless they voted that at this time you will not be permitted to make a statement.

"You will be given such opportunity, however, before these hearings close."

Mayor Mansfield replied:

"There is no sound reason why I can't go on today, except insofar as I might dislocate Mr. Farnum's plans for this case.

"But the continuity of this case was interrupted frequently during the testimony of City Auditor Fox and Major Hall, superintendent of public buildings.

POINTS TO INSTANCES

"In six instances they left the witness chair and other witnesses were brought in.

"The Finance Commission could cross-examine me at a later date but I should be allowed to make my statement today.

"Public opinion is being formed daily as a result of these hearings. The public reads the testimony and the remarks made here.

"The public is getting a one-sided idea of this case, and it is not fair or proper.

"You should allow this case to go on with some degree of evenness. Cross-examination of witnesses is deferred in every instance. I desire to protect myself, the city and the trustees of the White Fund."

Attorney Farnum protested that the continuity of the testimony had not previously been broken.

"Other witnesses were brought in, while the city auditor and building superintendent were on the stand, to promote the continuity and make the testimony more intelligible.

CITES DOLAN CASE

"I have handled this case in the same manner and spirit as I handled the Edmund L. Dolan case for the City of Boston."

Mayor Mansfield replied to this, saying:

"This was a hearing in which the commission desired to get at the facts. What harm can be done by letting me proceed now.

"At every hearing I ever heard of, where a high public official was concerned, he was allowed to come in at his own time. Even if everything I said should cut the feet out from under the investigator, I should be allowed to go on now."

QUIZZED ON VOTE

Chairman Lasker said there was nothing he could do and reminded the mayor the commission had voted against hearing the statement.

"Is it unanimous?" asked the mayor.

"You shouldn't ask me that," said Lasker.

"Well, that means it isn't unanimous," said the mayor.

"I can assure you that my vote was against you testifying," said Scolponeti.

"I know where your vote always is," retorted Mansfield. "Well, I shall retire and come at Mr. Farnum's time."

"At your own time, Mr. Mayor," said Farnum.

Banging his fist on the table, Mayor Mansfield roared:

"My time is now. I still protest against this action."

LEAVES WITH LAUGH

He started out, but turned to make a remark which brought a laugh from everybody, including himself:

"I've given instructions to Major Hall to put two electric fans in here to cool you off."

Building Inspector Thomas Flynn was questioned by Farnum about his inspections of materials, and checking of labor hours, on Codman Hill jobs.

Farnum produced some of Flynn's notebooks and tried to get the witness to admit the entries were not made on the jobs but were all made at one time.

He asked the witness if the books were not too clean, and if the notations did not appear to have been made all with the same pencil, but Flynn insisted the notes were genuine.

Rail Deadlock Taken Up by Board

AUTO RIPS ROOF, ESCAPES DIVE INTO BROOK

No daredevil race driver ever pulled out of a situation more fraught with danger than that confronted by William E. Erwin of Mt. Vernon street, Arlington, when he narrowly escaped crashing into Alewife Brook early today.

Erwin's car ripped 30 feet of the wooden guard rail along the traffic circle on the Cambridge turnpike near the brook.

Forced into the curbing by a speeding car going toward Watertown, Erwin's machine jumped the curb, charged into the guard rail, and then ploughed on 60 or 75 feet, tottering precipitously on the embankment above Alewife Brook.

Curious crowds lined the traffic circle during the morning, slowing up commuters' traffic. Many reports were turned in to police that a car had gone into the brook.

After righting his car and bringing it back to safety, Erwin reported the accident to Metropolitan police of the Middlesex Fells division. He said he sustained no injuries, but the car was badly damaged.

Boston Swelters in New Heat Wave

The mercury began to soar again into the higher brackets late today when temperatures climbed toward the 90-degree mark.

At 2 p. m. the thermoter stood at 86.

Threat of a return engagement for the heat wave which last week took heavy toll of lives in New England was seen today, as the front of the tropical marine air mass which brings the heat advanced over this region.

Following rains and scattered thunder showers, the tropic air pressed up toward Boston overnight.

As the mercury advanced, with punishing effect, office forces at the City Hall were reduced to skeleton crews, while the majority of workers went home.

The South, Central and Southeastern sections of the United States remained in the grasp of blistering summer heat today.

Today the weatherman predicted the heat will hold here, with scattered showers and occasional thunderstorms for the next two days.

Warmest July 16 on record was 95 in 1900, the coldest, 54 in 1929. Humidity today stood at 66 degrees.

Blazing Gasoline Sweeps City Block In N. J., 10 Hurt

Atlantic City, N. J., July 16 (AP)—A series of explosions at the Pure Oil Company storage plant, including two 10,000-gallon gasoline tanks, flooded a square city block with burning fluid and injured at least ten persons today.

Beaten back by the heat of the flames and the possibility of more explosions, firemen dragged hose to the roof of the nearby building of the Atlantic City Press-Union newspapers and aimed streams of water onto the streets and in the direction of a neighboring coal yard where gasoline and flames were seeping into the fuel.

Injured, including three firemen, were taken to hospitals for first-aid treatment. None was believed seriously hurt.

Dickstein Urged To Balk Nazi Camp

Washington, July 16 (INS)—Representative Dickstein (D.) of New York, today received an appeal to help prevent the 17th Nazi camp from opening in this country.

The newest Nazi camp, Dr. Boris Erich Nelson, secretary of the non-sectarian Anti-Nazi League, telegraphed Dickstein, will open on Sunday at Andover, N. J. Invitations to the opening, he said, bear the Swastika and announce a flag presentation and parade of 5000 Nazi followers. Dr. Nelson declared the government should close all Nazi military training camps.

Public to Hear Teacher's Story At Big Session

Miss Isabelle Hallin, Saugus school teacher, who has returned to her home town to face "accusers" at public hearing to be held tonight where her side of ousting story will be heard.

voted that she had the "right to resign."

As she arrived at her Adams avenue home with her father, C. Fred Hallin, Lynn business man, today, she stated:

"When I first got word of the 'resignation' vote of the School Committee I was asked if I was going to take it passively. As a little girl my father taught me there was nothing worse than a quitter. Since then I have never known the meaning of the word 'quit.'"

She stated that she would tell her whole story at the meeting tonight.

Miss Hallin said:

"I am feeling fine, physically—fit as a fiddle.

"All I am interested in right now is being exonerated and vindicated in the eyes of the public.

"I am going to disprove every charge made against me.

"I believe I have been wronged. I believe that I have not had a fair and just chance to state my side of the case. This desipte the fact that I have been ready at all times to face my accusers, if any, and even answer rumors.

NEVER CALLED HER

"Ever since the school committee took its first action I have been ready. I was invited by the secretary to the first meeting at which it was voted that I be given the right to resign and attended, waiting to be heard by the committee, but they never called me. I stood outside the chamber until the action was taken.

"At that time, mother and father were both in the hospital. It was natural that I should seek advice on how to proceed from some friend. That friend happened to be my attorney. I believe I was criticised by a member of the committee for 'retaining counsel' when I sought the advice of a friend at a time when I needed counsel.

"I also learn that I am criticized because the proceedings have attracted widespread interest throughout the nation. I cannot be held accountable for that. I think it unfair to harness me with any control over what interests the public just as much so as it would be to charge any member of the school committee with control over it.

NOTHING TO HIDE

"I have nothing—I never had anything — to hide from the world. I have done nothing that I am ashamed of. There is nothing either in my private life or public life that I fear coming to the view of the world.

"I did not seek out the public press. Representatives of newspapers sought me out after I was informed, by outsiders, that the school committee did not re-elect me.

RUMORS CHECKED

"It was also charged, by the only voice so far raised against me, that a teacher substituting for me said that he found that my daily markings were three weeks behind schedule and that I had no plan book—I will refute this charge in full.

"But I do want to call attention to the fact that this charge—made at the meeting by a member—appears nowhere in the fair and courageous report of the superintendent of schools.

"That report seems to have checked even rumors of the most trivial sort in an extensive investigation of my three years as a teacher. If the member was in possession of this information, which he states he got second-hand, why did it never come to the attention of the superintendent of schools?

"I also note that—with the same unfairness and injustice that has marked this whole proceeding—a member reading from the report of the superintendent merely read those parts that would be construed unfavorable to me.

"I also learn that Superintendent Evans called attention to the unfairness of reading only part of a report without reading it all.

"I learn that the report will be given—in full—to the public at the meeting tonight.

CALLS REPORT FARCE

"Naturally I do not expect in a report that scrutinized my teaching life there would not be something unfavorable—as I do not think that I am the perfect teacher. I think the report was concise, fair and honest.

"I am also glad that the principal praised the work I did in school and in my outside activity in dramatics. I taught every period and a library period. I carried a greater teaching load than any teacher. I coached dramatics gratis.

"One thing I want to say—and say from the heart: I have had wonderful backing from my fellow townspeople and the press. I am so pleased at the number of known and unknown friends who came to my aid. I will try to justify their belief in me if my contract is renewed.

"If it is not I want the one chance to tell my story and be exonorated in the eyes of the public."

WALLY'S Chum Asks DIVORCE

MRS. RAFFRAY SUES IN PARIS

New York, July 16—School-day chum of the Duchess of Windsor, Mrs. Jacques Raffray, wife of a wealthy insurance broker, is going to get her divorce after all.

The lovely Baltimore socialite was a school companion of the Duchess of Windsor and was with her during the early days of her romance with the then King of England.

Raffray, it was learned today, has decided to make a quick trip to Paris to appear in the action which his wife has filed there.

Under French law, a husband must be in court during a divorce trial. Hitherto, Raffraty has refused to co-operate with his wife's plans.

Mrs. Raffraty has already dismantled her swank Madison avenue apartment and moved over to London where she intends to make a permanent home.

The last time she arrived at Southampton with her furniture—which was at the height of the furore over the romance of Edward VIII—she was met at the pier by dapper Ernest A. Simpson, the present duchess' second husband.

3 Daughters Deny Oil Man Tried to Burn Them Alive

Media, Pa., July 16 (INS)—Charges their father tried to burn them to death to collect $120,000 insurance on their lives were branded as "false and ridiculous" today by three daughters of Albert K. Knight, 53, once a prosperous oil company executive.

The accusations grew out of a fire that damaged Knight's residence at Lansdown, on May 28, while the three girls and their younger brother were asleep. All four escaped injury.

Knight, who had been at liberty under $5000 bail on arson charges, was placed in jail when unable to raise additional bail of $10,000 in which he was held on the formal charge of attempting to kill.

"We'll stick by our dad," declared the children, who are visiting friends in an effort to raise the bond.

Prosecutor Toal said investigation revealed that Knight had applied for 26 separate insurance policies on the girls between October 1, 1936, and March, 1937—two months before the fire. Twelve policies, each with a double indemnity clause in the event of death by fire, were granted in the amount of $5000 each, Toal said.

Knight said he was in Washington seeing Senator Gerald P. Nye "about some oil business" on the night of the fire."

RUDY'S LATEST?

AROUND-WORLD HOP PLANNED BY SOVIET

Los Angeles, July 16 (INS)—A new goal is now planned by Russia's aviators, according to A. Vartanian, flight coordinator for the Soviet government. This uncharted hop would be via the North and South poles.

If the attempt is made, it would be a flight around the world, passing over each pole, Vartanian indicated. He said the flight would not be made by way of New York.

The three fliers who broke all distance non-stop records by their flight from Moscow to San Jacinto, a distance of 6700 miles over the top of the world, were to be feted here today after a royal reception held for them in San Diego where they motored after landing in a San Jacinto pasture.

They were guests yesterday at a noon banquet given them by military, navy and civic officials of the border city.

The three men, Pilot Mikhail Gromov, Co-Pilot Andrei Yumashev and Navigator Sergei Danilin, had a long sleep, and after buying some clothes, were smiling happily at the hospitality of the state in which they landed their big red plane.

Acting Consul General Gregory Gokhman of San Francisco has the men in charge and translated their speeches for the populace.

Gromov, 38 years old, has been a pilot for 20 years, has flown non-stop for 75 hours, and holds every decoration awarded by his country for aviation achievements.

Yumashev, who has held 16 years experience as a flier is famous among European aviators. Of the 12 records approved during 1936, four were set by him.

Navigator Danilin, introduced as "the man who knows the secret of going so far in a straight line," smilingly explained that it was "not so difficult." He said:

"We just flew down the 120th meridian, headed for San Diego. We knew where we were at all times."

ERNIE'S FRIEND SUES

2 Youths Injured As Car Overturns

Two youths were injured early today when the car in which they were riding skidded on Granite street, Braintree, during a heavy rainstorm and overturned.

Police of Braintree and Quincy responded to the call and brought the youths to Quincy Hospital.

Fred Collins, 18, of Upland street, Quincy, alleged driver of the machine, was found suffering from a broken right arm and multiple cuts and bruises. Vernon A. Anderson, 19, of Marsh street, Quincy, was released after being treated for cuts and bruises.

N. E. Auto Industry Mourns Death of Harold C. Hart

The New England automobile industry today mourned the passing of Harold C. Hart, president of the Nash New England Company, who died late yesterday at Faulkner Hospital, Jamaica Plain.

He was 49 and had been ill for more than a year. Noted for his administrative ability and his sympathetic cooperation with dealers, Mr. Hart was one of the most popular executives here.

Born in Hartford, Conn., Mr. Hart began his automotive career with the Pope Company in Hartford. A few years later he went to the Jeffrey Motor Company at Kenosha, Wis.

When the Nash company purchased the plant and changed the name to Nash, Mr. Hart was retained as an executive in the sales department. Later he came to Boston to join the New England division.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Belle Oliver Hart; two children, John and Belle, and his mother, Mrs. L. E. Hart.

HUNT BOY IN TORCH DEATH OF LYNN GIRL

JACQUELINE ROLLINS

Accused by Victim Of Setting Her Clothes Afire

Lynn police today began an intensive search for a young boy believed responsible for the death of six-year-old Jacqueline Rollins of Jefferson street, who died of burns suffered when her clothing was set fire yesterday.

Screaming with pain as the flames enveloped her body, the girl told her mother, Mrs. Charles W. Rollins:

"A boy did it—he's up at the corner now."

Before losing consciousness at Lynn Hospital where she later died, the little victim told police and her parents "a boy touched a match to my dress."

The grief-stricken father of the girl told police that children in the neighborhood had been starting fires ever since the Fourth of July.

PASTOR KILLER FEARS CROWD'S VENGEANCE

Pittsfield, Ill., July 16 (INS)—Feeling ran so high here today that Sheriff Wendell Johnson advised the Rev. Ellsworth Newton, accused murderer, to stay in his cell rather than face arraignment before Justice of the Peace Aldrice.

A crowd surrounded the jail at the time the Paris, Mo., minister was to be taken to the justice's court across the street to plead to a charge of beating Mrs. Dennis Kelly, 45, to death with a dumbbell.

After a conference with the sheriff, Newton waived arraignment, and Justice Aldrice bound him over to the grand jury on a charge of murder.

A few hours earlier the Rev. Newton had supped beer and smoked cigarettes as he calmly confessed the killing.

TELLS OF KILLING

His blue-gray eyes never flinched under his bronzed forehead and sandy hair, as the 51-year-old minister, who looks barely 30, told how he took the comely Maybelle, his paramour and wife of a rural mail carrier, out in his car with a bottle of whiskey.

He related how he drove her to the Mark Twain bridge at Hannibal, Mo., Monday night, beat her to death, and dumped her body from the bridge into the Mississippi.

RIFLED PURSE OF $1930

Then he took $1930 from her purse, coolly drove home to his wife, and officiated at a funeral service the next day.

As unruffled as if reading a passage from the Bible, the minister confessed:

"Mrs. Kelly kept saying she wanted to leave her husband and family and I must go with her. I couldn't shut her up. She sort of shoved me back when I did not promise to go away with her, and then we both fell down. Blood was streaming from her and covered me, and I took something, a dumbbell, or a hammer, I think, and struck her."

Actually, police said, it was a large iron dumbbell with which he beat her to death. The weapon was recovered from the river.

Prosecutors said they couldn't budge the minister an inch as he denied the murder until they led before him Miss Myra Hanan, raised as a girl in the pastor's home—she is now 36—and told him she had confessed he had handed her Mrs. Kelly's $1,930 for safe-keeping.

Parson Newton had been the intimate of both Miss Hanan and Mrs. Kelly.

In his confession, the minister said of Mrs. Kelly, who was the mother of two sons, 19 and 14:

"She just kept chasing me. 'You've got to go with me,' she kept telling me. She just kept insisting on it."

BONES OF BABY FOUND IN ME.

Wayne, Me., July 16—Police investigation into the discovery of bones of a baby, wrapped in two blankets, a towel, a frock and four burlap bags, was held up here today pending the report of Dr. Arch H. Morrill, state pathologist.

Lieutenant Leon P. Shepard, in charge of the case, said he had "nothing else to go on., other than the fact that the bones were those of a baby.

The bones were found in a shallow cove in Berry pond by members of a crew building a highway.

The police official said the blankets, towel, frock and sox provided no immediate clue.

Shepard also asserted that there were no babies reported missing in this section of the state or elsewhere in Maine.

"ALL-BRAN SAVED ME FROM A LIFETIME OF SUFFERING"

"I had suffered from constipation for three years. My condition was becoming really serious, when I read of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

"I bought a package. Within two weeks, my bowels were regular, and I began to enjoy living again. It has saved me from a lifetime of suffering."—Mrs. Lloyd Baird, 384 S. Bannock St., Denver, Colo.

Try ALL-BRAN yourself. It corrects the common type of constipation. Within the body, it absorbs twice its weight in water, forms a soft mass, gently cleanses the system. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily. Three times daily in severe cases. As a cereal with milk or cream, or in recipes.

Isn't it better to eat this wholesome food than to take pills and drugs that may be harmful and often lose their effect? ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

The Brighter Side

Damon Runyon

Senor Arturo Gigante, a compactly built man wearing a little moustache, and a shirt landscaped with the most surprising red and blue squares, said he represented El Mundo of San Juan, Puerto Rico and that he wished to interview us for his paper.

"Puerto Rico, eh?" we mused. "That's a nice little country, isn't it?"

"Nice?" said Senor Arturo Gigante, gazing at us reproachfully out of large, brown eyes. "Nice, you say? It is the most beautiful, the most gorgeous, the most wonderful country in all this world. You have never been to Puerto Rico?"

We said no. Senor Arturo Gigante eyed us compassionately. He returned to a pocket of his sport coat, a blank pad on which he had apparently intended taking notes of our interview. He cleared his throat, we commenced to suspect that we had unwittingly uncovered a Puerto Rico enthusiast of the old time booster school.

"When I think of the loveliness of the mountains and the sea of Puerto Rico words fail me," said Senor Arturo Gigante. "It is a heaven set in the Caribbean.

'TWAS SILLY QUESTION

"Our people are the most hospitable on this globe. You can go, a stranger, to any house on our island seeking shelter, and you will be taken in and fed and bedded down for the night, and an offer to pay would be indignantly rejected."

"You like Puerto Rico?" we suggested.

Senor Arturo Gigante eyed us with further reproach and shook his head sadly. Obviously, he considered our question fatuous.

"We have a population of 1,800,000 on an island 100 miles long and 35 miles wide," he said. "That makes us the most thickly populated country in the world, I believe. We have no industries, except sugar cane," he said.

"Our largest city is San Juan, which has 200,000 population. It is a regular little New York city in miniature. We have all modern improvements. We have fine hotels. We have eleven daily newspapers. The one I represent is the largest."

Here Senor Arturo Gigante let an extra note of pride creep into his voice. He said E. Mundo, which means the world, has circulation of 40,000.

NOT SO HOT

"It never gets as hot in Puerto Rico as it does right here in New York," Senor Arturo Gigante continued. "We have practically all the amusements you have here, music, theaters, sport. Baseball is very popular in Puerto Rico. So is boxing. We have horse racing every week. But of course our great pastime is cock fighting, which is legalized in our country.

"Fifteen years ago you rarely saw a boxing glove in Puerto Rico," Senor Arturo Gigante went on. "Now, since a couple of our youngsters have achieved pugilistic fame, all the Puerto Rico kids have gone in for boxing."

"How do you folks down there stand on Americans?" we asked.

"Why, we like them," said Senor Arturo Gigante. "Of course, one occasionally comes along to say and do things to make himself unpopular, but in general we like Americans."

NO POLITICAL ROW

"What about that political row you are always having down there?" we inquired.

"Why, there is no row," said Senor Arturo Gigante. "I don't pay much attention to politics myself, but I know there is no row. Our people would like a native governor and a native government, as a matter of simple justice, that's all.

"One party wants American statehood, and another party wants independence under some sort of American protection. As it stands now, Puerto Rico has no real definite status, and some of our people do not think that is altogether fair," said Senor Arturo Gigante. "Do you?"

We hastily declared ourself neutral.

"We have a temporary native governor now," said Senor Arturo Gigante. "Governor Blanton Winship is in Washington on business, and our commissioner of agriculture, Rafael Menendez Ramos is serving. But many of our people think we should have as permanent governor, a man who understands Puerto Rico and her needs thoroughly, and only a native can do that.

"We are the sixth largest market in the world for American-made goods, and that ought to entitle us to plenty of consideration," said Senor Arturo Gigante. "We are advancing and improving rapidly in every way. Puerto Rico should be America's leading winter resort. We have wonderful bathing, and fishing, and boating, and then there's that scenery! Nothing any where else on earth can compare with that."

Here Senor Arturo Gigante paused awhile, as if lost in contemplation of the glories of his homeland. Then he asked again:

"And you have never been in Puerto Rico?"

When we said no once more, he left us, obviously feeling so sorry for a fellow who has missed Puerto Rico, that he forgot about interviewing us.

Victim Hits Bandit. Keeps 3-Cent 'Roll'

Oakland, Calif., July 16 (AP)—John Swanson, 23, resented being held up last night and the bandit hit him on the head with his pistol. When the bandit started to take Swanson's bankroll—three cents—Swanson got angry. He smacked the bandit on the nose, retrieved his three cents and went home.

REPUBLIC STEEL ACCUSED BY LABOR BOARD

Washington, July 16 (AP)—The National Labor Relations Board today charged the Republic Steel Corporation with a long list of "unfair labor practices," before and during the recent steel strike.

The board ordered a hearing here Wednesday on its complaint, which covered only the company's Ohio plants.

First item of the board's complaint was its allegation that the company discharged 75 employes for joining the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, subsidiary of the John L. Lewis Committee for Industrial Organization. Other workers were threatened with discharge, the board said.

It added that Massillon and Canton employes wer "locked out" as a result of union activity.

The company also was charged with "maintenance of extensive arsenals" at the Youngstown, Niles, Warren, Canton and Cleveland plants, "for the purpose of interfering with, restraining and coarcing its employes at said plants in the exercise of their right to self-organization."

Auto Plunges Down Shaft, Man Injured

Robert W. Canavan, 48, of 192 Belmont street, Wollaston, was seriously injured today when an automobile he was operating on the third floor of the garage of the New England Nash Company crashed through an elevator shaft gate and fell two stories to the ground below.

Canavan was thrown out the door of the car, and when the vehicle caught on the top cross bear of the elevator, he fell past it. At Boston City hospital he was found to have a fractured jaw and broken shoulder.

LIFT BAN AIMED AT NON-GUILD REPORTERS

Pittsburgh, July 16 (AP)—Unseated delegates at the national convention of the Federation of Flat Glass Workers abandoned plans to secede today and awaited action on the threatened ouster of President Glen W. McCabe.

"The federation is our union. If there is any withdrawing to be done it will not be done by us," said Orval Davis of Clarksburg, W. Va., secretary of a rump session of unseated delegates.

Chairman William Ward announced yesterday his group would withdraw and form "a Democratic labor organization." Ward asserted representatives of 15 locals were refused admittance to the convention because they were friendly to McCabe.

The regular delegates retracted last night their ruling that only newspaper reporters who were paid up members of the American Newspaper Guild could attend the convention sessions.

The three daily Pittsburgh newspapers withdrew their reporters after the order was issued.

The federation's executive board has charged McCabe mismanaged funds of the organization's magazine.

Ban Lifted by Quiet Work of CIO Leaders

Washington, July 16 (INS)—Quiet work by CIO leaders here was responsible for the flat glass workers conventio nin Pittsburgh rescinding its resolution barring from its councils all newspaper reporters not holding paid up Newspaper Guild cards.

When the resolution was adopted CIO chiefs were powerless formally to demand repeal of the resolution, because each union in the CIO is autonomous, technically. At the same time, John L. Lewis and others made it plain that they had no part in adoption of the resolution, and did not approve it.

CIO Director John Brophy talked the situation over with Chairman Lewis, and went to work by long distance telephone.

CIO forces have no idea of ever imposing such requirement on reporters covering their activities, it was said.

Decatur, Ill., July 16 (AP)—Joseph Vincent, state labor conciliator, said today "a temporary truce" was reached in a six-day American Newspaper Guild strike against the Herald-Review. He added that negotiations would be renewed late today.

"Operations of the paper will be resumed without mass interference," Vincent said. "The guildsmen will stay on strike until the dispute is definitely settled."

JIM OFFERS JOBS PLAN

federal budget, the national administration asked the Congress of the United States for not more than a billion and a half dollars for the WPA.

"This was a cut of seven hundred million dollars from the appropriation of two billion, two hundred thousand dollars from the preceding fiscal year. As a result of this reduced appropriation, it obviously is necessary to reduce the number of persons carried on WPA pay rolls.

"Thus since January first of this year it has been necessary to separate approximately 35,000 persons from WPA pay rolls in Massachusetts alone.

"These people find themselves face to face with stark reality. It has repeatedly been stated that a majority can be absorb ed in private industry. We are endeavoring to fit the individuals to the jobs available. It is especially vital that we do so before the Winter months.

"It is vital not only for them but for the whole community, for if they do not find jobs there will be much less coney spent in the community. The butcher, the baker, the tailor, the landlord, and the whole Commonwealth will suffer.

'I't has been my opportunity to be close to the scene around which these events have transpired. Therefore, perhaps more than to most people, the pressing reality of the problem has been brought home to me.

"f these 35,000 people are not earning a living for themselves and their families, they become charges upon the local communities and dependent upon home relief. For many of our cities and towns the result of this increased financial burden will be an increased tax rate on real estate.

"Therefore, it seems well worth while for the state and the communities to do all they can to work out a practical program, first for human reasons and for the preservation of the fabric of society, and secondly for financial reasons.

MUST COMBAT PERIL

"We must give no opportunity to those alien influences which would take immediate advantage of failure of our society to provide proper opportunities for this large part of our population.

"Therefore, I have asked to meet here you gentlemen who are in a most favorable position to give practical help in working out this particular and constructive program.

"The elements of my proposal are not new. Many of you have thought of them before. I feel, however, that with good will, energy and the sifting value of discussion, we can find a way to recombine suggestions which have been made from time to time into a program which will be presently effective.

"It will require full cooperation, honest effort and perhaps some immediate sacrifices. But we can all hope that it will result in ultimate greater benefit to each and all as a part of the whole community.

ASKS PUBLISHERS' AID

"A. The first load will have to fall upon the publishers and the editors.

"Your 'position wanted' col-umns have always been the chief medium—they are still the best medium—to bring jobs and workers together, but at the present time many workers have neither the money nor the knowledge of your usefulness to take the initiative with you.

"For that reason it has been suggested that you take the initiative for them. WPA officials will furnish you full lists of those who have been dropped from WPA rolls and elementary data as to what they can do, if you publishers and editors see the wisdom of understanding to put that information in the form of simple 'position wanted' advertisements, and to run them free of charge in an appropriate manner and for appropriate periods in your papers.

"To some of you, this will be a considerable financial contribution; to others, it will be a very small one. However, after full discussion, the distribution of the burden can, I believe, be equitably adjusted, and certainly all can cooperate fully through the news columns of the public press.

ALL COMMUNITY SERVED

"Through this method, every part of the Commonwealth will be fully informed of the names and the type of work wanted by men and women without employment in their community and in the Commonwealth. It is certainly no disgrace to need and to want a job, and I feel that in too many cases we are unaware that our neighbors are in need of assistance.

"B—Of course, business management will require more data for each prospective employe than publishers and editors can be expected to donate.

"There must be some machinery set up as a kind of clearing house through which prospective employers attracted by the simple information in the advertisement can easily and quickly follow up the advertisement to obtain complete information about the prospective employe."

"Specifically, I propose that the chamber of commerce of the city of Boston should solicit the services of other chambers throughout the Commonwealth to establish such a clearing house.

MACHINERY READY

"c. Furthermore, there already exists in the federal and state government departments machinery that can readily co-operate in creating such a clearing house.

"Through this machinery we can answer the question frequenty raised—whether men and women who have worked on the WPA are willing to make an effort to re-enter private enterphise?

"D.—You may also want to ask the postoffices, which are natural places of information in nearly every community, to post whatever notices are helpful from time to time.

"E.—The Representatives of the radio companies can certainly think of ways by which they can help arouse the enthusiasm and support of the general public

BUSINESS AID ASKED

"F. And then we have here representatives of that group who hold the entire key to the problem in their hands . . . The group who manage the business life of our Commonwealth. It is to them we must carry our story and our appeal I have asked Mr Albert N Murray of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts to give us the benefit of this advice from the employers' point of view"

MARY HAPGOOD TRIAL JULY 21

Worcester, July 16—Mary Hapgood, CIO organizer, whose husband, Powers Hapgood, was released from a Maine jail recently for activities in the shoe strike there, appeared with six other defendents in district court today.

Charged with disturbing the peace while picketing in front of the Reed and Prince Manufacturing Company, the seven defendants pleaded not guilty, and asked for a continuance through their attorney, Samuel E. Angoff of Boston.

Trial was set for July 21.

Several hundred workers went back to duty in the Reed & Prince factory after the strike was called off late yesterday by CIO officials.

Nazis Link Vatican With Communists

Berlin, July 16 (INS)—A new onslaught against the Vatican was launched by the Nazi newspaper Der Angriff today.

In a lengthy front-page article, the newspaper charged Papal Secretary of State Cardinal Pacelli had "lined up" French Communists as allies of the Catholic Church in its "struggle again the National Socialist regime."

Court Bill Foes Blast Roosevelt Charge as False

Washington, July 16 (AP)—President Roosevelt today made a new demand for action on court legislation in a letter to Acting Senate Leader Barkley of Kentucky.

He followed it up with a conference last night in which he and Barkley and other senators canvassed the legislative situation from every angle.

VISIT OF 4 IN VAIN

Only a few hours earlier four freshmen senators had discussed the court issue with the President and, according to word passed around by their colleagues, had urged him to let the controversial measure go back to committee until next session. Their return to the Capitol was followed by word that the advice might be accepted.

One of the four senators—Brown, of Michigan—came out for the compromise bill only last week. After his White House call he issued a statement placing himself back in the non-committal column.

Opposition leaders quickly asserted they had enough votes to re-commit the bill. But at a strategy conference a division of sentiment developed as to whether the motion to recommit should be made or the fight carried on for a decisive vote on the legislation itself.

LINE-UP SHIFTS

Brown's shift, Robinson's death and announcement against the bill by Senator Maloney (D.) of Connecticut gave the opposition a three-vote margin in the lineup of publicly declared senators. The totals became 41 against, 38 for, 16, noncommittal and one vacancy.

Administration senators said the failure of the foes to agree on a recommittal move indicated they did not have the votes. They conceded, however, that the lineup was extremely close.

Foes reported the bill's supporters already were negotiating for a new compromise to replace the one now before the Senate.

Intertwined with the court bill dispute was an increasingly heated undercover fight over the Democratic leadership in the Senate.

HARRISON WINS VOTES

Foes of the bill were lining up back of Senator Harrison of Missisipi, although he once had declared for the measure. Some of those on the other side of the judicial dispute were joining them.

Most of those who have gone along with the court bill were working for the selection of Barkley.

He was pronounced "more liberal" by a majority of the 14 first-year Senators. This group, in an unusual caucus, agreed unanimously to support for leader "the man the President wants."

Most observers expressed the belief there was little doubt about his choice in view of his letter to Barkley followed by his conference with the Kentuckian last night. Harrison was absent.

The conference was attended only by Barkley and Senators Pittman, president pro tempore; Minton (D.), Indiana, and Schwellenbach (D.), Washington. Afterward they said only that they had reported to the President on the status of all legislation, bill by bill.

WILLING TO COMPROMISE

The President in his letter to Barkley left the door wide open to compromise. After outlining the objectives of his proposal, he said:

"At no time have I or any member of my administration insisted that the method or methods originally proposed be sacred or final except to point out that action was of immediate necessity and, therefore, that the process of constitutional amendment was an impossibility if the objective was to be attained within a reasonable time.

"An abandonment of judicial reform, including, of course, all the federal courts, because of the inability of a majority of senators or a majority of representatives to agree on method and reach a vote, places the responsibility squarely on the Congress of the United States.

OBJECTIVES UNCHANGED

"May I, therefore, tell you very simply once more that the objectives of the President, and, I believe of the great majority of our citizens, remain the same, and that I believe that it is the duty of the Congress, and especially of the members of the majority party in the Senate and the House of Representatives, to pass legislation at this session to carry out the objectives."

The part of the letter to which opposition leaders took most violent exception was this:

"It is with regret that I find that advantage is being taken of what, in all decency, should be a period of mourning.

"Because of this situation, however, I am compelled in the public interest, though against every inclination, to write to you. I do this because you are the acting majority leader of the Senate."

WHEELER FLAYS PRESIDENT

Senator Wheeler (D.) of Montana, leader of the court bill foes, said:

"I cannot believe the President wrote such a letter. It would not be in character for the man who is the leader of our party, the President of our country and the man other liberals and I triumphed with in 1932 and 1936.

"I cannot believe Governor Roosevelt could make political capital out of tragedy of this sort. But if it is so, he must have accepted poor counsel in an hour when men who have lost a friend are particularly susceptible.

"When Joe Robinson passed away, I cancelled all engagements and forgot the court bill. After Tuesday, I hope we will all take counsel for the good of the country."

NEYLAN SCORES COURT BILL

Special to Boston American

San Francisco, July 16—America's mounting opposition to President Roosevelt's new efforts to "destroy independence of the Supreme Court" was the keynote of an address delivered at a rally here by John Francis Neylan, leading attorney and liberal.

Echoing the address, the rally unanimously adopted a resolution opposing the compromise court plan now pending in Congress.

Neylan made these major points:

President Roosevelt's Supreme Court measure, now before Congress as a "compromise," is a "more devious and reprehensible subterfuge than the original measure." Its provisions, ostensibly designed to stretch presidential powers of naming new justices over a period of six years instead of six months, would:

Make it impossible for the country to know the total membership of the court from one year to the next; place a premium on split decisions and political scandal, produce a political scramble for judgeships and make it possible to "pack" the court whenever "advisable."

The new bill would not ban age from the court, nor eliminate divided decisions; its power to hold laws unconstitutional would not be affected; judges would not lose their power to issue injunctions; it would not reduce the expense or litigation, nor would it speed up litigation.

Slug Paymaster, Rob Him of $5599

Buffalo, N. Y., July 16 (AP)—John J. Duffy, 25-year-old paymaster, reported to police today two men robbed him of a $5599.82 payroll.

Duffy, paymaster for the Frazier-Davis Construction Company, left a bank with the money and drove to his office. As he got out of his car, he said, one man slugged him on the back of the head. The other man grabbed the money, and both fled.

HONOR ROBINSON IN SENATE STATE SERVICE

Washington, July 16 (INS)—The American people through their elected representatives, this afternoon paid final homage to the late Senator Joseph T. Robinson at a state funeral in the Senate chamber.

President Roosevelt, Cabinet officers, the diplomatic corps, his fellow colleagues of House and Senate and the bereaved family gathered in the chamber where Robinson ruled as Democratic leader for 15 years. His body in a silver casket, buried beneath blankets of floral tributes, lay a few feet from the seat he occupied throughout most of the post-war era.

The ceremony was impressive though simple. A prayer, a psalm, a hymn, a sermon, another hymn and the benediction.

The body will be taken aboard a special train tonight, accompanied by the largest funeral delegation in Congressional history, to Little Rock, Ark., for interment there Sunday.

Across the aisle, Mrs. Robinson and members of the immediate family were seated.

The casket was escorted from mortuary parlors to the Capitol by a special detail of capital police. It was met by a Senate delegation which accompanied it into the chamber.

Ascending the rostrum, Rev. Dr. Ze Barney Phillips, chaplain of the Senate, delivered a sermon in eulogy. Rev. James S. Montgomery, house chaplain, led in a prayer.

A Washington soloist sang two hymns "Abide With Me," and "Lead Kindly Light."

Immediately following the services an honor guard was posted to remain with the casket in the closed chamber until early evening, when it will be placed aboard a train to begin its journey back to Arkansas.

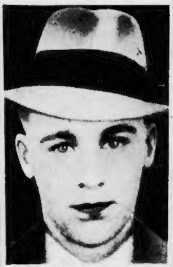
Brighton Youth Breaks Dedham Jail in Dash



An extensive hunt is on for Joseph Subilosky, Brighton youth who escaped from the Dedham jail. As a truck delivered groceries at the front gate of the jail, the 19-year-old boy darted through the gate.

Joseph Subilosky, 19-year-old automobile thief, of Market street, Brighton, escaped from Dedham jail today as a truck was delivering groceries at the front gate in Village avenue.

The youth sprinted through the gate, across the avenue, through Old Village Cemetery, thence into a tangled brush and swamp section.

Dedham, Norwood and Walpole police and jail guards surrounded the mile-square swamp, while cruiser cars blocked Village avenue, Lowder and Highland strets.

Subilosky was clad in his jail uniform of gray slacks, gray shirt and felt slippers.

Subilosky and three other prisoners had been asigned to the storeroom in the front of the jail and were at work only a few minutes when the truck entered the yard.

At that moment, a turnkey opened the door to the storeroom. Subilosky shot by the turnkey and, with the yard gate open, his way was clear.

The youth had been in the jail since April, when he was sentenced to serve one year for larceny of an automobile in downtown Boston.

Seek Racketeer 'Brains' in Mexico

New York, July 16 (US)—Search for J. Richard (Dixie) Davis, indicted as the legal "brains" of New York's $100,000,000 a year policy racket, was extended to Mexico today.

Investigators for Special Racket Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey said he was last heard from in Houston, Tex., where the lawyer had attempted to "fix" officials who had ordered closing of a race track.

FOLEY BOOMED FOR N. Y. MAYOR

New York, July 16 (AP)—Samuel J. Foley, district attorney of the Bronx, was put forward today as a pro-New Deal compromise candidate to oppose the incumbent, Fiorello H. LaGuardia, for mayor of New York.

Foley was proposed by the four pro-administration Democratic county leaders of the city in the hope that Tammany leader, James J. Dooling, would not continue to insist upon U. S. Senator Royal S. Copeland, New Deal foe, as his candidate.

The five leaders held another secret meeting today in an effort to prevent a runaway primary fight, which they believe would enhance the chances of LaGuardia, who plans to run for re-election on "all tickets."

Former Governor Alfred E. Smith, still a dominant factor in city politics, has refrained from openly taking sides, although he is believed to favor Copeland.

Scottsboro Case To Be Appealed

Decatur, Ala., July 16 (US)—For the third time Clarence Norris has been found guilty of attacking two white women with other Negroes on a freight train near Scottsboro, Ala., six years ago. The verdict carries the death penalty.

As soon as the verdict was returned Defense Attorney Samuel Liebowitz of New York, declared:

"I will appeal this case to hell and back."

Twice previously Norris and seven other Negroes were convicted and sentenced to death but the earlier trials were set aside. A ninth alleged member of the band is now serving a 75-year sentence.

Chief witness at the present trial was Victoria Price, one of the alleged victims, who stuck to her story of the mass attack. Ruby Bates, who also told this story at the first trial but changed her testimony later to say the whole thing was a frameup, could not be located for testimony at this trial.

The remaining defendants are to be tried separately like Norris, the first being Andy Wright.

WPA Six-Months Cost Under Billion

Washington, July 16 (AP)—Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress administrator, said today WPA expenditures in the last six months dropped below the billion-dollar mark. They totaled about $880,000,000.

During the first half of 1936, WPA cost $1,049,000,000, and in the last half it was $1,020,000,000. Emergency expenditures for drouth prevented a larger reduction.

JAPAN TO HURL OFFENSIVE IN CHINA SOON

Copyright, 1937, International News Service

Shanghai, July 16—A major offensive in North China will be launched by Japan tomorrow or Sunday, well-informed sources in Tokyo revealed in advices to Shanghai today.

International News Service was informed 50,000 Japanese troops, comprising one division from Japan, one from Korea and a third from Manchokuo, Japan's puppet state, will be used in the forthcoming offensive, which now is regarded as a virtual certainty unless there is a marked change in the Chinese government's attitude in the North China dispute.

Further divisions of troops are expected to be sent to North China from Korea and Japan.

No more will be sent from Manchoukuo after the First Division is sent from there, it was disclosed, because troops in that area are being held in raediness for any eventualities with Soviet Russia.

Japanese authorities evidently fear a recurrence of the recent Manchoukuo-Soviet boundary disputes, especially if Japan becomes involved with China.

Crisis Over Weke-End, Warlike Tokyo Believes

Tokyo, July 16 (INS) (Copyright, 1937.)—The Sino-Japanese dispute in North China entered its most serious stage today as partial mobilization of troops progressed in Japan and the entire empire was placed on war footing for a crucial week-end.

On all sides, the opinion prevailed that the next two or three days will determine whether the Far East faces war or peace.

Ominous official reports reached the war office, stating 30 divisions of Chinese troops are massed along the Shansi province border and along the Haichow-Sianfu railroad, awaiting the order to advance and resist Japanese troops in North China.

3,000,000 RESERVISTS

Expeditionary forces were rushed to North China from Japan proper, and 3,000,000 reservists were ready to form a second line of defense.

Officials made it clear that unless China backs down in the Hopei-Chahar area, Japan will "answer fire with fire."

The government received with marked disfavor reports of a proposed European-American demarche, suggested by British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, aimed at "restraining Japan."

Officials said it would be "wise to bear in mind" that the present dispute with China is in the "hands of the military, not the diplomatic corps."

JAPAN'S "MISSION"

Foreign powers do not understand Japan's mission on the Asiatic mainland, in the Japanese view.

This week-end, one official made it clear, will "surely see a decisive turn for war or peace."

Japan's press, officially inspired, whipped up the situation.

Chamber of Commerce pledged support to the government's military policy and capitalists were coaxed into co-operation. Factory employes donated 500,000 yen to a fund to carry out activities in China.

Air line planes were packed with Japanese officials rushing to the scene of action. Trucks in Korea were commandeered for use at the "front."

South Manchurian railway units were requisitioned wholesale to haul supplies to the battle zone.

BRITAIN PLANS NEW WAR CURB

London, July 16 (INS)—Britain scored at least a temporary victory today in her fight to maintain European non-intervention in Spain's civil war.

At a plenary session of the 27-nation non-intervention committee, Italy and Germany accepted a British compromise plan as a basis for discussion.

Altogether, International News Service learned, ten countries including the Baltic and Scandinavian nations, accepted the plan for discussion.

Germany and Italy welcomed the "constructive nature" of the compromise, although they will propose modifications.

France is believed opposed to several provisions of the compromise proposal, particularly one granting belligerent rights to both Insurgents and Loyalists in Spain.

Madrid Troops Push Back Rebels in West

Madrid, July 16 (AP)—Insurgent warplanes today bombed Madrid's suburban airdromes, while the loyalist army pushed westward in the eleventh day of its offensive to thrust back the insurgents in central Spain and lift the siege of the capital.

The insurgent raiders were beaten off after inflicting slight damage to the air bases.

Gen. Jose Miaja's "milicianos" drove against Villafranca Del Castillo, a village about 12 miles northwest of Madrid, where Insurgent General Franco was said to have massed fresh troops, heavy artillery and planes.

EUROPEAN WAR SURE, SAYS LUDWIG

By SEYMOUR BERKSON

(Managing Editor, Universal Service)

Paris, July 16 (US)—President Roosevelt has plans which he hopes may stave off another European war, "but I fear it is too late," Emil Ludwig, world-famous historian, told me in an exclusive interview today when he arrived here after a visit to America and the White House.

Ludwig, from whose brilliant pen have sprung indelible portraits of Napoleon, Bismark and Mussolini, is writing a biography of Roosevelt. During his visit at the White House he had numerous intimate conversations with the President. In the first and only interview which revealed his detailed first-hand observation, the eminent biographer told me:

"Roosevelt wishes to exercise an influence for world peace and he has certain ideas on how Europe may be weaned from war. But I fear it is too late—and I respectfully told the President that such is my firm belief.

RUSHING TO WAR

"Europe is rushing headlong toward war. I have a feeling it will come even while Roosevelt is still in the White House. The driving force for war is the Nazi regime which is determined to erase the stigma of the defeat in the last war through a military victory. They are teaching the youth that the only honor is the honor of the sword."

Ludwig says that in the study of the facial contours and expressions of his biographical subjects, both historical and living, he frequently finds the most important clues to their character. What Ludwig noted most about the President's face was his smile and the "strong chin." It does not take long to discover the personal charm of his latest subject which captivated him, but Ludwig says he also sought to penetrate to the thoughts "behind the President's smile." He declared:

CALLED PHENOMENON

"Roosevelt is a new kind of man in public life—a phenomenon of twentieth century America—optimistic, good-tempered, but, at the same time courageous, very intelligent and energetic."

I asked Ludwig:

"Did you observe any traits in any way identifying Roosevelt with the current trend toward dictatorships?"

Ludwig replied:

"Roosevelt understands mass psychology and is sensitive to it, as are dictators. He has his finger constantly on the pulse of public opinion, but he does not aspire to and does not believe in dictatorships. He has too much sense and humor for that.

"Dictators do not act as serenely at their jobs as Roosevelt. I had the occasion to see him at his work. Always he acted as if enjoying immensely what he was doing. Even in these difficult weeks he pursues his tasks as pleasantly as if he were the world's happiest statesman. Perhaps he is.

"HE'S NOT AFRAID"

"This serenity is what makes him so different from our European statesmen, who, even in democracies, show the burden of their duties so heavily upon their brows. Nor is he as fearful as European statesmen of intimate familiarity with even the most casual visitor to whom he offers a cigarette with utmost informality, yet retains his natural dignity."

Ludwig declared Roosevelt considers himself not an opponent but a defender of capitalism in America. He said:

"He is accused of persecuting the same wealthy, aristocratic class from which he himself sprang, but he feels what he has done has been for the salvation of capitalism."

Ludwig labels Roosevelt a "practical idealist" in contrast to Wilson. But a dictator? No!

"Dictators want to be feared; Roosevelt wants to be liked," his biographer concludes.

NEW FIREMEN ARE SWORN IN, 76 SHIFTED

While 76 members of the fire department went to their new posts, following the transfers announced by Commissioner Edward F. McLaughlin, 96 new privates were sworn in by the commissioner today.

One of the new men of the department, Joseph P. McDonough, is the third member of his family to become a fireman. His father was District Chief Edward McDonough, who died of injuries suffered in the line of duty, and his grandfather was the late Peter McDonough, chief of the fire department.

TRANSFERS ANNOUNCED

In the general order yesterday, Commissioner McLaughlin announced the transfer of seven captains, 27 lieutenants and 52 privates.

With the announcement of the transfer, it was pointed out that it was necessitated by the recent promotions of captains and lieutenants. It was also stated that the 52 privates were transferred at their own request.

Commissioner McLaughlin declared that the request transfers of the privates had to be held up until the new members were ready to take their posts because of the lack of personnel.

He explained that the men seek the transfers in order to be nearer their homes.

LIST OF CAPTAINS

The seven captains shifted are Captain Maurice J. Buckley, from Ladder 31 in East Boston to Ladder 1, Bowdoin square: Captain John J. Blakeley, Ladder 31 in East Boston to Ladder 6 in Dorchester; Captain Robert J. Ritchie, Ladder 28 in Jamaica Plain to Engine 42 in Roxbury; Captain John J. Smith, Ladder 24 in Bowdoin Square to Engine 39 in South Boston.

Also Captain Charles B. Lynch, Engine 21 in Dorchester to Engine 51 in Brighton; Captain John F. Howard from Engine 8 on Salem street to Engine 21 in Dorchester; Captain Eugene J. Doherty from Ladder 17 on Harrison avenue to Ladder 20 in South Boston.

Odyssey of Lost Boy Ends, He's Safe at Home

Paul Bailey, four-year-old adventurer who was found wandering through the crowds of downtown Boston last night, was restored to his parents today after being away all night.

The lad was found by Patrolman Herbert Small of the Warren avenue station on Broadway near Tremont street. Taken to the station, he lisped his name and said he lived in South Boston.

After hours of trying to discover his parents, Lieutenant William H. Britt decided to send Paul to the Chardon street home. Although he had been having a fine time with the police officers who were captivated by the smiling lad, it was past his bedtime.

A short time later Mr. and Mrs. George Bailey, of East street, Dedham, rushed into the Milk street station and begged police to find their child. They had lost him as they came out from a movie. As fast as a cruising car could carry them they were at the Chardon street home listening to the laughter of tiny Paul as he related his experiences.

3 Boston Firemen Commended Today

Three firemen were commended today in orders by Fire Commissioner McLaughlin.

George J. Walker, a hoseman, of South Boston, was commended for working at a fire on July 3, at West First and E streets; Ladderman Philip J. Flynn, was honored for donating blood to a patient at City Hospital, and Lieutenant Stephen F. Gunn, of South Boston, for resusciation of a woman who collapsed while bathing at Carson Beach.

Divorces Wife Who Preferred Parents

Salem, July 16—Declaring his wife preferred the company of her parents to his, James Lewis of Main street, South Hamilton, obtained an uncontested divorce in Probate Court today.

His wife, Mrs. Barbara C. Lewis, left home in September, 1935, after they had been married little more than a year, to return to her parents in Boothbay, Me., Lewis stated. She repeatedly refused to return.

Custody of their four-year-old daughter, Nancy, and $170 alimony were granted to Mrs. Lewis.

Jardine's Sponsor Is Forced to Quit

Baltimore, July 16 (AP)—Captain John Logan, head of the Volunteers of America here, said that forces he "cannot afford to ignore" forced him to withdraw his sponsorship of a lecture by the Rev. R. Anderson Jardine, English parson who married ex-King Edward VIII and Wallis Warfield.

Captain Logan declined to say what the forces were. The Rev. Dr. Jardine said he would present his talk as scheduled, but without sponsorship.

British Girl, Nazi Prince to Marry

Rose Whitman to Become Bride on July 24

LARGE WEDDINGS of socially prominent couples are few and far between this month . . . so there is a great deal of interest in the preparations for the ceremony at which Rose Whitman will become the bride of Channing Frothingham, Jr. . . . Rose, who is the daughter of Mrs. Chatfield Whitman of Union Park and Manchester, and Hendricks Hallett Whitman of New York, has selected July 24 as the date of her marriage to the son of Dr. and Mrs. Channing Frothingham of Boston and Walpole . . .

Mrs. Ephron Catlin 3d

The ceremony will take place in St. John's Church, Beverly Farms, at 12:30 o'clock, and will be followed by a reception at the Essex Country Club . . .

The girls Rose has chosen to precede her down the aisle as honor attendants and bridesmaids are a very comely group . . . Her sister, Mrs. Thomas Jefferson Davis, Jr., (Nancy Whitman) will be the matron of honor and Mollie Frothingham, sister of the bridegroom, the maid of honor . . .

The bridesmaids include several former Boston girls who have lived in New York since their marriages . . . but whose names were on the tip of every society editor's pen a few years back, in reporting leading debutante activities along the North Shore . . . they are Mrs. Ephron Catlin, 3d, the former Priscilla Saltonstall, daughter of John L. Saltonstall of Topsfield . . . Mrs. John Akin, (Dorothy Forbes) daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Murray Forbes . . . Mrs. Winthrop Stuyvesant Emmett (Marian Clark) daughter of the Henry Cannon Clarks of Pride's Crossing and Mrs. Schuyler Watts, who was Madeline Phillips before her elopement last November . . . The other bridesmaids are Elinor Ladd of New York and Anne Tuckerman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Tuckerman of South Hamilton . . .

Dr. Joseph Frothingham will be best man for his brother and Channing has provided six ushers to even up the bridal party . . . they are Hendrick H. Whitman, Jr., J. Harleston Parker, James C. Howe, Jr., Amor Hollingsworth, Jr., Lawrence Grinnell, Jr., and George Gibson . . .

The bride-to-be is an attractive brunette with a round smiling face . . . Perhaps you saw her picture in Town and Country this month . . . She attended St. Timothy's and also studied in Italy and at the Sorbonne . . . Through her father she is related to a number of prominent Boston families, and on her mother's side she claims some very distinguished Chicago ancestors . . . Mrs. Franklin Hobbs of Boston and Mrs. J. Robertson Duff of Westwood are her father's sisters . . .

Mr. Frothingham prepared for college at St. Mark's and graduated from Harvard in 1931 . . . He later graduated from the Harvard Business School . . . and is a member of the Fly Club . . .

Future Bride to Be Feted on Cape

SALLY LOU HANDY of Akron, Ohio, has spent her summer vacations on Cape Cod before . . . but this is the first year she has come to the Cape as a bride-to-be . . . to meet all her future relatives and be feted at a whirl of parties in honor of her engagement . .

Sally Lou recently became engaged to Walter Tufts, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tufts of the Wasp, Yarmouthport, and is coming on next week to stay an indefinite length of time with Mrs. Tufts . . . She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Handy of Fairlawn, Akron, and has been a student at Wellesley College for two years . . .

Walter's relatives, many of whom Sally Lou has already become acquainted with, are of a very distinguished social calibre . . . For instance, on the distaff side his great aunts are Mrs. Bayard Thayer and Mrs. George Agassiz . . . Mrs. Nathaniel Simpkins, Jr., is an aunt and John Lavalle, the famous Boston portrait painter, whose mother was a Tufts, is a relative of the future bridegroom's father . . . Nathaniel Simpkins, 3d, Oliver Simpkins, Mrs. Richard C. Storey are just a few of many cousins . . .

Walter is established in the cotton business in New Bedford . . . which allows him to spend weekends at Yarmouthport in the summer time . . . and which means that one of the highlights of Sally Lou's visit will be meeting the boat from New Bedford at the Woods Hole dock, Friday nights or Saturday noon, whenever Walter can get away from his job . . . Walter graduated from the Belmont Hill School and Trinity College . . . and he and Sally Lou are planning to be married around Christmas time . . .

Hull Bridge to Benefit Catholic Blind Guild

No less a cause than the Catholic Guild for the Blind benefits from a bridge Tuesday at the Pemberton Inn in Hull. With Charles Little, the talented blind violinist, and Maurice Leahy, the Irish literateur, as chief attractions, the affair marks one of the first held in aid of this worthwhile charity.

A group of well-known Boston women are pioneering in raising funds for this philanthropy which provides for the physical and spiritual needs of these handicapped people.

Mrs. Charles F. Hurley, first lady of the Commonwealth, heads the group of supporters which also numbers Mrs. Louis O'Malley, Mrs. M. L. Ryan, Mrs. Frederic Crosby and Mrs. John G. Downing.

Reception committee for Tuesday's party will be headed by Mrs. Raymond Connolly of Jamaica Plain who has established headquarters for the summer at Atlantic Hill. Mrs. William E. Browne, Margaret Mutch, Mrs. William Prendible . . . a trio of energetic workers for charity causes . . . are also serving on this committee.

Others who are interested in the benefit are Mrs. Anne Lyne, Mrs. Herbert Connelly, Mrs. Bernard J. Killion, Mrs. James Reardon, Mrs. A. J. Steffins, Mrs. Henry Fitzgerald and Mrs. John Phillip White.

Mary Culhane, who is actively identified with this work, is a member of the committee, which also includes Mrs. Henry S. Fitzgerald, Josephine Hartigan and and Mrs. Thomas Biloudeau.

Cronin-Brown Ceremony

Another marriage of interest takes place Sunday afternoon at four o'clock when Mary Annette Brown, daughter of Mrs. Catherine Brown of Cambridge, weds John J. Cronin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. Cronin of Lawrence, in the Church of the Blessed Sacrament in Cambridge. Rev. William Finnegan will officiate.

Mrs. Lawrence Brignolia of Cambridge, sister of the bride-elect, will be matron of honor. Edward A. Cronin of Medford will act as best man for his brother.

Ushers include Richard McCusker of East Braintree and William Cowan of Dorchester.

After a reception at the Hotel Commander in Cambridge, the couple will sail for Nassau and Havana. On their return they will make their home in Cambridge.

MDC Nature Walk In Fells Sunday

The Metropolitan District Commission and WPA division of recreation announced today through Director Edward L. Farrell that the 10-mile hikes which proved so popular throughout the winter will be discontinued during the warm weather.

The nature walks will be continued every Sunday afternoon in MDC areas. The next walk will be held in the Middlesex Fells in Medford. Starting at the MDC police station on Fellsway West at 3:00 p. m., the hikers will proceed to visit Quarry Springs, Old Man of the Fells, and The Great Medford Dike. Harry George Higbee, naturalist will explain highlights of the route.

Tomorrow afternoon at 2:00 p. m., children will assemble at Houghton's Pond in the Blue Hills for their weekly outing. All are invited to attend.

The Long Suit

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Few players realize the power of a long suit.

The dummy may expose in full sight a five-card suit headed by the nine-spot, and most defenders will see only its weakness in top cards and will overlook its potential strength.

South's deceptive play in the hand below gave West some excuse and the danger of the spade holding gave him some more, but he should have seen the need for haste.

South dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	North
	♠ Q 8 5 ♡ K 7 3 2 ◇ 9 8 6 5 2 ♣ Q
West ♠ K 7 4 ♡ 6 5 ◇ K Q 10 ♣ A K 6 3 2		East ♠ A 10 6 3 2 ♡ 9 8 ◇ 7 4 3 ♣ 10 8 4
	South ♠ J 9 ♡ A Q J 10 4 ◇ A J ♣ J 9 7 5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Dbl.	3 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Dbl.	Pass	Pass
Pass

South's rebid to four hearts was a trifle optimistic. A double raise over a takeout double is by no means a very strong bid, being merely pre-emptive in nature. With a strong hand, partner would redouble. South went to four hearts partly in the expectation of having some play for it and partly to make sure the opponents were kept out of a possible game in spades.

West opened the King of clubs and then tried to decide on the proper shift. Trumps seemed safest, so West led his top trump, South winning with the Ace.

Declarer saw that the opponents could take a diamond and two spades whenever they got the lead, unless they were lulled into a false sense of security. From the Queen in the dummy and the Jack in his own hand he could tell that the spade holding in each defender's hand might be such that a lead away from it appeared undesirable. Hoping that the weakness of the dummy's diamond suit would leave the opponents to think themselves secure, South led the Jack of diamonds at trick three.

West won with the Queen of diamonds and, just as South had hoped, felt that there was no danger in that suit. He saw no reason for attacking the spade suit, and led his remaining trump.

South won, and cashed the Ace of diamonds. A club was next ruffed in dummy and a diamond ruffed by South. This established two long diamonds in dummy, giving South enough discards to make his contract.

West should have realized that even if South had only two small diamonds, dummy's long cards would provide discards for spade losers. Therefore, the only hope of obtaining any tricks in the spade suit was to attack it at once.

The objection that South might have the Ace and that the lead away from the King of spades might give South his contract was not valid, since if South had the Ace of spades it would be practically impossible to defeat the contract.

Gay Newport Season Gets Under Way

Summer activities are at their height in Newport, as more and more visitors arrive to be on hand for the sailing of the races for the America's Cup which begin two weeks from tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Ledyard Blair recently gave a party at Honeysuckle Lodge to celebrate Mrs. Walter Gurnee Dyer's 27th birthday. Mrs. Dyer, the former Betty Blair, is the daughter of Mrs. Blair.

The party was an elaborate affair with a floor show, a magician, girl dancers and Negro entertainers. Following this cabaret there was supper and dancing.

The menu cards were printed with pictures of Mrs. Dyer and the Queen of Hearts, Mr. Dyer as the King of Hearts and Mrs. Blair's son, T. Suffern Tailer, Jr., as the King of Diamonds. The birthday cake was made like a large trunk.

Chatty Notes Of Social Circles

JOHN JACOB ASTOR has returned from Europe to join Mrs. Astor at Chetwode, in Newport. Mrs. Astor's sister, Virginia Middleton French, and their mother, Mrs. James Lenox Banks, Jr., are also visiting at Chetwode. Mr. Astor remained in Europe for two weeks after Mrs. Astor returned to be a bridesmaid at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Harold W. Carhart, Jr., who have now departed for a wedding trip to Honolulu.

Here's a Couple Which Finds Happpiness Though Married

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

In spite of all matrimonial problems, and the divorce mills working overtime, many couples are so happy that they have no problem to write about, to the papers or to lawyers.

Take the case of the Dines, who've been so happily married for six years that they are confident the honeymoon will last for sixty years, if they live that long.

Norman Dine, director of a large department store, when the sixth anniversary of his wedding fell due the other day, took an unusual way of telling the world how happy his wife had made him. This he did by inserting in the "Public Notices" column of a newspaper, an "ad" just the reverse of the usual bitter warning husbands sometimes print to tell merchants they will not be responsible for their wives' debts.

The Dine advertisement read: "My wife Tesse, not having left my bed and board after six years, I am cheerfully responsible for all debts incurred by her. Norman Dine."

Mrs. Dine, when interviewed, said she preferred her husband's method of telling the world how hapy they had been, to orchids or jewelry.

Curiously enough, on the day following this announcement I had two letters from wives begging me to state in my column that they were entirely happy and had the best husbands in the world. One had been married 10 years and the other 18. The wife who had been married for 18 years said:

"The trouble with people is they do not understand the need of a love with roots to it, a love that will grow and flourish and weather all storms. We have never had much money or what the world counts as great success. We have had grief and disappointment, but our love has always been an insurance against unhappiness.

"In marriage there has got to be something big and deep and lasting which you can cling to and depend on, whatever happens; something that will give your marriage its full meaning and your parenthood its complete joy. If you've got that you're safe whatever happens. Otherwise, life is just CHAOS."

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I read in the papers that when the former king of England married Mrs. Simpson, the word "obey" was left out of the marriage ceremony. This, I think, is a mistake.

No man would expect his wife to obey him as a dog comes to his master's whistle or a snap of his finger, but there are certain concessions which a wife should grant her husband. When it comes to certain decisions, such as where they should live and how, the husband, being the breadwinner, should have the say so.

The girl I intend to marry is a splendid creature. She is so much herself that sometimes I wonder how much she can be really mine. She has earned her own living, but is giving up a good job to marry me, because I do not like the idea of a self-supporting wife.

I'm not jealous, but a man's natural conceit demands that a woman look up to him. Is my attitude too possessive?

F. R. D.

DEAR SON:

After the honeymoon, when you settle down to the jog-trot of every-day life, you will realize that a wife who isn't a "yes" lady really makes a better companion than one of those rubber-stamp girls who have no thought or opinions of their own.

There's a queer element in masculine human nature which, when a man has one of those little door-mat wives at home, sends him after a clever woman who can hold her own and has a sense of humor. Don't ask me why.

I know only that I've had thousands of letters from "doormats," telling me their husband's affinities haven't much use for the word "obey."

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl 24 years of age, the oldest of a family of six, four of whom are going to school. I am not allowed to stay out after 11 p. m. under any circumstances, neither am I allowed to bring friends to my home, girls or boys. I am constantly told to get out by my step-mother and that they can do without me.

It has been three years since I graduated from high school and I haven't been able to find work. I am rather afraid of the idea of leaving my home with no funds in the bank and no position, but I must do something. My step-mother says that even if I was working under no conditions would she permit me to stay out any later.

I have no relatives whatever whom I can go to until I find a position. I have been told to leave so many times that my ears are ringing with the words. Dear Miss Fairfax what would you suggest under these circumstances?

DESPONDENT.

DEAR DESPONDENT:

It seems to me under your circumstances the only thing for you to do is to remain where you are for the present. Try to do everything to please your step-mother. When you can support your self it will be time enough to step out.

BASED ON THE COSMOPOLITAN FILM HIT

(From an original story by Gene Baker and Margaret Lee. Screen play by Lawrence Riley and Earl Baldwin. A Cosmopolitan production to be shown at the Paramount and Fenway Theaters beginning Thursday, July 22. Released by Warner Brothers.)

CHAPTER XX

Abbey Belden started for the door.

"But, Miss Belden—er—won't Mr. Matthews resent my following him like this?"

"I hope he does. It will make him see how important it is. I'll call him tonight and tell him something that will make his hair curl up and sizzle. He can't do this to me. Hurry, now, get an over-night bag and rush."

She took some bills from her purse and handed them over to Margery.

"But—But Miss Belden, I don't see how—"

"Listen, Miss Morrison, you have proven yourself most efficient and you've had a tough job making Freddy work, but if you aren't on your way to Monterey within an hour, you're fired!"

Alonzo, hovering near the open doorway to the hall, came back at this point.

"Would you care to have me serve luncheon? I am sure that Mr. Matthews would desire——"

"NO!" Abbey Belden shouted and Alonzo ducked and raised an arm, as if to ward off an attack. "Now hurry, Miss Morrison," she shouted. Margery was already putting on her hat.

"Yes, Miss Belden," Margery promised, with an air of meekness. But she wasn't meek, she was determined to make Freddy Matthews finish that novel in time.

Miss Belden went out. Margery picked up the telephone and put in a call for her apartment, knowing that Susie wouldn't be working that day.

Jake had just come over and had luncheon with Susie and was at that moment playing, or trying to play the piano. It was a kindergarten piece and he played it like a kindergarten scholar.

PHONES SUSIE

Susie heard the telephone and shouted to Jake to come over and answer it. She was on the divan, reading, and too lazy to reach up for the phone that was on an end table.

"Mr. Eggdall speakin'," Jake said, with an attempt at dignity that made Susie giggle. "Huh? Oh, you, is it, Marge. Sure, she's here."

"Gimme that phone, stupid," Susie said, sitting up. She said, in the telephone, "what is it, Marge?"

"Oh, Sue," Margery cried, "I scarcely know which way to turn. Mr. Matthews has got me into a terrible jam."

Jake saw by the expression of Susie's face that something was wrong.

"What's happened?" he demanded.

"She's upset," Susie whispered to Jake. "I think she's crying. Her boss has got her in trouble—"

"He has? Wait until I get my hands on th—"

"Shut up," Susie said, and then, in the telephone, "I was talking to Jake. What is it, Marge, dear?"

"It's too long a story to tell now, Sue. I've got to jump down to Monterey," Margery explained, "pack my over-night bag for me and I'll pick it up on my way to the station."

"But, good heavens, Margy, why are you running away?" Susie asked.

REALLY WORRIED

"Hey, tell her not to do that. I'll stand by her, I'll make that boss of hers—"

Susie silenced him with a gesture.

Margery explained briefly that Mr. Matthews had gone on a wild goose chase to Monterey to find the girl he thinks is Susie Rogers and that she had to follow and make him finish the novel.

"Sure, I know what to pack for you, Marge, evening dress, sports clothes, uh, huh, nightgown, of course. O. K. dearie."

Susie hung up.

"What's up? Why don't Marge make him—"

"Don't be such a sap, Jake, Marge's boss has gone to Monterey and she has got to follow him."

"Yeah? With a nightgown?"

"Shut your face and take me to a movie. I'll tell you about it later," Susie said, more worried than she cared for Jake to know, over the seemingly awful situation Margery had got herself into.

Margery knew that Susie had gone out when, on entering her apartment, she almost stumbled on the over-night bag, placed close to the door.

She was in a hurry and didn't bother to look in the bag, having full confidence in Susie's ability to pack it properly. But she did carefully wrap up all of her awful disguise and thrust it into the bag.

Then she dressed as her own beautiful self, with just the proper amount of make-up, caught a taxi and had only three minutes to wait for a train, so that instead of getting started within an hour, as Abbey Belden ordered her to do, she was on her way in half of that time.

By instinct she went to Monterey's leading hotel. That was where Freddy would hang out while he began his search for "Susie."

When she registered as "Miss Susan Rogers," the admiring clerk smiled knowingly.

"Oh yes, Miss Rogers," he said, "one of our guests, a Mr. Matthews, who arrived only an hour ago, has been looking all over for you."

"I can imagine," Margery said, drily.

"Shall I have him paged?"

"No, I know just about where, to locate him.

LUCKY FREDDY

At that moment, Freddy Matthews was seated dejectedly at the bar in the cocktail room.

"Another double Singapore sling," Freddy ordered and then he said to the barkeeper, "Harry, if you were looking for the most beautiful girl in the world, where would you look?"

"In back of me, first, to make sure my wife wasn't following me."

"I don't happen to have a wife," he said moodily, and began to sip the drink.

WHAT ABOUT THE GOOD-NIGHT KISS?

SHOULD she kiss him good-night? That's the question every girl who dates must answer.

If she's wise she'll sidestep the issue by not lingering at the door. Or she'll fence laughingly, "No, Bill, not tonight."

Though the boy may think he wants that kiss badly, he also feels that if a girl kisses him, she'll kiss any boy. And he likes the sort of a girl he can admire.

The girl who's really popular can answer all the questions that arise when boys and girls go out together.

Who thanks whom for the date? The boy, though he's the host, thanks the girl for her company. She shows her appreciation by saying, "That was fun," or "I enjoyed the evening."

The etiquette of asking for or accepting a date? The boy says, "would you like to go to the dance Saturday?"—not "What are you doing Saturday?" The girl answers "I'd be delighted" or "I'm sorry, but I've made other plans." If a date's made far in advance, the boy confirms it with a telephone call a few days before the event.

Whose place to suggest leaving the movie or a party? The girl's and she makes her suggestion early if she knows the boy must be at class or at work in the morning.

Don't be shy or awkward. Knowing what to say or do wherever you go, alone, with a date, or with a crowd, gives you charming poise and assurance. Our 40-page booklet, ETIQUETTE FOR THE TEENS, tells up-to-date manners for travel, restaurant dining, theater, school dances.

WHEN YOU TIRE of being a sun-kissed hoyden, give yourself a little dose of advance fall fashion. Yes, right now in the last half of July!

It will renew your faith in your femme fatale facet, which has been pretty well shot in the glare of beach, golf course and rose garden.

Invest in black silk jersey. January will find you seeing cruise shows at the Ritz with the same frock under your best fur coat.

There's really something to these rumors that the separate dress and coat entente is coming around again. Costume suits will be important, but not dominant.

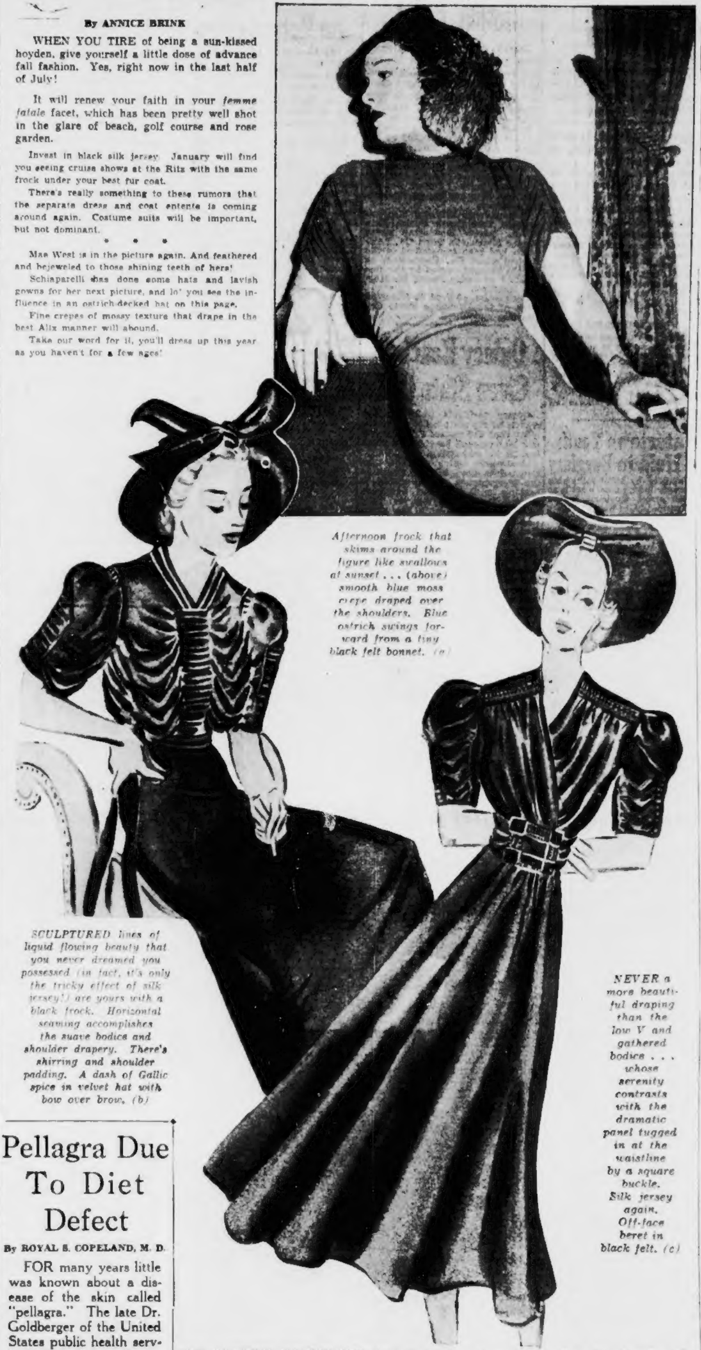
Mae West is in the picture again. And feathered and bejeweled to those shining teeth of hers!

Schiaparelli has done some hats and lavish gowns for her next picture, and lo' you see the influence in an ostrich-decked hat on this page.

Fine crepes of mossy texture that drape in the best Alix manner will abound.

Take our word for it, you'll dress up this year as you haven't for a few ages!



Afternoon frock that skims around the figure like swallows at sunset . . . (above) smooth blue moss crepe draped over the shoulders. Blue ostrich swings forward from a tiny black felt bonnet. (a)

SCULPTURED lines of liquid flowing beauty that you never dreamed you possessed (in fact, it's only the tricky effect of silk jersey!) are yours with a black frock. Horizontal seaming accomplishes the suave bodice and shoulder drapery. There's shirring and shoulder padding. A dash of Gallic spice in velvet hat with bow over brow. (b)

NEVER a more beautiful draping than the low V and gathered bodice . . . whose serenity contrasts with the dramatic panel tugged in at the waistline by a square buckle. Silk jersey again. Off-face beret in black felt. (c)

Pellagra Due To Diet Defect

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

FOR many years little was known about a disease of the skin called "pellagra." The late Dr. Goldberger of the United States public health service was the first to discover that pellagra was not due to an infection.

He determined that it was undoubtedly caused by some defect in the diet. It is now known that it is due to a lack of vitamin G.

It occurs in those sections of the country where the diet is not varied, lacking in certain food elements. Like other vitamin deficiency diseases, it is easily controlled when there is widespread knowledge of how and what to eat.

In spite of what has been learned by the study of pellagra, the disease continues to exist. A recent editorial in the Journal of the American Medical Association points out that there is still a high morality rate, particularly in the South, in the severe cases of pellegra.

DIFFERENCE IN TYPES

Some authorities claim that there is a difference between the type of pellagra seen in the South and that in the North. All agree that the disease can best be controlled by careful dietary management.

Married Comrades

CHAPTER 355

MISS Whitlock lost no time in answering my question concerning Katie's fitness to work.

"You'll be all right if you take it easy," she said. "Leave the dishes until tomorrow morning, and go to bed directly after dinner."

Katie looked so rebellious at this alteration of her invariable custom to clear away everything as she worked that I spoke with quick decision.

"If you do not do as Miss Whitlock has directed," I said sternly, "I shall send you up to bed now, and not permit you to touch the dinner."

The threat worked perfectly. Katie held her hands toward me, palms upward, in a characteristic gesture of submission.

I led the way from the kitchen, and, safely out of earshot, turned to the nurse with a smile of amusement.

"I think I shall have time to go over to Mrs. Ticer's before those broilers are ready," I said. "Will you please telephone me there when Katie tells you dinner will be ready in ten minutes?"

The Ticer farmhouse is so short a distance from our own that a motor car makes the trip in what Dicky terms "nothing flat." The whole family—slow-speaking and equally slow-moving Sam Ticer, his plump wife, brisk, bustling and efficient, and awkward, likable Jerry, their son—came out on the porch as we drove into the yard, giving us a hospitable greeting.

"You take Mister Graham out to the pasture and show him that new horse you got on a trade yesterday," she said. "I've got a new quilt pattern I want to show Mis' Graham, and you men'll only be in our way."

"That'll keep 'em busy and out of hearing until I git through telling you what I've got to," Mrs. Ticer said, hurrying me back to her living room, locking the outside door before she left it. "And they can't get in to hear anything without my letting 'em in," she added, locking the front door and closing the windows of the living room. Then she faced me tensely.

"Miss' Graham, don't be mad at me, but I've got to ask you something mighty queer," she said. "Is your father really in the farmhouse?"

"Your Figure, Madame!"

Exercise Replaces Hollywood Dieting

BY IDA JEAN KAIN

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD has gone athletic—not in a big, brawny way, but in a streamlining fashion that keeps the figure camera slim.

Since the camera adds at least ten pounds to the figure, weight has always been a problem in the movies. Once the stars pinned their slim hopes on dieting.

About the time of the Hollywood Eighteen Day outrage, a regular epidemic of diets broke out on the west coast. Practically every movie star had a special food combination guaranteeing ultra slimness and a de luxe temperament.

Glamour changed all that. You can't look glamorous on an empty stomach! So the fad for starvation gave way to a healthy diet—with enough calories to keep an actress going at her best from six in the morning until six at night.

These glamour girls have a hard row to hoe. A star is expected to be on the set ready for work at nine o'clock in the morning. Getting ready for work is work.

Makeup and the hairdo take a good two hours, and if the costume is very elaborate, another half hour must be allowed for dressing. So you see, a nine o'clock call means they must be at the studio at six-thirty, which in turn means setting the alarm for five-thirty.

Because they must keep switching in and out of character, the stars are under a great emotional strain all day. There is no sustained action, as on the stage.

The player goes into a scene, the take is okayed, and then there is time out until the lights are arranged for another shot. During those recesses she slips back into her own identity—for still pictures, change of costume, fittings and interviews.

Strenuous dieting proved unsatisfactory for the movie stars, both from the standpoint of health and of beauty. An actress who spent two or three weeks dieting for a picture often needed two or three months to get her health back following the picture.

New Lotion for Under the Sun

By ARLINE GOULD

IF you are looking for a sunburn preventative that will assure a rich, coffee-beige color but will positively NOT gather sand unto the dear, old hide, coat yourself profusely with a new grease-proof lotion.

It's our choice of the new crop of sun-filterers and comes first on our preparedness program. Not only is it an in soluble-in-water affair but is so absolutely grease-less that you may smear your body with it and then roll ostrich-like in the sand.

It can be put on before make-up and used as a foundation, or it may be applied over make-up (yes, actually) in which case it acts as a sort of miraculous "powder-set."

Only one minute is allowed for it to dry on the skin. Its real purpose in life is to prevent sunburn and at the same time promote a rich, golden tan. It is as easy to apply as water and is just about of the same consistency.

It is just out of a very exclusive laboratory and our only regret is that it did not make its debut earlier in the season so that we could have told you about it before you took your first swim. However, vacation days are still ahead for a good many yet, and for those who are interested in acquiring a painless-tan, this affair should be their choice.

It isn't a flower-scented lotion by any means so it won't make you smell as though you had stepped forth from a fresh, fragrant garden, but it will filter out the harmful sun's rays. If this is the kind of affair you want, your quest should be at end.

To learn the name of this new non-creamy sun lotion that is applied like water and sold exclusively in one store in Boston, call Arline Gould, Liberty 4000, weekdays until 5, or write to her at the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Fruit Cobblers in Season

FROM MARTHA LEE'S FRIDAY MORNING BROADCAST OVER STATION WMEX

BLACKBERRIES, raspberries, blueberries, gooseberries, dewberries, loganberries, huckleberries, strawberries and currants—all vying for our attention during their short season.

Good use should be made of all these berries while they are competing with each other. The family won't mind a few repeats while they are in season.

Some members of the family may claim that there is nothing better than berries and cream for dessert. But cobblers, rolls, muffins, pie and tarts enter into the scheme of menu planning.

Conditions have been unusually favorable for the berry family, both wild and cultivated.

Just a word of caution about washing berries, then we will offer a few recipes. Never allow a strong flow of water to pass through berries to clean them. The water is likely to bruise them.

BLACKBERRY ROLL

Dough

2 cups cake flour or
1¾ cups bread flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1½ teaspoons salt
1 tablespon sugar
4 tablespoons butter
¾ cup top milk or cream

Sift flour before measuring then resift with other dry ingredients. Cut butter into dry ingredients until the mixture is the consistency of coarse corn meal. Add milk being careful not to spill and stir only enough to thoroughly incorporate. Turn dough onto a lightly floured board and knead gently and quickly for about a half minute. Roll dough into rectangular piece and brush with melted butter (about 2 tablespoons).

FILLING

3 cups blackberries
⅓ cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon cinnamon (if desired)

Sprinkle above over shortcake or biscuit dough and roll like a jelly roll. Place in a large, well-greased pan and surround it with:

3 cups blackberries
½ cup sugar

Bake in a hot oven of 425 degree F. for about 30 minutes. Cut in slices to serve and top with sauce from the pan. Cream may be passed if desired.

OLD-FASHIONED BERRY COBBLER

A Cobbler may be made from a rich biscuit or shortcake dough covered with fruit and baked, or baked with the fruit in the bottom of the pan and the dough on top. Serve with a hard sauce or with cream.

It is advisable to thicken the fruit slightly—either flour or a beaten egg may be used. We suggest that for a cobbler to be baked in an 8-inch by 8-inch pan that one-half the dough recipe given above be used.

15,000 POUNDS OF TUNA A DAY OFF NO. TRURO

New England's constantly enlarging fleet of tuna fishermen, whose greatest complaint so far this season has been that the huge deep-sea sporters have not been feeding, found something to warm their hearts this week.

More than 15,000 pounds of tuna were taken Wednesday in one fisherman's eight traps off the Cape from North Truro.

The fish averaged between 150 and 250 pounds, but a few of the specimens ran up as high as 500 to 800 pounds.

This remarkable catch, they believe, indicates that the run of tuna is well under way, and that it will be only a matter of days now before they are striking.

Paul Bauer, Lynn, and Warren Raymond, Weymouth, scouting for the giant tuna around Provincetown over the weekend, failed to raise any catches, but are planning to make a return trip early next week.

On the North Shore, the complaint about tuna is the same. They won't take bait at this stage of the season.

George Hodsdon, making his first trip out from Gloucester, sighted a number of large tuna this week. Though he managed to drag a lure in front of several of them, he found the tuna won't take a hake.

It is very difficult to get within trolling distance, too.

Swordfishing prospects are good off Block Island, according to reports from the Atlantic Tuna Club there.

A number of the high fins have been taken recently off the Rhode Island coast and the marlin are running. Tuna have been sighted within three or four hours of the island, toward the southwest.

Stripers continue to provide good sport in Plymouth harbor, with the fishing particularly good off Gurnet light. Most of the catches are small, however.

Yet even the two and three-pounders give a thrill on light tackle.

Webb Wight, angling for stripers at Plymouth, has reported very good success, his bitterest objection being that too many of the bass are content to take his sea-worms and leave him with only the hook.

And at Gloucester, many silver-sided Atlantic salmon are still being taken in the nets and fish weirs, indicating that there ought to be some sport in the tributary waters around.

One of the largest stripers caught during the season in Buttermilk Bay was taken this week by George Robbins, a guide in the region.

He lifted a 23-pounder, after a tussle with the heavy sea bass.

POSSES HUNT NO. 1 WEST BAD MAN

FREES KIDNAPED YOUTH

Sapulpa, Okla., July 16 (AP)—Possemen stood watch on blockaded highways today for Roy "Pete" Traxler, the southwest's No. 1 bad man, believed fleeing northward after releasing the kidnaped son of a wealthy New York oil man.

The youth, 21-year-old Baird H. Markham, son of General Baird Markham, an official of the American Petroleum Institute, was seized near Ada, Okla.

Traxler, his left arm shattered by a bullet, and two companions, all escaped Texas convicts, took young Markham's automobile and forced him to accompany them.

Markham was released near here after eight hours and 15 minutes, during which time he said the men crisscrossed through the country, dodging a posse from which they had escaped by abandoning their own car and taking to the woods only shortly before.

BOY YALE STUDENT

Markham, a Yale student, is working for an oil company for experience during the summer. His family formerly lived in Oklahoma City.

Young Markham said all three men admitted they were fugitives from the Texas prison farm at Huntsville. Besides Traxler, he identified a second man as Charles Chapman. Chapman was wounded in the shoulder, Markham said.

The third man, Markham said, was referred to as "Fred." Fred Tindol of Jasper, Tex., was one of teh nine men who with Traxler and Chapman escaped the farm amid gun fire July 8. Four of the nine were recaptured, one killed and a guard was wounded. "Fred" was not wounded.

"They discussed tieing me to a tree," Markham said here today. "But then they decided if they dumped me out far enough from town they would be safe.

"They finally decided to let me out of the car near Sapulpa. They seemed to think they could get to Tulsa before police would be notified."

Markham said the three men blocked a road to halt him as he drove near Steedman, Okla., toward an oil well test.

"They weren't interested in me," he said. "It was my car they wanted. They soon admitted their identity. All said they were escaped convicts from the Texas prison farm.

"Traxler was driving. He was wounded in the arm. Chapman was shot in the shoulder. I directed them through Seminole, then we waited until dark.

"After that we circled toward Briston and then came toward Sapula.

"GREAT TO BE FREE"

"They talked about how great it was to be out of prison and said being caught was a matter of life and death with them.

"When they first stopped me they told me they wouldn't hurt me. I'm all right. I feel fine."

Markham will be a junior at Yale next fall.

Watertown Youth Held in Burglary

Captured by Milton police while allegedly hiding under a bed in an Essex street apartment, Richard McInerney, 21, of Watertown street, Watertown, was arraigned in uincy court today on a charge of breaking and entering with intent to comit larceny.

Pleading not guilty, he was held in $5000. Police said they found McInerney in the apartment of Andrew Laird after Laird was awakened by the sound of breaking glass.

DEIGNAN QUITS BANK POST

Joseph Deigman of Belmont, close friend of Governor Hurley, has resigned as liquidating agent of the closed Exchange Trust Company, effective tomorrow, it was disclosed today by Bank Commissioner William P. Husband, Jr.

The bank closed in 1932, with an estimated loss of $4,000,000 to depositors and stockholders.

Succeeding Deignan will be Attorney Paul Liston of Cambridge, a brother-in-law of District Attorney William J. Foley of Suffolk County, who has been serving as liquidating attorney.

Commissioner Husband also announced that Frank Burke, Lexington, former liquidating agent for the Merchant's Trust Co., Lawrence, had been transferred to the Central Trust Co., Cambridge, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Judge James M. Hurley, Marlboro.

Resignation of Fred B. Greer as clerk of the Exchange Trust Co., was also announced.

Quincy Beaches Given State O. K.

Quincy residents welcomed the reports of the state board of health today that the waters of Wollaston and Merrymount beaches are clean and fit for swimming.

Meanwhile, city officials, instructed to keep Black's Creek in the Merrymount section closed to bathing until pollution has been cleaned there, prepared to take measures to cope with the situation which has driven bathers from that stream.

Tests of water taken from Black's Creek have shown it to be a raging colony of colon germs, caused by disposal of sewerage, the state report showed. Even the stench of the waters has been noticed by passing motorists.

2 Giant Air Liners Recross Atlantic on Return Hops

By International News Service.

Flying across the Atlantic with almost clock-like precision, the Pan-American Clipper III and the British Imperial Airways flying boat Caledonia achieved another double transoceanic aerial triumph today.

The Clipper arrived at Botwood, Newfoundland, at 6:49 a. m., E. D. T., after a flight from Foynes, Ireland, which took 16 hours and 28 minutes against headwinds.

The Caledonia reached Foynes after a 12-hour, seven-minute flight from Botwood, at 5:32 a. m., E. D. T.

In a radio message the Clipper, which like the Caledonia was completing it's return transatlantic survey flight in anticipation of regular passenger and mail service, said it flew the final stretch at an altitude of about 700 feet.

Aided by tail winds, the Caledonia averaged about 170 miles an hour on the eastward crossing. The slower time of the Clipper, flying westward, was attributed to headwinds. The Clipper took off from Foynes yesterday at 2:21 p. m., EDT.

The planes passed each other 19 minutes before midnight in mid-Atlantic, about 900 miles from Newfoundland.

HEARING ON OIL TAX CASE ENDS

Concluding its hearings in the appeal of the Portland Oil Company today, the United States Board of Tax Appeals adjourned sessions until Monday at 10 a. m. at Federal Court.

Seeking a redetermination of a deficiency tax set by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue at $114,804.32, with an additional penalty of $57,402.16, in 1931, the Portland Company has been contesting the estimate.

It was also learned today that the tax appeal case of the estate of the late Joseph A. Tomasello, treasurer of the Democratic state committee at the time of his death in 1936, has been settled in Washington.

Approximately half of the sum in controversy, $7,931.50, has been restored to the estate, it was learned.

From starting gun to finish line, Lenore's under tension. As pictured at right, even her breathing must be timed to a split second.

Even after an 880-yard race, Lenore comes up smiling. In choosing her cigarette, she pays particular attention to mildness. "I've found I can smoke Camels as often as I like, thanks to their mildness," she says.

Because Camels are so mild—because they are made from such costly tobaccos—you can smoke them steadily, without jangled nerves. At mealtimes, Camels encourage a free flow of digestive fluids—alkaline digestive fluids—and lend a helping hand to good digestion. And how gentle they are to the throat!

I want to write today about non-sequiturs, arguments that do not seem to jell, where the premise and conclusion do not seem to hitch up.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

The first was uttered by Dr. Leroy E. Bowman, director of the United Parents' Association, speaking at Wellesley before the Summer Institute for Social Progress. He avowed that the old-fashioned parent who insisted on discipline was an enemy of Democracy.

"Neither Communism nor Fascism is as dangerous to Democracy as the spirit of the parent who trains her children by a lavish application of the whip and the hairbrush or by their disciplinary equivalents."

That, as he means it, is [illegible] nonsense. Our history shows that for a hundred years children were brought up in this country by a reasonably strict application of family discipline—yes, the whip and the hairbrush if you like. That process resulted in pretty good Democracy plus a reasonable amount of individualism.

It is only in very recent years that our educators and publicists have begun to get alarmed about the anti-democratic movements among us.

Home Discipline Weakens, Juvenile Crime Booms

Only in this century, too, has family discipline begun to break down largely through the teaching of psychologists, psychiatrists, "educators" and theorists like this man Bowman. Only in this present century has juvenile crime, extending even to the unmentionable, become almost a matter of common occurence.

The syllogism does not jell. The teaching of self-w... self-expression, do-as-you-please, by silly parents and teachers for headstrong and willful children is eminently a product of recent "progressive" education.

In Russia children denounce their parents to the authorities. In America they hale them into court for trying to discipline them. The crop of juvenile crime grows alarmingly as control by parents and teachers grows less.

The result of slackness of discipline is lawlessness of youth, the mistaken clemency of courts, crime and more crime, the parade of strikers, picketers, thieves and racketeers, murderers, and finally Fascists and Communists who believe in direct action.

Old-Fashioned System Backbone of Democracy

There, if you like, is the breakdown of Democracy. It is upon us now. For a hundred years children and criminals were appropriately spanked by parents and courts and Democracy remained a reasonable working program. It worked with fair success. It was good for the children and the criminals. It was good for us all.

Weigh that against the CIO strike method, against juvenile crime and outrage, against the growth of alien philosophies among the young —and what is the answer? I suspect Dr. Bowman of talking through his hat.

The other non-sequitur that struck me in the same morning's news was President Roosevelt's demand for a government survey to see how rents can be lowered, insisting that they are too high.

Well, probably they are too high. Why? Because the President has worked for four years to keep prices up. He announced that as his intention. Prices, he said, were too low. Hence the depression. Hence the New Deal. Hence the NRA, the AAA, the CCC, the TVA. Prices must be kept up to regain prosperity. All but rents.

Poor Can't Afford High Cost Housing

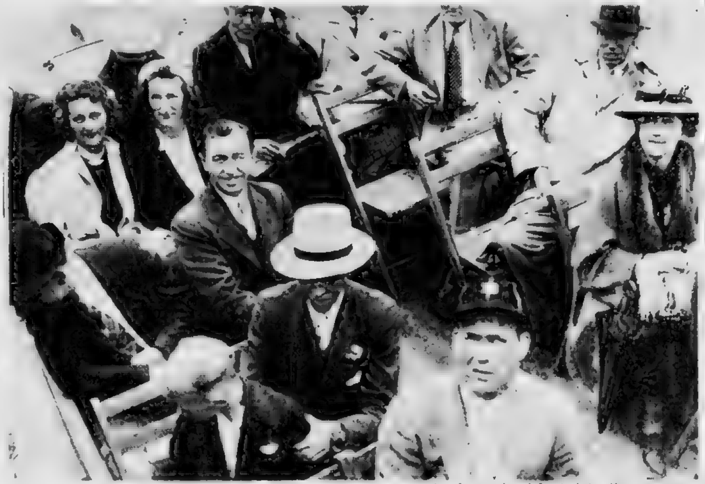
Possibly there is a connection between the President's wish to shorten hours, raise wages by legislative enactment, and high rents. Possibly there is another connection, too.

An unbalanced budget, an irreducible welfare list, billions squandered on fantastic government projects, government housing schemes so expensive that poor folk can't afford the houses.

So he recommends "limited dividend corporations," presumably to be enacted, managed and financed by the government. Did the President ever hear of the Building and Loan Associations?

They worked very well without government planning, management or interference. No new suggestions are needed. If the money now being squandered by the New Deal could be put back into Building Loan, so that people could afford to save money to buy houses with, there would be no need for any new machinery, no need for any government bright ideas.

STRIKE TURNS THIS BOAT INTO 'LINER'



"All aboard for Oak Bluff," shouted the captain of this small fishing craft, now doing emergency service between Woods Hole and Marthas Vineyard. Business folk and vacationists insist on getting to their destination despite the seamen's strike which has halted steamship service from Massachusetts mainland to Marthas Vineyard and Nantucket. Many fishermen have volunteered their boats for the emergency. Private launches are also being used in handling travelers. The Coast Guard is handling the mail.

High hope that the seamen's strike, tying up regular transportation between the mainland and Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard, will be settled today was expressed by State Commissioner of Labor and Industries James T. Moriarty.

WIRED PRESIDENT

Governor Charles F. Hurley of Massachusetts telegraphed President Roosevelt and Secretary Morgenthau for coast guard ships [illegible] to the islands after [illegible] commerce with the mainland.

Off [illegible] the [illegible] operating [illegible] government mail [illegible]

To block any possible profiteering on foodstuffs on the affected islands, Moriarty today dispatched Walter H. [illegible] investigator for the division of necessaries of life to the marooned spots by airplane for a checkup on prices being charged.

Today's conference was the third in an attempt to settle the dispute, the conferees sitting in their second session from 2:30 p. m. yesterday until nearly 1:30 a. m. today.

Wages are the basis of the dispute which has tied up the four steamships plying between New Bedford and the islands.

At the conference yesterday the seamen contended they are the poorest paid in the country.

"FINAL OFFER"

The union's "final offer" to operate one of the four steamships today, the New Bedford, if the company officials agreed to arbitrate was met by a counter proposal by Howard S. Palmer, railroad president.

He asserted that he would negotiate only if all four vessels were put in operation, and this was flatly refused by the union.

NO FOOD SHORTAGE

On the governor's orders, too, the National Guard aviation unit stood by for immediate duty in event of a food or medicine shortage on the islands.

There was no immediate prospect, however, of a food shortage and it was pointed out that there will be none unless several days of violent storms force down planes and dock the small fishing vessels which have been ferrying supplies.

The principal loss to the islands is the summer tourist business. Gilbert Mantero, chairman of the Nantucket development committee, together with hotel proprietors, estimated their loss at $10,000 daily. Those most seriously inconvenienced are some 30,000 summer residents on the islands.

Yesterday the selectmen of Nantucket appealed to Governor Hurley to have the state take over the steamship line "in this crisis which is becoming disastrous to the interests of the island."

In reply, the chief executive declared the state could not step in to operate the lines since the railroad is under financial reorganization in a federal district court.

Last night State Representative Joseph A. Silvia (R.) of Oak Bluffs announced that the selectmen of Oak Bluffs on Martha's Vineyard are contemplating a direct line from the islands to New York, with a shuttle from Woods Hole to Oak Bluffs.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By

By Ann Marsters

We never knew, before, that a mere look could have quite so much significance. A Boston couple, just back from an automobile trip through Texas, tell of what happened when they asked a native for directions.

ANN MARSTERS

"Well, suh," the native answered, "you goes down this road for jest about three and a half looks, and you see a road, and you turn to the left jest about two looks, and you comes right to it."

A look, we now learn, is as far as you can see down the road.

You spot a tree or clump of bushes, drive to it, and that is your first look. Spot something else farther along down the road and that is another look. Half a look? It's a distance halfway between you and the look.

Historical note: We've always believed that men have just as much innate vanity as women —and the whole world knows that there was a time when men were much more vain than women dared to be. It was men, you know, not women, who first thought of curling their hair.

In fact, in the Eleventh Century, competitive vanity among men became so pronounced that the church took a hand and condemned curled hair.

Poor Men! Curls Ordered Cut Off

In the Twelfth Century the Norman Bishop of Seez compelled Henry I and his dandified nobles publicly to cut off their curls. And in the Seventeenth Century, the Council of Constantinople censured all men who artificially curled their hair.

She was reading the financial notes in her morning newspaper and consulting, intermittently, a book on astrology.

May Be Moral To This Story

Perhaps it's just as well that we DON'T come into a fortune all of a sudden. Austen Lake tells the true story of a poor cobbler who lived in Budapest and recently won $35,000 in a lottery.

The first thing he did was invite 110 guests to dinner at the most expensive restaurant in town. Enclosed with the invitations, which were printed in gold lettering, each guest also received a theater ticket.

The next act of Stephen Farkas (that was his name) was to buy himself six fur coats, which he wore alternately—even though the weather was warm. He bought a huge wardrobe and changed his suit every few hours. He also carried several gold watches on heavy chains.

Each evening he would go to the theater and afterwards to a small hotel in his native town. There he would amuse himself by burning banknotes in the flame of a candle.

Of course, his money soon disappeared— and now he is penniless, earning his living by begging.

(I imagine that there's some sort of a moral to that story.)

Newly-Discovered Comet Visible Here Monday

By Associated Press

The newly-discovered [illegible] comet probably will be visible to observers with telescopes about August 1, Harvard astronomers said today.

Dr. Fred L. Whipple [illegible] although the comet would [illegible] remain visible [illegible] July in the [illegible] of the [illegible] during the coming few weeks would interfere with amateur observation.

Harvard computations said the comet should be seen at about 8 or 9 p. m. between the North Star or Pole Star, and the horizon during the first days of August.

The comet, discovered nearly two weeks ago by Dr. [illegible], Swiss astronomer, now has developed a tail, Dr. Whipple said, [illegible] a degree in length.

Definite computations [illegible] have not yet become [illegible]. Dr. Whipple said [illegible] that the comet swings about the sun in a great ellipse, probably returning only at intervals of [illegible] years.

On this visit astronomers expect it to approach about half as close to the earth as the sun, probably passing within 50,000,000 miles.

4 Crash Victims' Bodies Arrive Here

The bodies of Edward Wales, his wife Ethel, and their two daughters, Priscilla and Esther Ruth, killed when their car crashed in a ditch in Alberta, Canada, eight days ago, arrived at the family residence in Auburn street, Auburndale, today.

Miss Eleanor Wales, another daughter and only member of the family to escape death in the accident, accompanied the bodies on the sorrowful journey from Alberta to Auburndale.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon in Auburndale Congregational Church, at 2:30.

5-Day Week Aim For State Workers

A five-day week, all year round would be given state employes under provisions of a bill which Representative Joseph L. Murphy will file, he announced today.

Under a bill passed by the last Legislature, state employes work a five-day week during June, July and August. A five and one half day work prevails the rest of the year.

Police Promotions

Before leaving for Paris in September to address the police department of that city, Police Commissioner Joseph F. Timilty will announce his new promotions and transfers, it was learned today. Superintendent Edward W. Fallon will be acting commissioner during Timilty's absence of about a month.

WELLESLEY SPEAKER BLASTS FASCISM

"Fascism is a dam that shuts off all the rich, cultural heritage of the past, and seeks to divert learning into one channel hospitable to its own interests.

[illegible] was stated today by Dr. Leroy E. Bowman, director of the United Parents' Association of New York, at the Summer Institute for Social Progress at Wellesley College.

Outstanding educators and economists and others from all over the country heard Dr. Bowman.

CULTURAL STREAM

"The finest products of the social progress of people—the books, plays, music—are a part of the cultural stream that flows out of the past and pushes on to an undetermined future.

"Fascists cut off the flow from the past. They dam up the stream at some point where they find firm ground on which to build and perpetuate their own citadel of power and prestige."

Democracy is essential to the growth of culture, he declared, and culture is essential to the growth of democracy.

"Italy and Germany have made changes that shocked the disposition of Americans to think, feel and enjoy themselves as they choose," asserted Dr. Bowman.

SAYS CHANGES NEEDED

"There is need of fundamental governmental changes in this country, but they must be brought about in ways, and at a rate, that Americans can understand, without violating the stream of cultural development.

"Not only Fascists, but the doctrinaire advocates of radical measures, forget that in a democracy, change must take place in the tempo of the people."

His discourse today came on the heels of an interpretation of the labor situation by Raoul E. Desvernine, authority on corporation law.

Disregard for the sanctity of law has been shown in the steel strike said Desvernine.

"The issue today is whether or not the objective of an organized group can be achieved by force, violence and lawlessness," he said.

"The righteousness of labor's demands is entirely immaterial in the face of that issue."

Plan Honor Dinner For Elihu Stone

With Zionist aspirations tottering in Palestine, Elihu D. Stone, national Zionist leader and prominent Jewish religious figure in Boston, will leave July 20, to represent the United States at the World Zionist Congress at Zurich, Switzerland in August.

Hundreds of friends and religious colleagues of the Zionist leader will gather to bid him Godspeed at a farewell testimonial dinner Monday night at the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

Founder of the New England Zionist region and now honorary president of the organization, Mr. Stone is being urged by friends to proceed from Switzerland to Palestine to investigate conditions resulting from the partition of the British mandate there.

Arrangements for the testimonial fete are being directed by a committee headed by Ralph Bass, Eldar Markson and Carl Alpert. Several hundred friends and associates from throughout New England are expected to attend.

Cambridge Baby In 3 A. M. Stroll

Three-year-old Bernard Flannery of 95 Second street, Cambridge, apparently seeking a bit of night life woke up at 3 a. m. today, climbed out the window of his home, and started a walk.

The walk took the little child more than a half-mile from his home, to Central Square in Cambridge where he was discovered there by Patrolman Michael Cronin, and returned to his father, John F. Flannery.

Swampscott Man Gets $75 Auto Fine

Robert D. Barry, 24, of Essex street, Swampscott, was fined $75 in Chelsea district court today for driving under the influence of liquor following an accident in which a passenger in his car was seriously injured.

Barry entered a plea of not guilty, was found guilty, and given until July 24 to pay.

Fred Kimball of Lewis place, Lynn, a passenger in the Barry car, had 17 stitches taken in his scalp after Barry's machine allegedly had gone out of control at the Revere-Lynn circle on International highway last night and climbed over a traffic island and crashed down an embankment.

Neither Barry nor a second passenger, Melvin Swerker, of Lawrence street, Malden, was injured.

Marsh Funeral Rites Monday

Funeral services for Mrs. Harriet Truxell Marsh, wife of Dr. Daniel L. Marsh, president of Boston University, who died yesterday of a heart attack in her Marshfield summer home, will be held Monday afternoon at St. Mark's Methodist Episcopal Church, Brookline.

In addition to Dr. Marsh, the deceased leaves four daughters, Mary, Marjorie, Madeline and Harriet Marsh. Mrs. Marsh was born in Greenburg, Pa., and was 54 years of age at her death.

Sugar Output Cut Threatens Jobs Here

Curtailment and immediate reduction [illegible] Boston sugar refineries and [illegible] other cities was seen today [illegible] a statement issued [illegible] States Cane Sugar Refiners Association.

The statement, which [illegible] legislation now pending [illegible], stated that if [illegible] quota system operating for the last three years is made permanent, the refineries will be seriously affected.

Continuing, the statement declared:

"Under the Sugar Act of 1934 quantitative restrictions were also placed upon the quantities of tropically refined sugars permitted entry into the continental market.

"The Secretaries of Agriculture and Interior have strongly recommended to the Congress that existing restrictions on refined sugar from Hawaii and Puerto Rico be removed thus permitting these insular areas to ship their quotas to the continent as refined sugar.

"If these recommendations are enacted into a law by Congress, the Boston refineries and those of other cities will suffer serious curtailment of business with immediate reduction in employment and payrolls."

Dr. W. M. Konikov Dean at Middlesex

Dr. William M. Konikov of Boston was today appointed dean of the School of Medicine at Middlesex University.

He succeeds Dr. Frank L. Whipple, who becomes dean emeritus and vice-president of the university. Dr. Konikov assumes his duties when the fall term opens in September.

The new dean was born in Boston and is a graduate of Harvard College and Boston University Medical School.

Suspend Examiner Of Motor Vehicles

Walter S. O'Brien, supervisor examiner of the commercial vehicle division of the State Public Utilities Commission and former chauffeur of Edmund L. Dolan, was suspended from duty today for 15 days without pay by the utilities commission.

O'Brien's suspension followed a hearing on charges of insubordination and being absent from duty without leave, which were preferred against him by Frank E. Riley, director of the commercial motor vehicle division.

20,000 FLOCK TO 'PINK' DERBY

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS
NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

The Boston Bees are keeping Tex Carleton in the major leagues. The Cubs sidewinder has beaten the local National League entry 26 times against eight defeats. His life time record against the other National League clubs is 44 won and 46 lost. So one can readily see that if it were not for the Boston outfit, Tex probably would be hurling for the Brighton Civics.

AUSTEN LAKE

Charley Grimm Latest Cub Manager to Fall Before Boston's Jinx

AUSTEN LAKE

THE CURLY-HEADED AND LUGUBRIOUS manager of the Chicago Cubs, Charles J. Grimm, lay in his Copley Plaza bed suffering from what he diagnosed as a case of not feeling good.

He had a kink in his spine. The little nest of pelvic muscles at the end of his backbone had snarled, and he said his sciatic nerves were like a pair of sizzling hot wires. He felt roily in the pit of his stomach, and spots like pennies floated before his eyes.

He had arisen early that morning and was tieing his shoes, he said, when something unhooked in his back, and his muscles collapsed like an empty grainsack. So he crawled back into bed, crabfashion, by hoisting himself feet first onto the mattress and shoving the rest of himself aloft with his arms. And he had lain there, one big ache, until Bob Lewis, the club secretary had called around as part of his morning routine.

Though this back ailment was a 12-year-old affliction which had started when Jack Scott, the old Giant pitcher, had run him down in 1925 and he had felt minor twitches and gripes over the years, he thought the final calamity had happened during the Cubs' spring visit to Boston.

He had been hitting fungo flies to his outfield, he said, and had popped a high one over his own head. So he had run out and swung the thin stick as the ball came down, and missed, swiveling his torso around with the force of his swipe and feeling something snap in his brisket.

HE HAD SPENT A DAY IN THE BILLINGS Hospital at Chicago last month, while Dr. Fehemister made an X-ray survey of his jiblets. And though the physician thought he saw something in his liver that looked like old collar buttons and latch keys, his skeleton was perfectly intact and his plumbing was open.

So the doctor had given him a satchel of blue bottles with bitter tasting pills, and some tubes of ointment to grease his fundament, and he said, pretty soon he smelled like a horse clinic and had a constant taste of sileage in his throat.

A dozen physicians had glared at and prodded his nude portions, he said, but nobody knew the exact spot where his kink lay. So he thought he might have to leave the Cubs in this crucial period of the pennant race and lay up in some infirmary, while Gabby Hartnett, the red, raw and garrulous catcher, took over his master minding.

It might mean five weeks or two months, or it might only be a couple of days.

Boston's Hoodoo on Cub Managers

CHARLEY SAYS HE DOESN'T KNOW the nature of his infirmity. But I know and will tell him.

The trouble with Charley is that virulent and pernicious Boston jinx which has operated against every Cub manager since 1930, when Joe McCarthy was fired while slumbering in his Commonwealth Hotel suite.

Later, in the identical spot, President Bill Veeck busted a milk bottle over Rogers Hornsby's skull and handed his job over to Grimm.

In fact, Boston has been poison to Cub managers.

By sheer chance I had a ringside seat at all three of these catastrophies, having rapped on McCarthy's hotel door one early September morning in 1930 and handed him an A.P. teletype flash which read tersely

"Chicago, Sept. 14—Joe McCarthy today was dismissed as manager of the Cubs. His place was given to Rogers Hornsby."

I recall that Joe had stood in an old fashioned nightshirt with gnarled lengths of bare shanks protruding beneath. His hair was touseled, and he had cobwebs of sleep in his eyes, which widened with surprise as he read. And presently he breathed a little curse and mentioned man's inhumanity to man.

* * *

Hornsby a Victim, Too

THEN THERE WAS THAT AUGUST DAY in 1932 when the late Bill Veeck, president of the Cubs, was grumbling in the same Commonwealth suite and said how Rogers Hornsby had been a managerial flop and would have to drain the hemlock cup. And Veeck, who in appearance and speech was a replica of Victor McLaglen, the portrayer of benevolent thug parts for the movies, had given Rogers his notice which was published next day when the Cubs reached Philadelphia.

So, Boston has been the scene of disaster to three Cub managers. And the site of affliction and mishap to more baseball celebrities than any other center in the major leagues.

It was at Fenway Park in 1932 that Babe Ruth did a cartwheel over Charley Berry, the Red Sox catcher, and lay in the clubhouse in an agonized sweat and drinking mugs of neat whiskey to soothe his pain until the ambulance hauled him to the Peter Bent Brigham with a badly bruised femur bone. He always said that this accident, more than any other, had hastened his end.

And it was here in 1931 that Joe Sewell of the Yankees had his iron-man string of 843 consecutive games broken by pneumonia. Johnny Vergez, the Giant third baseman, contracted appendicitis at Braves Field and was lost to the 1933 World Series. Bill Dickey, the Yankee catcher, was sent to St. Elizabeth's with internal ruptures last year after his crash with little Eric McNair. Bruce Campbell, the Cleveland outfielder, contracted spinal meningitis in Boston last summer, and Mickey Cochrane came down with two attacks of hyperthyroidism.

So, the sequence of Boston's baseball calamities has been unmatched by any other major league city and our Jinx is the most malevolent in either league.

Especially the Jinx detests Cub managers.

Have Class To Catch Yanks

By JOE CASHMAN

St. Louis, Mo., July 16—Rogers Hornsby, still delighting in speaking his mind, admonishes the Red Sox not to despair of catching the Yankees, even though our second-placers are now 7½ games back of the roof as a result of having their six-game win streak snapped by the Browns.

The champions, think the "Rajah," are bound to fall into a slump before the campaign is over and the Sox, if they keep bearing down, have a fighting chance of overtaking them.

"I've never seen the team that didn't have one and usually two slumps in a season," observes the Brown "boss."

"The Sox had their's early in the race. The Yanks have escaped, thus far, but it's not in the cards for them to go through without one."

PARK AIDS YANKS

When Hornsby was last in Boston he opined the Sox were a better flag bet than the White Sox, Indians or Tigers. He still feels that way about it.

He thinks the Cronin men should do just what they expect to do the rest of this trip, namely take three out of four in Chicago and Cleveland and two out of three in Detroit.

Such a gait, he predicts, will put them within hailing distance of the roof if the western clubs don't collapse from fright against the Yanks.

"The Yankee Stadium and the Newark farm are McCarthy's strongest assets," Rogers claims.

"Their left handed hitters can duck pitches and pop home runs over that low fence of the short right field stands in New York. Why even the right handers can push drives over that wall.

"With 77 games to play on that trick park, it's little wonder that so many of them hit over 300 and knock in over 100 runs a season.

SOX STRING SNAPPED

"And any time a regular gets hurt, all they need do for a replacement is rush over to Newark where they have a club which could beat most of the second division teams in the majors.

"Take those two advantages from the Yanks and they'd be a good ball club but far from a super one.

"But," said he in conclusion, "if the Sox don't beat them, they'll be champs again."

To Oral Hildebrand, Cleveland cast-off, went the honor of snapping the Sox latest victory string.

He turned in a 5 to 3 decision over Johnny Marcum and Fritz Ostermueller by holding the Fenway flock to eight hits and scoreless except in the third, when among other things Joe Cronin bashed out his 11th homer.

Bees to Entertain X-Nine Members

Secret Agent X-9 Club members will march into National League Park tomorrow afternoon to see the Bees play the Cincinnati Reds as guests of President Bob Quinn.

All members of the junior sleuthing organization, which covers all New England, have been invited to sit in free of charge as the hustling Bees continue their fight to reach the National League's first division.

Only your Secret Agent X-9 badge and membership card are needed for admittance to the park. Be sure to bring them with you.

The Cambridge Post, No. 27, American Legion junior brass band numbering 60 pieces, will furnish entertainment.

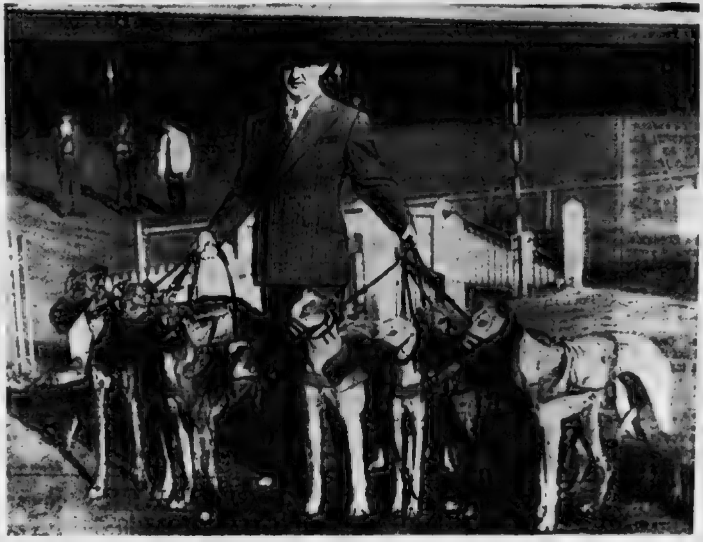
Another feature of this treat for the Boston American Sunday Advertiser Secret Agent X-9 Club will be the taking of group pictures by a cameraman.

Certain club members in the group, picked at random, will be circled when the pictures are printed in Monday's Boston Evening American. Those circled will receive prizes from Secret Agent X-9 himself.



Managing Director Russ Murray, at Wonderland Park, Revere, holds the eight top greyhounds which have been matched in the Night Pink Special eighth race feature at Revere tonight.

Night Pink Final Classic

Extra Favorite in Revere Derby

By SAM COHEN

Eight canine speed kings, the ream of the greyhound racing world, go to the post in the Boston American Night Pink Final Derby at Wonderland Park, Revere, tonight.

This is the season's greyhound classic and it is estimated that at least 20,000 persons will witness the year's biggest feature.

The race is the eighth at Wonderland and will be run over the [illegible] of a mile course [illegible].

EXTRA [illegible] Boston American [illegible] BUTCH'S THUMB is the main threat. INSTALLMENT figures to be [illegible].

Freda Koontz's celebrated veteran Extra, for more than three years one of the country's outstanding racing greyhounds, is likely to be the popular choice, with Deputy Garry and Butch's Thumb also commanding plenty of attention.

Racing secretary Tom Keady, on the other hand, believes this to be an exceptionally well balanced field and expects the finish to be a close and thrilling one.

Outside of Extra and the Dennis Allen entry, Butch's Thumb, the field involves all young racing stars which came here from the Florida tracks early in June with enviable racing reputations. All of the entries are Night Pink Final winners at Wonderland.

A trophy will be awarded the owner of the winning greyhound at the judges' stand by Managing Director Russ Murray of the Bay State Greyhound Association directly after the race.

Harwich at Falmouth Orleans at Bourne

Buzzards Bay, July 16—Cape baseball followers are exhibiting enthusiasm galore these days with the four first teams in the league standing Harwich, Barnstable, Falmouth and Bourne.

The league leading Harwich nine, co-managed by "Fitter" Cahill and Neil Mahoney, has had to fight like wild fire to keep ahead of the next three clubs in the standing.

Bourne, holding down the No. 4 berth in the standing, found little difficulty in upsetting Harwich, 11 to 4, in the Thursday game. The outfit drove out 20 hits and sent two hurlers to the showers in doing the stunt.

Falmouth also made a day of it. Bill Boehner's boys were victorious 13 to 12, in a slugfest with second-place Barnstable.

Harwich's chances of grabbing off the 1937 bunting dropped this week when it was announced that Bill Barrett, former of the Chicago White Sox and Boston Red Sox and the leading [illegible] on the club would be available only for week end games.

While Harwich's lineup was weakened through the loss of Barrett, "Law" Donovan's Bourne nine, winner of the championship last summer, gained strength and color.

Buzz Kendricks and George Sexton, formerly all-scholastic hurlers at Winchester high and Watertown high respectively, enchanced Bourne's chances of taking the loop laurels for the second year running by turning in sparkling performances on the mound.

Sexton won over Falmouth, 7 to 3, last Wednesday, and yesterday Kendricks hurled six hit ball while his mates were pounding out 20 licks in defeating Harwich, 11 to 4.

Bush Fails Against Cubs

MUST GET A-1 HURLING

As their pitchers go, so go the Bees.

[illegible] was never more emphatically demonstrated than in the second game [illegible] Bush was [illegible] hammered so much so that his defenses went [illegible]

When they're getting good hurling the Bees look like a real ball club. They play the field like champions. But behind mediocre pitching they are [illegible]

They looked immense in the second end of Sunday's double-header against the Phillies at the Beehive, [illegible] in their opening game [illegible]

[illegible] Fette was winning a tight pitching duel, a 13 inning affair over Sylvester Johnson, one of the year's best [illegible] was given them something to shoot at.

In the opener with the Cubs, [illegible] were on top of the ball [illegible]

But yesterday was just another day. And [illegible] what [illegible] Much of their chances depend on MacFayden.

Danny will have to be at his best. For the Cubs present a heavy array of batters all the way down the lineup.

HUTCH DOES WELL

They seemed to take particular delight in landing on Bush, the Mississippi Mudcat, the very same fellow who helped them materially to the world championships a matter of years back.

They connected for 13 solid blows off him in the seven innings he lasted. And added another for good measure off Ira Hutchinson, who turned in a good two inning relief job.

Walls, Parry Join Giants' Grid Team

New York, July 16 (INS)—The New York Professional Football Giants today continued to add stalwarts from the southwestern conference to their roster, President Tim Mara announcing the signing of Owen (Ox) Parry, 244-pound Baylor Tackle, and Bill Walls, 205 pound end, from Texas Christian.

Parry, whose home is at Long Beach, Cal., and Walls, resident of Little Rock, Ark., join three recently signed University of Arkansas linemen as representatives of the Southwest with the Giants.

Clarence DeMar's Expenses Probed

Grand Comeback For Grand Girl

Pennsylvania Sisters In Outboard Regatta

N.E.A.A.U. On Trail of Plodder

For allegedly demanding expense money on a sliding scale that violated the amateur code, 49-year-old. Clarence De Mar, typesetter and famous marathoner from Keene, N. H., faces investigation by the New England Association A. A. U.

[illegible] copy of a letter that De Mar [illegible] Washington [illegible] requires some sort of action.

De Mar [illegible]

PROFIT FOR CLARENCE

"De Mar, like any other amateur athlete, is entitled to all his legitimate expenses, no more, no less," said Ferris. "The Washington organization accepted his offer in part. That was a mistake. There is reason to believe that De Mar profited from the arrangement.

"This incident has no direct connection with the recent trouble over expenses to the Pan-American Exposition. The two affairs together show an apparently new state of mind in De Mar, however—a rather peculiar attitude for a fellow who has been top-notch and without any blemish on his record for more than a quarter of a century."

MISSTATEMENT

Ferris [illegible] De Mar was [illegible] Dallas, Tex. [illegible]

"We had ordered delivered to him a full round trip ticket with Pullman all the way from Keene to Dallas," Ferris stated. "He also was to receive full meal money, and he knew it. The trouble is that some athletes want all the money in a lump so that they can travel by bus, skimp and make a profit. We don't condone such practice."

FARR to Train IN JERSEY

New York, July 16 (AP).—Promoter Mike Jacobs today announced [illegible] challenger would train at the Long Branch, N. J., dog track for his heavyweight championship fight next month against Joe Louis. Farr will arrive here on the [illegible] Berengaria next Tuesday.

Louis, who will pitch his camp at Pompton Lakes, N. J., will arrive July 26. Promoter Jacobs also announced ticket prices for the fight would range from $2.50 to a $25 top, including taxes. The seating capacity of Yankee Stadium, scene of the battle, is between 85,000 and 90,000.

Engel Has Option on Chattanooga

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 16 (INS)—Joe Engel, head of the Washington Senators farm system, today held a 30-day option on the Chattanooga Lookouts, of the Southern association, based on a purchase price of $125,000, Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington and Chattanooga baseball clubs, announced today.

The price, Griffith said, covers all physical properties of the club and players who are not optioned to the Senators. He refused to reveal what players would be retained by the Washington club should the sale go through.

Griffith said he and a group of Chattanooga business men met yesterday with Engel, and the group said they wanted to own the club. Griffith said he would continue to operate the club over the option period.

Engel, former president of the club, said he would sell everybody that will buy a donation share in the club. This, he said, will be augmented by funds furnished by business men of Chattanooga.

Engel, who, because of his side attractions at the games, has won the title of the "master showman of the diamond," emphatically declared "I'll have the money ready in 30 days—and don't ever doubt that."

DANNO BARBS STING CASEY

MR. BOSTON

Casey Would Maim Louis—MacLean | Johnson, Langford Superior to Joe

By JACK CONWAY

MR. BOSTON

ALEX MacLEAN, WHO has been managing boxers, wrestlers and bicycle stars for these many years, agrees with my statement that big Steve Casey, the Irish heavyweight wrestler who clashes with Dan O'Mahony at Fenway Park on next Tuesday night, would break Joe Louis in two if locked in a room with the boss of the heavyweight boxers.

"I have seen Casey in training at his camp in Cambridge," said Alex, "and I believe he is unquestionably the most powerful man I have ever seen in action. Casey is six feet one inch tall and weighs 226 pounds.

"For a man his size Steve does not carry too much weight. His weight is packed on tight, while he is exceptionally fast.

"If Casey were to meet Louis in a mixed bout, he would drop in under the 'Brown Bomber's' best Sunday punch, grab his arms and pin him inside of a minute.

"I have managed more boxers than I have wrestlers, and I never believed a first class boxer had much of a chance with a top flight wrestler. The boxer would have to win with the first punch out of the box. Once the wrestler got his hands on him, he would be helpless."

MacLean did a little dodging when I asked him who would win the battle of the Irishmen at Fenway Park on Tuesday night.

"Casey has terrific power," replied MacLean, "but Danno has had more experience in tough matches. Experience often wins in close battles.

O'Mahony is three years younger than Casey and so still is in the full flush of his youth. Danno is 23 years old, while Casey is 26. They are as two fine physical specimens as I have ever seen."

JOHNSON OVER LOUIS

MacLEAN USED to manage [illegible] former heavyweight boxing champion Jack Johnson [illegible] Johnson could have beaten Joe Louis.

"Johnson would have knocked Louis out in three or four rounds," was the quick response. "Johnson was the greatest colored heavyweight I have ever seen box. Sam Langford was the only heavyweight who could give Johnson competition when he was at his fistic peak.

"Johnson was a master boxer. He was particularly effective at counter fighting.

"Louis would never have hit him. The first time Louis made a false move, Johnson would have knocked him out with a right upper cut.

"Langford would also have knocked Louis out quickly. Joe cannot take a heavy punch around the head, and there never was a fighter who hit any harder with a right hand to the jaw than old Sam.

"I can visualize Langford feinting Louis and then making Joe miss with a right hand punch. The 'Tar Baby' would then have stepped in and ended the show with a right to the jaw.

"It was Langford who first figured out the best way to battle a southpaw. He told Joe Woodman that when a southpaw he was battling in the mid-west cut loose with a left hand swing for the jaw he would fire his own right to his rival's jaw. Langford did as he planned, and won by a knockout in the first round.

"Langford, Stanley Ketchell, Jack Johnson and some of the other ring greats of other years could almost call the punch with which they were going to knock out the opposition.

"Once while in England with Al Delmont, Sam was anxious to bet some money on his own chances against an English heavyweight. Delmont didn't have all of the money down as Langford waited for the opening gong.

"Langford told Delmont to give him a signal when the cash was down. Al flashed the signal to Sam in the third round. Langford then stepped in with a right to the jaw, and the bout was over."

LOUIS STILL REQUIRES SCHOOLING

IT TOOK YEARS of training for Johnson and Langford to perfect their boxing styles.

[illegible] Joe Louis still needs [illegible] over three years since he left the ranks of the amateurs. It takes [illegible] when a fighter [illegible] who has exceptional [illegible].

Jack Blackburn has been a patient coach with Louis. At times Jack has become exasperated at Louis when under fire in the ring he has forgotten some of the lessons he was taught him.

This was true in the Braddock bout in Chicago. Blackburn had drilled Louis how to get away from a right hand punch. He had also instructed him how to punch back quickly after his opponent has missed with a right hand.

Louis pulled away from the right hand sock in most instances, but he was usually off balance when he did so and couldn't punch back. Braddock was off balance and extended with his jaw wide open to be hit after missing with his right, but Louis failed to take advantage of these openings.

There will be more boxing essons for Louis before his title bout with Tommy Farr in New York on August 26. Farr is rated as a good boxer and Louis cannot afford to make too many mistakes.

Louis, however, will be in the position of not fearing Farr's punch. The Welshman packs only a fair wallop, and so Louis can parade to close quarters and blast away with both dukes without any great fear that he will run into a knockout smash.

Even at this early date Louis has been installed a heavy favorite for his meeting with Farr.

Casey's Rooters Are Many and Varied

Steve Casey will not be lacking in supporters when he meets Dan O'Mahony in the big outdoor mat show of the year next Tuesday night at Fenway Park. Here's Steve with a bevy of youthful admirers. Steve stands out over them as he does over the heavyweight wrestling field.

NEWSOM Master of GAB

By JOE CASHMAN

St. Louis, Mo., July 16. The public impression that [illegible] always to embarrass players who are fined and suspended without pay for altercations with umpires is a mistaken one.

[illegible]

Mose G[illegible] thinks [illegible] the [illegible] Boston, New York [illegible] [illegible] St. Louis, [illegible] Washington [illegible].

"A pitcher, no matter how young or strong, who isn't accustomed to working in steady intense heat, can't retain his effectiveness for nine innings when the temperature is up around 100," opines Mose, "and a manager who tries to get by with one hurler under such conditions is inviting defeat.

"The smart and safe method is the one Joe Cronin employed in Philadelphia last week, when I went five innings and stepped out with a lead, which Ostermueller protected the rest of the way."

Nobody in major league ranks can hold his own with big Buck Newsom in a bon-mot contest. Several of the Sox tried when Buck' just joined the club but they're all given up in despair.

On a recent bus trip "Doc" Cramer, who is better than the average at jesting, was uttering a few wise cracks about Newsom's batting skill or lack of it when Buck" squelched him as follows:

"I can step up there with a corn cob between my teeth and hit the ball farther than you do swinging that wagon tongue of yours."

Ben Chapman has come closest to stopping "Buck" on the trip.

"That Quinn is the worst umpire in the league," chirped Ben after his banishment in Philly.

"I think he's Ok," said Newsom, winking.

"Well, if you do, he's the only one you think so highly of," replied Blazin' Ben.

Like Caesar's wife, a big league umpire must be careful to remain above suspicion. A St. Louis columnist is complaining because Umpire "Ziggie" Sears has his son working out with the Bees. The scribe thinks there's a danger than when Sears umpires Bees' games he will lean backwards in favor of the McKechniemen.

Philadelphia supports its last place A's much better than St Louis supports its seventh place Browns. More than 18,000 cash customers passed through the turn stiles during the three-day engagement in Quaker Town, even though the Macks were extending a losing streak from 9 to 14 straight game. It will be a miracle if the Browns' books at the close of the season show 10,000 paying patrons to have atended the Sox 11 games here.

Rogers Hornsby opines that Jimmy Foxx is swinging differently this year than in the past but he doesn't pretend to know whether Jimmy's batting slump is due to this new swing.

FISCHER, BROWN JAQUES CUP CHOICE

FOUR-BALL PLAY STARTS TODAY

By BILL GRIMES

There's a record breaking entry of four ball combinations playing in the qualifying round of the 18th Jaques Cup invitation today at The Country Club.

[illegible]

FOUR BALL IN 1925

[illegible] Heath brothers [illegible] and Mel Merrill and [illegible] who [illegible] in 1925.

The Jaques Cup has been [illegible] 1919. For six years it was a [illegible] medal and match play [illegible] Francis Ouimet won [illegible] 1919 and [illegible] and then [illegible] in 1921.

For some reason the Jaques Cup invitation was omitted from The Country Club schedule in 1922 but the following year Frank C. Newton of the home club took the top honors.

Then after A. G. Ulmer, who was at that time the amateur champion of Florida, won in 1924 The Country Club decided to convert the event into a four ball invitation.

FISCHER AT PEAK

Arthur Corwin and F. S. Childs were the first four-ball team to have their names engraved on the famous trophy. Then came Herbert Jaques, Jr. and the late "Bunny" [illegible], Frank Newton and Rodney Brown, Sr., Mel Merritt and Joe Batchelder, Chet Birch and Win Hersey, Clark Hodder and Emory Stratton, Charlie Clare and Frank Ross, Walter A. Carl and Francis Ouimet, Jr., Jesse Guilford and the late R. C. Van Arsdale, Freddie Wright and Bill McPhail, Emery Stratton and Judge Joseph W. Monahan and the Heath brothers.

Although the Heath brothers are the defending champions, Johnny Fischer, the national amateur champion, who is summering at Oyster Harbors, and Rod Brown, Jr., The Country Club, are the favorite combination.

After three weeks of steady play on the Cape, Fischer is at the peak of his game. If he is within strokes of the figures he posted for the sectional qualifying rounds of the United States amateur championship last year he and young Brown will be strokes under par today.

MANY STRONG TEAMS

Rod Brown, Jr., is now a week-end golfer. He is in business over in New Jersey but week-ends at home, where he plays all of his golf. He should be an ideal partner for the steady, low-scoring Fischer, for he's a terrific hitter and a great competitor under pressure.

Besides the Heaths, there are three other brother teams in the field: the famous Martin twins, Leo and Edward "Bud" and Francis Galvin, and Win and Fred Hersey. And also there is one father and son combination, Herbert Jaques and Herbert Jr.

Among the other outstanding teams are Mel Merrill and Joe Batchelder, Clark Hodder and Allan Ellis, Billy McPhail and Johnny Nies, Eddie Lowery and Win Cobb, and Jack McCarthy and Eddie Murphy.

Last year the Hersey brothers tied Clark Hodder and Allan Ellis for the medal with a 68, which nipped the Heaths and Bobby Hood and Don Ritchie by a stroke.

On their way to the title a year ago the Heath brothers went through Joe Batchelder and Julian Hargraves in a 20-hole match, Mel Merritt and Bert Taylor in another 20-hole tilt, Freddie Wright and Joe Monahan Jr., 3 and 2, and then took Clark Hodder and Allan Ellis 3 and 1, in the finals.

CRUSHER Bent on REVENGE

PREDICTS FAST VICTORY

The Irish wrestling feud is at a boiling point.

Steve (Crusher) Casey of Sneen, County Kerry, and Dan O'Mahony of Ballydehob, County Cork, who collide for the Irish heavyweight championship next Tuesday night at Fenway Park, are angrily tossing verbal brickbats at each other.

Danno let out a tirade against the Crusher, denying he had refused to meet the Kerry Countian over in Ireland last summer, and charging that Steve was so little known at the time that no Irish promoter would consider even putting on the match, and declaring he would have taken it because he was looking for easy encounters.

STILL UNDEFEATED

Casey went into a rage at his training camp at Murphy's Field, a toss from Gateway Inn on Fresh Pond Parkway in Cambridge. He mauled his sparring partners Hans Fatze, Swede Nelson and Tom Hanley. He abused his manager Jack Albright.

"That O'Mahony will suffer for what he has said," Casey bellowed, as he was dressing. "Danno says I didn't have any reputation at the time. Well, I had a better reputation in Ireland than he had.

"I had won more than 200 European contests, many of them in Ireland, and never had been beaten. I'm still undefeated, and I'll be undefeated after I meet him Tuesday night.

"Danno simply is sore because I came to this country and became a bigger card than he is and because he was forced into meeting me. He is trying to belittle me with my Kerry supporters.

"Boston's Irish population and other fans will see who is right Tuesday night. I'm going to tear him into a million little pieces and toss them out as souvenirs."

Casey will be back at work this afternoon at his Cambridge camp and maybe he will have a lot more to tell the large crowd which attends the session.

SEEKS SPAR MATES

Danno went through another spirited training session out at the Montrose Dairy in Westboro, 26 miles out on the Worcester turnpike.

His training mates have dwindled to two, and today Manager Jack McGrath has sounded an SOS for more help.

"These boys now working with Danno are taking a lot and need some help," McGrath said. "I want a couple of big fellows who can stand the mauling Danno hands out."

Ed Don George hopes to start another comeback in the semi-final. He meets the very rugged Billy Bartush of Chicago. George is the handsome athlete who gave Casey plenty of trouble for one hour and 28½ minutes at the recent Crosscup-Pishon American Legion show.

George (Dazzler) Clark, whose American record stands out nearly as brightly as does Casey's, opposes Maurice Robert, Champion Yvon's younger brother, in the semi-final, and the titleholder will be here to work in Maurice's corner.

Pick Grant, Budge To Play Singles

London, July 16 (AP)—Captain Walter L. Pate today designated Bryan M. (Bitsy) Grant of Atlanta and Don Budge of Oakland, Cal., to play singles for the United States against Germany in the Davis Cup interzone tennis finals at Wimbledon. Budge will team with Gene Mako of Los Angeles for the doubles play.

The little Atlantan, who has not been playing up to his usual game because of a severe cold since he arrived in England, will open the semifinals when he meets Baron Gottfried von Cramm at 2:30 p. m. (8:30 a. m. E. S. T.) tomorrow.

Budge will play Heinrich Henkel as soon as the first match is out of the way and on Monday Budge and Mako will meet Von Cramm and Henkel in the doubles.

On Tuesday Grant and Henkel will lead off in the first of the two final singles matches. Budge and Von Cramm will ring down the curtain on the interzone final.

The winner in the series will go into the challenge round, meeting Great Britain for possession of the Davis Cup at Wimbledon July 24, 26 and 27.

It had been thought Pate, the nonplaying skipper of the American team, might name Frankie Parker of Milwaukee for the second singles assignment.

Grant played in the North American zone finals against Australia but was taken ill with a severe cold on his arrival in England and [illegible] as well as Parker did at Wimbledon. Parker was eliminated in the semi-finals by Budge who trounced Von Cramm in the finals.

BUDGE TOPS

Budge teamed with Mako to win the doubles and captured the mixed doubles with Alice Marble. He is rated by English experts as the best American since Bill Tilden.

Germany won the European zone finals four matches to one from Czechoslovakia to get into the interzone.

"It was a hard choice between Grant and Parker," Pate said, "but I obviously thought Grant was playing slightly better tennis and deserved it."

He said that the Atlanta star was [illegible] a pound underweight from his recent illness but not enough to affect his play. The captains of both teams expressed satisfaction with the places won in the draw and Pate added confidently:

"I can't see that it makes much difference either way."

The real meaning of the draw is that if the Germans win the doubles Monday, the final result may hinge on the closing battle between the two ranking stars, Budge and Von Cramm.

FRICK Gives Grissom, PHELPS BREAK

New York, July 16 (AP). Ignorance isn't always bliss but sometimes it saves money.

On the theory that Rookie Pitcher Lee Grissom of the Cincinnati Reds doesn't know the correct way to slide home, National League President Ford Frick isn't going to fine him or Catcher Babe Phelps of Brooklyn for their fight in Wednesday's ball game.

In attempting to slide home Grissom jumped, spikes first, toward the plate protected by the bulky Phelps. A fist fight ensued between the Flatbush catcher and Grissom. Umpire George Hagerkurth parted them and banished them from the game.

"I'm satisfied Grissom had no intention of spiking Phelps," said Frick. "He just didn't know how to slide into home. So we're giving both the players a break by forgetting the incident. But next time . . ."

Midnight Party For Sport Scribes

Howard C. Davis of the Old Harbor Kennel Club, which opens its summer meeting at Wonderland Park, Revere, on next Monday night, is going to toss a chowder party to Boston sports writers at the Hotel Lenox at midnight on Saturday.

Davis, a Dartmouth graduate, insists his chowder will go over as big as a winning parlay.

BOSWELL Wins Eclipse STAKES

Sandown, Eng., July 16 (AP)—Boswell, four-year-old owned by William Woodward of New York today won the mile and a quarter of the Eclipse Stakes.

Held at the long odds of 20 to 1 the American-owned colt finished the journey one and a half lengths in front of Sir George Bullough's Daytona to earn the purse of $46,000. The Duke of Marlborough's Monument was another length and a half back for third place in the field of six. Lord Astor's Rhodes Scholar, 1 to 3 favorite, went unplaced.

Meet in Final

Watch Hill, R. I., July 16—Helen Hackney of Agawam Hunt, Providence, and Mrs. H. H. Nielson of Watch Hill meet today in the finals of the Misquamicut Golf Club's invitation tournament.

Nazi Makes Debut In Fenway Ring July 26

Ern Schultze, the Nazi Number, makes his U. S. debut when he meets Tiger Terry Warrington in one of the four 10-round main bouts at the next Goodwin A. C. boxing show at Fenway Park a week from Monday night.

Schultze, imported from Germany by Johnny Buckley and now in his stable, is said to be another Max Schmeling, with everything needed to reach the heights Maxie climbed.

Buckley has plenty of confidence in his new heavyweight, proof of which is given by the fact that he's starting him off against Warrington, a tough customer.

Schultze beat Larry Gains in England just before sailing for the U. S. and has looked very good in gym workouts, showing the same rugged, stalwart characteristics as Herr Maxie.

In other 10-round main bouts Al McCoy, N. E. heavyweight champion, will risk his title against Roxbury Jack McCarthy, Bobby Allen, Nova Scotia, will try to stop the undefeated string of Ralph Zanelli, Providence middleweight star, and Roy Keyes, Brookline, will battle Tuck Maloney, South Boston, ido, and brother of the famous Jim.

Still a Winner

New York, July 16—Long Jim Barnes, who won the first P. G. A. championship in 1916, won the Long Island open here with a 72 hole total of 295. Jimmy Hines, Garden City, finished second with 302.

King Saxon Enters In Coast Race

Del Mar, Cal., July 16 (AP)—Injured at Santa Anita last winter and never expected to come back to the races, King Saxon, king of American milers two years ago, was entered in the Santa Anita $1000 added handicap today.

Others entered in the race included Illeanna, Papenie, Clean Out and Lady Roma.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

A Nationwide Organization Devoted To American Youth in Aviation

By L. F. ROSS
Boston Wing Commander

Once more perseverance and an intelligent method of campaign will probably decide the winners of the present national membership contest for Junior Birdmen which will end on Sunday, July 25.

The two weeks' contest is to reward one boy or girl with a three weeks' vacation cruise and 16 others with transcontinental flights to New York and Hollywood and three day vacations in those cities. The winner of the main prize will be accompanied by a parent or adult friend with all expenses paid.

The contest is simple, easy and interesting. All the contestant needs do is enroll new boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 21 in the Junior Birdmen. A special membership coupon is printed on this page for the convenience of contestants.

This need not be used, however. The contestant, especially if he has two or more applicants to enroll at one time may use a separate sheet of paper to list the names and addresses.

During this week two points will be credited to the contestant for each new member he enrolls. After midnight, Sunday, July 18, and up to midnight, July 25, one point will be credited for each new member.

Contestants should make certain of [illegible]

1—Be sure you give the full name, complete address and the age of each of your new members.

2—Be sure you enclose a ten-cent membership fee for each new member.

3—Be sure you give your own name and address so that membership points can be credited.

Here is the [illegible] of awards for the high point scorers.

First Prize—To the boy or girl in the United States who gathers the greatest number of points, a trip, with one parent, all expenses paid, to New York on a United Air Line mainliner. Then by Panama Pacific steamer California to Havana, through the Panama Canal, up the coast of Mexico to Hollywood. Then back home by United Air liner.

Major Awards—To the boy or girl in every Junior Birdmen wing city who gathers the greatest number of points in his or her wing, a trip to Hollywood or New York city and return on a coast-to-coast United Air Lines mainliner.

Further awards are as follows.

Every member who turns in 100 points or more will receive a complete set of Junior Birdmen handbooks, including the de luxe dictionary, and a Junior Birdmen sweater emblem.

Every member who turns in 75 points or more will receive the first 10 handbooks, including standard dictionary (not de luxe), and a Junior Birdmen sweater emblem.

Every member who turns in 25 points or more will receive the first four handbooks and a Junior Birdmen sweater emblem.

Every member who turns in 10 points or more will receive a standard aviation dictionary and a Junior Birdmen sweater emblem.

Every member turning in five points or more will receive a Junior Birdmen sweater emblem.

Several hundred Junior Birdmen and Birdwomen, suspending their activities in aeronautics for the time being, will rally at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at National League Park to root for Manager McKechnie's Boston Bees as they tangle with the Cincinnati Reds.

The air-minded boys and girls will be guests of President "Bob" Quinn of the Bees. Free admission will be given to all Junior Birdmen who wear their wings.

All must report to the Babcock street entrance.

Wing headquarters will be open at 1 p. m. tomorrow to provide any Junior Birdmen with duplicate wings at a cost of 10 cents each, if the original wing pin has become lost or misplaced.

A Boston Evening American cameraman will be present. If your face is [illegible] in pictures he will take and which will appear later in this newspaper, [illegible] some other prize.

'Saratoga' At Loew's July 23

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Saratoga," halted by the untimely death of Jean Harlow when 95 per cent completed, is now ready for release.

Saratoga opens at Loew's State and Orpheum on Friday, July 23, a complete picture. No scenes have been cut for the sake of continuity and all important sequences had been completed at the time of Miss Harlow's passing.

Contrary to general belief, movie scenes are not made in any definite sequence. It is often the case that late scenes in the picture are shot first, early scenes last. In the case of "Saratoga," it so happened that the final scenes were made when production was about half completed.

In a big [illegible] shot of Miss Harlow's stand-in takes her place, yet when she is whisked in Gable's arms onto the outside terrace the real Jean Harlow is seen. The director's cleverness solved this problem.

DICK POWELL MUSIC RULES AT MET

His ego somewhat subdued (by marriage, or you name it), Warner Brothers' pet crooner, Dick Powell, in his latest starring vehicle, "The Singing Marine," is finding considerable favor with Metropolitan audiences this week. Clyde Lucas and his orchestra head the week's stage show.

Powell, a West Pointer in "Flirtation Walk" and a midshipman in "Shipmates Forever," is discovered as a latherneck in his latest starring production, a well-staged and lilting affair that shifts from the Marine Base in San Diego to New York broadcasting stations and then to Shanghai.

A bashful private from Arkansas, Powell is too girl-shy to admit his interest in pretty Doris Weston, cashier at the Marine Grill. His fellow marines, who find that his guitar-playing and his crooning an invaluable aid to their own romances, persuade him to perform at one of their weiner roasts—and to bring Miss Weston.

The outcome of the meeting of the reluctant marine with the provocative cashier is that they both entrain for New York to try out on a national amateur hour. Strangely, the plucky Miss Weston gets cold feet at the try-out, while the timid Powell makes a stupendous hit.

He is immediately signed up by Aeneas Phinney (Hugh Herbert to you and you and you) and his partner to broadcast at $10,000 a week during his month's furlough. In less time than it takes to write it, he becomes a suave man-about-town, much to the dismay of Miss Weston, who has been signed up as his secretary.

His transformation is anything but pleasing to his fellow-marines, whose $2 a head has sent him to New York and success. Scriptwriter Delmar Daves has also introduced a vamp angle in the person of brunette Marcia Ralston, whose successful wooing of the susceptible Powell has hurt Miss Weston to the quick, whatever it is.

Meanwhile, Crooner Powell and Miss Weston are given ample opportunity to vocalize. Perhaps on the way out of the Met you'll be humming some of these numbers, namely, "Cause My Baby Says it's So," "I Know Now," "You Can't Run Away from Love," "The Song of the Marines" and "Night Over Shanghai."

Miss Weston, who made the Rainbow Room from Major Bowes' amateur hour in a hop, skip and a jump, is a definite asset to "The Singing Marine."

'PHONE Installation RECORD

PREDICTIONS STUDIED

New York, July 16 (AP)—Predictions of a record expansion this year in communications facilities were studied today by analysts seeking clues to duration of the current cycle of rising business.

Wall Street circles contributed an estimate the American Telephone & Telegraph system would install a million telephones or more this year to top existing records.

The banner figure was a net gain of 881,000 stations in 1936. The previous best showing was addition of 821,000 in the 1929 boom year. For the first half of 1937 the company reported an increase of more than half a million stations.

On the basis of experience, analysts were tempted to regard the forecast of a large gain in telephones in the last half of the year as carrying some assurance the general cycle of expansion has yet a considerable distance to run.

The logic of this deduction, they say, lies in the fact this branch of the communications usually has failed to move in precise rhythm with other business trends.

The telephone industry, of course, moves up or down with general business, but in past swings there has been a lag which left the communications sector still showing every sign of peak operations for some little time after the general business curve had turned down.

Business charts of 1929, for instance, showed a number of important industries passed the crest even before the stock market crashed in October, but the peak of telephone development was not reached until May, 1930.

It has also been noted, analysts say, that a similar lag has marked communications development in early stages of recovery from depression.

Freight Car Business May Decline

While large backlog of car manufacturing companies indicates high of activity this month and in August, additional new business will have to develop quickly if a slump is to be avoided beginning in September. Freight car orders in June fell to 528 against 3900 in May and 4320 in June, 1936, Railway Age reported.

Most business on hand was placed in final quarter of 1936 and first quarter of 1937. A large part has been scheduled for delivery in July and August. With the second quarter light, and production expanding, it is likely that, unless sizable new orders appear, unfinished business will be shrinking the next few months.

While Class 1 roads June 1 had 45,176 new freight cars on order, the largest for that date since 1924, on May 1 the number was 46,197, indicating that between those dates production passed incoming orders and reduced the backlog 1021 cars.

Seeks New World Marts to Use Gold Hoard

By ERIC FRIEDHEIM
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, July 16—Faced with its first unfavorable balance of trade in nearly 50 years, the United States is preparing to utilize its huge gold hoardings to develop new world markets for American goods.

With an eye on Latin-American buyers, the administration today joined in a financial and economic pact with Brazil which is designed to stimulate the flow of merchandise to that country.

Drafted after protracted conversations between Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Brazilian Finance Minister Arthur de Souza Costa, the new agreement enables Brazil to purchase $60,000,000 of American gold.

This addition to Brazilian monetary stocks will strengthen that nation's financial structure and help in the establishment of a new central bank.

Under the pact, the United States will also make loans to Brazil for the purpose of building up the latter's dollar balances in the United States.

Although the United States has reciprocal trade agreements with several Latin-American countries including Brazil, American exports to Central and South America are smaller than the imports.

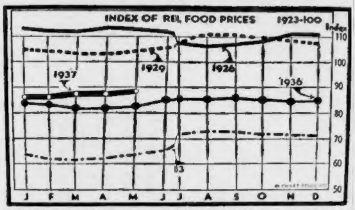
Food Prices Rise



Retail food prices, as measured by the National Industrial Conference Board's index, rose 1.1 per cent from April to May. Food prices are now 8.2 per cent higher than a year ago.

Although retail food prices are now 44.7 per cent higher than in the spring of 1933, they are still 15.5 per cent below the level in May, 1929.

RETAIL ADS

Up 18.7 P.C. in Week

Chicago, July 16—Aided by July 4 sales promotion, retail display advertising for the week ended July 3, 1937, soared to 18.7 per cent above the corresponding week of last year, a gain which has been exceeded only once in any week so far this year, Advertising Age, national advertising newspaper, reported today.

These figures, based on total display advertising placed by retailers in all newspapers in 78 important cities, show a total of 18,540,904 lines for the reported week against 15,619,857 lines for the corresponding week of last year, a gain of 2,921,047 lines.

Contributing somewhat to this unusually large gain is the fact that in the compared week of last year, July 4th fell on Saturday, cutting that week short by one important business day.

In the 27 week period ended July 3, newspapers in the measured cities have carried a total of 536,839,169 lines against 506,289,555 lines in the comparable period of last year, a gain of 30,549,614 lines or 6.0 per cent.

Increases in volume of retail display lineage have been shown in 24 of the first 27 weeks of 1937, the publication stated.

Specialties Hold Spotlight in Quiet Curb

New York, July 16 (AP)—Specialties held the spotlight in quiet Curb market trading today. Utilities were mixed, while oils were neglected.

North American Rayon "A" and "B" shares gained around a point and Quaker Oats and Sherwin Williams climbed more than a point. United Wall Paper and Bell Telephone of Canada scored gains.

American Gas & Electric and American Superpower were fractionally improved, while United Gas and Electric Bond & Share lost a little ground.

Creole Petroleum and Gulf Oil moved up a minor fraction and Pantepec Oil inched lower. Colt's Patent Firearms lost around 2 points and American Cyanamid "B" gained a fraction.

GOVERNMENTS

HIGHER Commission FIGHT

ROUND ONE TO OPPOSERS

By LESLIE GOULD
International News Service Financial Writer

New York, July 16—In Wall Street's current "battle of the century"—the fight over higher commissions on stock purchases and sales—round one has gone to the opposition.

Two years ago a committee of five headed by Edward Allen Pierce, whose wire house is the biggest in the country, was named to study the subjects of commissions.

On July 1, a report recommending higher charges to brokerage customers, particularly the small odd lot buyer, and a new basis of figuring the commissions was sent to the Stock Exchange.

The new basis was to fix the commissions entirely by the dollar value of the securities bought or sold. There was a natural roar of opposition. This should not have surprised the committee and the sponsors of the plan. But it evidently did.

Anyway, to make a long story short, the committee 14 days later sent a new letter to the Stock Exchange. This letter, calling for an amendment to the first proposal, amounted to scrapping virtually the new basis for figuring commissions. It also was a retreat on the matter of having future commission revisions left to the discretion of the governors.

Thus, the opposition to higher commissions has won the first skirmish.

The following table shows how big a change the committee in 14 days made of its program drafted after two years of study. This table compares the present commission rates with those that would have prevailed under the first proposal of the committee and those under the amended plan:

10-share units	Present Rate	First Proposal	Second Proposal
R.K.O. at $8	$2.00	$4.50	$2.[illegible]
Consol. Oil at $15	2.00	6.00	[illegible]
Con. Edison at $[illegible]	2.00	6.[illegible]	[illegible]
Pub. Serv. at $45	2.[illegible]	9.00	[illegible]
Gen. Motors at $50	2.00	[illegible]0.00	[illegible]
Std. of Jersey at $60	2.00	11.[illegible]	[illegible]
Bethlehem at $85	2.00	1[illegible]	[illegible]
U. S. Steel at $100	3.00	15.00	[illegible]
Case at $160	3.00	16.60	[illegible]
Alld. Chem. at $[illegible]	3.00	17.20	8.[illegible]
100-share units
R.K.O.	7.50	12.00	12.00
Consol. Oil	12.[illegible]	14.50	14.[illegible]
Consol. Edison	[illegible]	18.30	14.[illegible]
Public Service	[illegible]	19.00	15.00
Gen. Motors	17.50	20.00	19.[illegible]
Std. of Jersey	17.50	21.60	23.[illegible]
Bethlehem	20.00	22.50	27.00
U. S. Steel	[illegible]	27.00	28.00
Case	25.00	32.00	42.00
Allied Chemical	30.00	37.00	54.00

From the table it can be seen that the first objection to the first schedule—the soaking of the odd lot buyer—has been met.

There still is a big question whether it is wise from a matter of policy to raise commission rates at this time. It may not be putting the cart before the horse. That first the brokerage fraternity should eliminate some of its costly services to customers.

Also it should reduce the number of firms and office partners, for as this column has shown before, these number almost as high as in 1929, when four million share days were the rule rather than the exception.

Boston Exchange Rewards Fifty Years' Service

As a reward for 50 years of continuous service to the Boston Stock Exchange, on July 14, William J. Dwyer of Dorchester, chief reporter, was presented with a check for $500, one month's vacation and an increase in salary.

At the close of business William B. Long, president of the Exchange, in a surprise move summoned Mr. Dwyer to the president's platform. Mr. Long expressed the appreciation of the Exchange of Mr. Dwyer's fine record of service, and presented the check.

During the period of Mr. Dwyer's service he has seen the transition of the Boston Stock Exchange from a purely local institute to New England's only National Securities Exchange.

New Financing Revival Noted

New York, July 16 (AP)—After approximating the low ebb for the year in the previous week, new financing revived moderately this week, augmented by a $45,000,000 offering of American Rolling Mill preferred stock.

The total was $74,948,635 against $14,132,185 the preceding week and $123,355,854 in the comparable week last year, a compilation by Poor's Publishing Co. showed today.

The preponderance of stock offerings was a contrast with the weekly totals the last two years, in which large corporate refunding operations accounted for most of the money.

Asset Value Up

National Bond & Share Corp. reports net asset value on June 30 was $61.12 a share, against $66.1[illegible] a share on March 31 and $57.30 on June 30, 1936.

Statistics On Copper Studied

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

In view of the relatively satisfactory copper statistics for June, the easing of prices on the London Metal Exchange yesterday proved somewhat of a surprise. After a thorough reading of the cables we feel red metal prices slipped because demand slackened, and not because the trade found fault with the actual position of the industry.

Actual June figures showed an increase of only 10,310 tons in world refined copper stocks. Of this amount the small sum of 2435 tons were for domestic account. And it is worth noting here that some conservative members of the trade looked for a jump in refined stocks of 25,000 tons for the domestic market alone. Even more significant is the fact that if the June increase is divided among the eight refineries involved it only shows some 300 tons additional surplus refined for each plant. Further the trade feels the domestic increase can be accounted for partially through internal labor troubles in some shops and because brass fabricators in Connecticut Valley were closed down during the first week of June. When copper statistics are studied from the above angles bearishness on the industry is difficult to embrace while it is possible to envision stable prices in the near future.

The report of member banks in New York City for the week ended July 14 is attracting considerable attention because of the increase in loans to business. That the improvement has been emphatic is testified to by the gain of $37,000,000 in the week and the fact total commercial loans now stand at 1758 million dollars. If these figures are not appreciated the reason most likely is that the movement naturally started from a very low level and comparisons with the past are not particularly impressive. Another sidelight on the loan development reported by the New York banks is that the call for money from business is increasing at a season when the trend is normally downward.

* * *

For the same group of banks and for the same period there was a decline in earnings assets. Loans on securities and investments dipped some $90,000,000. The decline in brokers' loans and other loans for the purchase of securities was the chief contributor with a loss of some $65,000,000. The balance was accounted for by sales of securities as banks continued to lighten their holdings.

* * *

The industrials continue to exhibit a willingness to work higher once they are accorded the least encouragement from rails. Yesterday was an ideal case in point. The heaviness in carrier shares was finally making a mark on the other big division but it only required a brief show of firmness, not strength, to hearten buyers who immediately bought their industrial favorites. The movement could continue until the 182-5 level on the Dow-Jones index is reached. But while the rails may provide temporary stimulus to buying elsewhere it must be noted that until a new recovery peak is reached they are hardly contributing positive bull signals.

* * *

In a broad way most observers are awaiting a buying climax. There are still many would-be longs who failed to pick up stock and each and every one of these small declines that is followed by a recovery serves to heighten their impatience. One of these days caution will be thrown to the four winds and market orders will replace these now limited in price.

Notebook: The market lost little time in hailing the contract I. T. & T's subsidiary obtained from the Soviets . . . It is easily one of the most important ever granted to a telephone equipment agency . . . Granger railroads continue to receive favorable notices from many commentators and if any bracket can pull the section out of the doldrums grangers are the best bets . . . Eastern industrial rails are not receiving the attention of a few months back . . . which is only natural in view of widespread forecasts of a trade let down . . .

STOCKS Meet Mild SELLING

COMMODITIES MIXED

New York, July 16—Stocks met mild selling pressure in today's market and many leaders tipped over fractions to a point or more. The list started upward at the opening but retreated later when Chrysler dropped more than 2 and early strength in U. S. Steel faded. There were a number of gainers in evidence later, however, in dealings that were exceptionally quiet.

Bonds ran counter to stocks, general trends being higher in virtually all divisions. Commodities were mixed.

Among share losers at one time were General Motors, Yellow Truck, Bethlehem, Republic, Goodrich, Goodyear, Montgomery Ward, Oliver Farm, Woolworth, Douglas Aircraft, Loew's, Anaconda, Kennecott, American Smelting, Westinghouse, American Can, General Electric, duPont, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, N. Y. Central, Northern Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Union Carbide, and Dow Chemical.

Resistant were Consolidated Edison, American Telephone, Standard Oil of N. J., Texas Corp., National Lead, Sears Roebuck, Boeing, Youngstown Sheet & Tube and Crucible.

U. S. Steel just about held its own.

CURRENT ITEMS

Recent interest in merchandising issues was reflected in the week-end review of Dun & Bradstreet, which reported a further expansion of retail sales notwithstanding slight unevenness in the rising trends of some branches.

Most leading centers, it was said, stepped up distribution 2 to 5 per cent over the preceding week. Where comparisons with a year ago were less favorable, it was found public spending topped the comparable 1936 period by 10 to 20 per cent. It was also stressed that more headway was made in the acquisition of fall merchandise in the principal wholesale markets.

At the beginning of foreign exchange transactions the French franc was off .01⅛ of a cent at 3.86⅛ cents. Sterling was down 3-16 of a cent at $4.96½.

Carloadings Off in Past Week

Washington, July 16 (INS)—Loading of revenue freight for the week ended July 10 totaled 682,205 cars, a decrease of 23,963 cars below the preceding week and of 42,072 cars below the corresponding week in 1936, the Association of American Railroads announced today.

Authorized to Direct Two Rails

Washington, July 16 (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission authorized Louis M. Atherton, Boston, today to hold the position of director of the Boston and Maine Railroad and director of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad.

The authorization with the latter carrier, the commission said, is effective until the reorganization of the railroad is accomplished.

Refrigerator Household Sales

World sales of household refrigerators during May totaled 333,869 units, valued at $28,239,078, against 320,137 units valued at $25,976,330 in May, 1936, according to the National Electrical Manufacturers' Association.

During the first five months sales totaled 1,444,012 units, valued at $122,774,648, against $1,175,040 units valued at $95,484,966 in the like 1936 period.

BUSINESS Changes for BETTER

LABOR OUTLOOK HOPEFUL

New York, July 16—In its weekly summary of the general business situation, the Standard Statistics Company of New York currently comments as follows:

"Despite the fact that business activity is yielding to adverse seasonal influences, business sentiment has undergone a marked change for the better during the past two weeks. This change reflects the more hopeful labor outlook, strong opposition in the senate to the court packing program, and increasing evidence that the agricultural areas are facing one of the most prosperous periods in history.

"Developments in the court packing program are, of course, attracting the most attention, as the ultimate outcome of this controversy will have far-reaching implications from the standpoint of future legislation and the fate of our present constitutional government. The death of Senator Robinson naturally changes the complexion of the court measure. At this writing, the administration's plans have not been announced and it is not yet known whether the program will be dropped until the next session and Congress adjourn shortly, or whether the administration will go ahead with its original schedule. Chances for enactment of the measure have, of course, been definitely weakened.

* * *

"The fate of all other proposed legislation at the present session of Congress depends largely upon the outcome of the court controversy. If the opposition and the administration maintain a strong front, adjournment of Congress is likely to be postponed until late in the summer, in which event, most, if not all, of the major proposals now on the legislative calendar will probably be dropped until the next session. The future of such measures as the labor standards bill, farm tenancy, crop insurance, ever-normal granary, housing and regional power authority is highly uncertain at this time.

"The labor situation has taken a definite turn for the better, as a result of the apparent shift in the administration's attitude. While there is no assurance that there has been a basic change in the administration's labor policy, the chances appear favorable for a gradual diminution of troubles during the remainder of the summer."

I.T. & T. Subsidiary Financing

New York, July 16 (AP)—International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. announced today that an agreement had been made with Swiss bankers to underwrite $9,150,000 of an issue of approximately $30,000,000 of debentures of an Argentine subsidiary, the United River Plate Telephone Company.

The financing program contemplates that the balance of the $20,000,000 will be subsequently offered for sale and any unsold portion will be retained by International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. In settlement of its receivables from the United River Plate Telephone Company.

The net proceeds from the program will be used by International & Telegraph Corp. to pay off a portion of its bank loans and used or set aside to retire part of its 4½ per cent convertible debentures due January 1, 1939.

Cheered By Plant Visits

By B. C. FORBES

The president of a company employing thousands of men made these statements to me in course of conversation:

"I have been spending a lot of time mingling with our workers. I feel greatly encouraged.

"So far as I could ascertain the majority of them do not want to join any union, to pay any dues to anybody whatsoever. I could uncover no CIO leanings."

He went on:

"My opinion is that the CIO movement has probably reached its apex. When you think of it, efforts to unionize workers have been going on in this country for many years. Yet the fact remains that only a small percentage of all employes have ever chosen to join up. If the majority of workmen had been union-minded, they would have attached themselves to union organizations before now.

"Besides, have not a great many business concerns advanced wages voluntarily during the last two years? And has there not also been voluntary shortening of work hours?

"The logical deduction, as I see it, is that the urge to enroll in unions is likely to subside—at least unless a change is made in the way labor leaders act, unless they and their unions see fit, or are compelled, to give complete accounting for what they do with the enormous funds collected from members."

The next few months are likely to yield decisive developments unionwise—one way or the other.

Some of my friends are buying stocks.

Not all second quarter corporation reports will come up to Wall Street's expectations. Some will. But not a few keen disappointments are foreshadowed. In many instances net profits have not kept pace with gross revenues. Higher wages, shorter hours, taxes, to say nothing of strikes, have all contributed to this result.

A Washington official informs me that it has lately been drummed into them that President Roosevelt is very much in earnest in seeking to cut down spending.

How much salary can a chief executive be worth?

The soundest answer is:

"It all depends on what he can accomplish."

The difference between red ink and black ink, between dividends and no dividends, between success and bankruptcy, nearly always is determined by the character and ability of directing head.

The latest illustration that has come to my attention is Fisk tire. When Colonel Charles E. Speaks took the presidential helm a year ago, it had been for a long time grubbing along on the wrong side of the ledger—it had lost money, too, in the first half of last year.

In the next six months it returned a profit of $243,413, and earned more than $200,000 in the first quarter of this year. Meanwhile, the dealer organization has been doubled. Today 3,000,000 pounds of rubber and 1,500,000 pounds of cotton are needed for its monthly requirements. The company employs upwards of 1000 people in its own mill in New Bedford, Mass., to furnish cotton cord.

That's some managerial transformation!

New York streets are still honeycombed with pickets exhibiting placards announcing that such-and-such concern refuses to employ union workers. They—there are usually only two—march up and down on the sidewalk. This sight is becoming so commonplace that nobody seems even to read the signs. Very rarely does one see a policeman stationed outside picketed places.

The Kendall Company declared regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 per share on cumulative and participating stock, Series A, payable September 1 to stock of record August 10.

TRADE IMPROVES

Fewer Obstructions Are Met

New York, July 16 (AP)—Progress of trade met fewer obstructions this week even though the rising trend was uneven in some branches, Dun & Bradstreet said in its weekly trade review today.

"In spite of the slower rate of advance, most of the leading centers of retail distribution were ahead of the previous week's sales by two to five per cent, with no indications, as yet, of a relaxation in the quest for all types of merchandise.

"Comparisons with a year ago were less favorable in some districts, narrowing the gain in the estimated volume of retail distribution over the corresponding 1936 week to 10 to 20 per cent.

"More headway was made in the acquisition of fall merchandise in the principal wholesale markets this week. Attendance was large and buying heavy at the trade shows devoted to housewares, draperies, curtains and furniture.

"Interest in coats and suits spread from the sports types to expensive dressy models, with no resistance to the price advance, following the wage increase to workers.

"With the gain distributed over almost all divisions, estimated wholesale volume ranged from 15 to 32 per cent larger than in the 1936 week.

"Vacation closings disturbed the rise in some divisions this week, but higher operations in others maintained the average of industrial production close to its best level of the year.

"Producers of motors, mechanical conveyors, brewery equipment, and metal products worked at an accelerated pace, and there was a further expansion at most chemical plants.

NEW AD CHIEF FOR SCHENLEY

WALTER R. GREENLEE

Appointment of Walter R. Greenlee as vice-president in charge of advertising and sales promotion for the Schenley Products Company was announced today by Lewis S. Rosenstiel, chairman of the executive and finance committee of Schenley Distillers Corporation.

After a brilliant career in advertising work in New York, Milwaukee and Chicago, Greenlee joined the Schenley Products Company in December, 1934.

In the three years he has been associated with the company, he has demonstrated outstanding ability in popularizing and providing nation-wide distribution for the products manufactured by the well-known Schenley liquor distillers and distributors.

Look on Bite Side Of Life, Huh?

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Dentists are meeting at Atlantic City and one of them says worry makes your teeth fall out. It will also wrinkle your bridgework.

If that's true there should be a hailstorm of uppers and lowers every day. There's war in Europe, strikes in America and a neat blend of both in Asia.

Once there was a peaceful spot in the world. That was behind a post in a moving picture theater in silent days. But now they've put in sound and spoiled that.

My old man never worried about anything and had just enough teeth to bite a cigar. Which proves that a dentist, like any other good workman, can do his job better than he can tell you about it.

The League Failure

ENGLAND'S rearmament program is a result of British recognition of the COMPLETE FAILURE of the League of Nations, according to Sir Herbert Brown Ames of Canada.

Sir Herbert told the University of Virginia Institute of Public Affairs the failure of the League to protect Ethiopia convinced England that "the League as an effective instrument for the protection of its own members COULD NOT BE RELIED ON."

The League failure was frankly acknowledged by other speakers at the Institute, agreeing that the League in calling off its sanctions against Italy ADMITTED ITS OWN FAILURE.

These admissions are significant, coming from people who STILL THINK the League of Nations has unrevealed virtues. Sir Herbert in fact said:

"Great Britain and the overseas dominions have no intention of abandoning the League. They admit its present inability to defend its members but they believe in the principle of collective security."

He may be right, but the ten billion dollars England is now spending for defense appears to be a better gauge of WHAT ENGLAND THINKS.

THE League of Nations has been a TROUBLE-MAKERS' PARADISE from the beginning, which is just what America EXPECTED IT WOULD BE.

Even now, those who are trying to keep the League going say its most "lamentable weakness" is evidenced by its "inability and unwillingness to take action on the Spanish problem."

The League has always been conducted as an international sewing circle for prying into world troubles, and thus has always been a potential WAR MAKER.

If the League had not FAILED, it would probably have started a World War over Ethiopia, and an earlier one over Manchuria. It could start a World War in Spain by MEDDLING in Spain.

American judgment in rejecting the League AT THE OUTSET has been vindicated by the experience of other nations.

A disturbing fact remains for America in the determination of League advocates to KEEP IT ALIVE.

That means we will be besieged all over again to join the League, and to RISK OUR SECURITY in a system of international intrigue where England now knows it has been PERILOUSLY INSECURE.

We have been WELL OFF out of the League, and we will be better off to STAY PERMANENTLY OUT OF IT.

Guns for Our Navy

THE United States Navy, having failed to induce other nations to limit battleship armaments to 14-inch rifles, will equip two new ships with 16-inch guns.

It would be a good idea to make it a PERMANENT POLICY of the American Navy to equip its fighting ships with the BEST WEAPONS IT CAN FIND.

Certainly, the guns of our Navy should not be outranged by those of ships that may some day be ENEMY ships.

It is all right for the American Government to seek armament limitation agreements with other nations, but never at the cost of WEAKENING OUR DEFENSE.

And that is exactly what we have done in most of our flirtations with the naval limitations idea since the World War.

The American Navy is intended FOR OUR DEFENSE.

To defend us PROPERLY, it must be composed of bigger, faster and more powerful ships than those of any other nation. And POWER on a battleship is measured in TERMS OF ITS GUNS.

The American people, therefore, will be glad to know their latest battleships, the Washington and the North Carolina, will have adequate batteries of 16-inch guns.

To equip them with anything less would be to make them USELESS in any future naval engagements. It would be futile to build BIG battleships, and then handcuff them with weapons impotent against the armaments of their potential enemies.

New Housing Problem

SINCERE advocates of the $6,700,000 Federal low-rent housing project at Old Harbor Village, South Boston, have a new problem on their hands.

The government is now striving to turn the project over to Boston interests on a sell-out basis or a management arrangement.

Serious consideration to the various Federal proposals is being given by the Boston Housing Authority, of which Harold Field Kellogg, a Boston architect, is chairman.

H. A. Gray, director of PWA housing, hits the nail on the head when he says:

"We are of the opinion that the projects should be turned over to local managements as promptly as these authorities are soundly able to assume full responsibility."

The public at large has an interest in this whole project and business leaders believe that the success of the idea lies in local management, providing satisfactory arrangements can be made with Federal authorities. It is up to the nation's housing chiefs to meet the local demands.

Youngest Justice in State

THE distinction of being the youngest justice in the state falls upon Edward Morley, town counsel of Manchester.

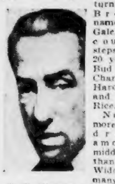
Just 30 years old, Attorney Morley was confirmed by the Governor's Council as a justice of the Gloucester district court. Since 1933 Judge Morley has served his town in various capacities.

With an outstanding record for fairness, many of his friends express the opinion that his career will bear watching.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, July 16—Thoughts while strolling: When the almost giantish Albert Payson Terhune goes swinging by, everybody turns to gawk. Breeziest name: Zona Gale. For a courthouse steps quartet 20 years ago: Bud Kelland, Charlie Falls, Harold Ross and Grant Rice.



O. O. McIntyre

Not many more snappily dressed among the middle aged than Joseph Widener. How many remember frog-in-your-throat tablets? No one would ever recognize the old saloon back room all plushed up as a lounge. The tall, thin feminine stylist Eva Steinmetz. And her roly-poly husband, Otis Ralston.

New York's symbolism in its drug store window decorations: Ear stoppers, black sleep masks and headache powders. Swell autobiographical job: That of Walter Chrysler. And one every boy who doubts American opportunity should carefully read. The Lambs membership mostly radio stars these days.

Louise Ranier is a ringer for Evelyn Thaw 20 years ago. Broadway's most self-effacing biggity: Sid Silverman, son of Sime. And owner of Variety. With all the break-a-leg dancing there are many who still warm to graceful soft shoe stepping such as Eddie Leonard do-si-doing through "Roly-Poly Eyes."

Who remembers when a man could be rich and also respected? Add smooth dance bands: Horace Heidt's. A brave fellow once thought hopelessly crippled in a football smash-up. Why is there usually so much charm among those we know to be utterly worthless?

There are times a columnist feels he might be helping a bit, especially when receiving a letter such as this: "Broke and discouraged in Los Angeles in 1934, I heard of a dinner to be given to the broker Ed Hutton at the California Club and which would be attended by Irvin Cobb, Cecil B. DeMille and O. O. McIntyre. I managed to talk them into letting me exhibit my trained dog, 'Red Rust,' with several other acts scheduled. In your column you mentioned the dinner and praised the dog. That inspired me. I borrowed $20 and with a sack of dog biscuits headed East. The first New York engagement was at the Casino de Paris with Jimmy Durante. From there to Earl Carroll's Sketch Book in Miami, then to the Ambassadeurs in Paris and home to the St. Regis, and last month a private showing to President Roosevelt. As you know, 'Red Rust' is the dog I trained to make himself go so limp he can be thrown around a lady's neck in the manner of a fur piece. A girl did that in one show, a beautiful lass who once modeled for Rolf Armstrong, and I married her during the run of the Carroll show. So thank you very much for taking us from a 50-cents-a-night neighborhood theater act to as high as $1200 a week on the big time.—Robert William and 'Red Rust.'"

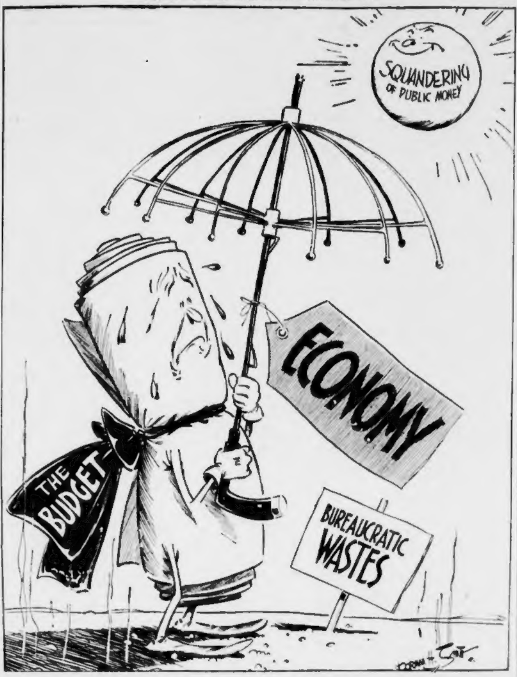
Reverie: How enchanting with the roll of years is that venerable expression: "When evening shadows fall." Twilight was made for oldsters. It was grandma's favorite interlude. Often I noted her quietly rocking as day and night so pleasantly blended. In the sitting room with the old base burner giving off its mellow glow. Always with reluctance she cast off her musings, lighted the evening lamp and returned to reality.

Over on Third avenue the other night, quite late, a roysterer emerged from a beer place, all sheets to the wind and a friend of the world. Crossing the street, he came upon a group of swells who had just stepped from a limousine. They were faultlessly dressed and the convivial stranger weaved up to them and pleaded: "Let's shing' someshin'." One of the ladies, smiling her prettiest, replied: "Surely, what will it be?" And in the middle of the block they joined in a rendition of "By the Old Mill Stream." Such a thing at ten in the morning was unthinkable. Chaplin once built a picture around that idea—the bum and the plutocrat enjoying each other's company when drunk but as far away as the poles when sober. I once fell in with a managing editor on the loose and joined him in a mild toot. We teetered about arm in arm in what seemed to be a perfect camaraderie. The next late morning I peeked into his office and beamed: "Well, how do you feel today?" His look had the chill of ice water. As much as to say: "Last night is out." He never recognized me, save with a curt bow, afterward.

Back country expressions are often amusing to born New Yorkers, who never hear, for instance, the word ornery. Too, there is the out yonder query: "Who beat?" Instead of "Who won the ball game?" And: "John's a great hand for pancakes." Then: "I aim to do that." And I am one of those who "haul off" and hit.

The Empty Umbrella

Copyright, 1937, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.



The Congress of the United States must stop the SQUANDERING of public money by enforcing ECONOMY upon the Bureaus which SPEND money.

Congress has TRIED to balance the Federal budget with HIGHER TAXES.

But the higher taxes go, the deeper the nation GOES INTO DEBT.

President Roosevelt has set an example by ordering Federal Departments to cut 400 million dollars annually from their spending.

Congress must go the rest of the way TOWARD A BALANCED BUDGET by giving the budget the SHELTER OF ECONOMY.

Bureaucrats will always spend ALL THEY GET.

It is up to Congress to see that what is spent is WISELY spent, and solely in the interest of the people.

ONLY ECONOMY will balance the budget. Spending and high taxes merely drive it farther into the wilderness of BUREAUCRATIC WASTE.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Are you a wife? Or planning to become one? Then here are some remarks which you'd better clip from the paper before Dad comes home.

Elsie Robinson

One of America's No. 1 Wives makes them, Mrs. Paul Whiteman, who has been the highly appreciated spouse of the big, beaming Baton Boy for six years. This appreciation—she hastens to assure us—didn't Just Happen. She worked for it—and plenty. Now in the July issue of Good Housekeeping she's passing some of her secrets on, under the title, "How to Be a Swell Wife."

Great stuff! But let me warn you, sisters—If you expect Mistress Whiteman to take down her hair and join you in a Good Hard Cry about those Horrid Men, you're due for a jolt. For here's one wife, at least, who does NOT share the widespread notion that Wives Get the Worst of It. To the contrary, she frankly criticizes their act.

Matrimony, to Mrs. Paul, is a regular profession—and she has scant patience with ladies who pull tantrums, loaf on the job or indulge in orgies of self-pity.

EXCITING GAME

"Wake up!" says she, "You're married now and playing the fastest and most exciting game in the whole world, one that demands everything you've got!"

Next, she proceeds to remind the sisterhood that The Home belongs to the husband as well as to the wife . . . that he has contributed as much, if not more than she, to the venture, and therefore has exactly as much right to express his tastes and indulge his personal habits, including That Terrible Pipe, Those Awful Neckties and Those Simply Impossible Friends.

MUST TEST JOB

Having, by this time, set things sizzling on all the Western Front, Mrs. Whiteman hurls a final blast which is guaranteed to wreck the last shred of wifely complacency.

"Every now and then," says she, "a wife should put herself in the place of a salaried worker and see whether she can hold her job on sheer efficiency, or has to depend on sentiment and sex . . . After such a test, you will generally find that your husband is more than compensating you for whatever you do."

Suppose you used your present technique in an office job?

Suppose you were as careless and cluttery behind a counter as you are in a bungalow . . . were as often tardy . . . wasted as much time daily over the Boss's telephone as you do over your own . . . went into tantrums, sobs or sulks when things displeased you . . . left jobs half finished . . . messed up your orders . . . HOW LONG WOULD YOU LAST?

PERFORMANCE COUNTS

Just long enough to let the door bang behind you!

For, believe it or not, Performance—and nothing else but—determines office tenure. Trick ankles and Come-Hither Eyes may cinch a job in the films. But not in real life. Romantic theories to the contrary, Laboring Ladies have to step lively—OR ELSE!

There's the standard your husband lives by twelve hours each day. There's the sort of performance he sees demonstrated. Then he comes home to YOU, sister. And what?

How does YOUR technique compare with that of the girl he left behind him? How long will it be before he starts making obnoxious comparisons? AND WHOSE FAULT WILL IT BE IF HE CONCLUDES THAT HE HAS BEEN SHORT CHANGED? I wonder!

On the Nail

By Benjamin DeCasseres

Jupiter, the mightiest of the planets of our system was ONLY 384,592,000 miles from the earth yesterday.

"ONLY!"—you exclaim. Yes, ONLY. For those 384,592,000 miles, compared to the infinite space in which we float, is as NOTHING.

Jupiter has a diameter of almost eleven times that of the earth. A year on Jupiter is equal to 4333 of our days—that is, you'd have to keep your winter underwear and heavy overcoat on for about SIX YEARS if you lived on "Big Jupe."

Jupiter shines brilliantly in the south-southeastern sky. Take a look at it.

Nothing cleanses the mind like communion with the stars. Take your BATH OF STARS as often as they are visible.

If there is a policeman present would a person commit a crime? This, according to Walter Lippman in a brilliant analysis of the remarkable case of Robert Irwin, who confesses he committed a triple murder in a New York apartment on Easter Sunday, might be the test of a man's sanity.

If a person should run away without committing a contemplated crime at sight of a policeman, he would not be insane or obeying an "irresistible impulse," for he would know the difference between right and wrong. The policeman typifies not only the social conscience but the criminal's own conscience.

If, on the other hand, the criminal committed the crime in the presence of a policeman, he would naturally be insane.

It is well to note the almost acute sanity and high reasoning powers of those who deliberately plot crimes and afterward make their defense on the grounds of "insanity" or "irresistible impulse."

Mr. Lippman quotes an English judge who asked a lawyer whether his client would have had an "irresistible impulse" to steal an umbrella (for which the defendant was being tried) if a policeman had been present. The lawyer reluctantly admitted his client would not have stolen it.

It seems, then, that most of our "insane" criminals are sane enough to keep away from the police when they are doing their deed and that they also have an "irresistible impulse" to run away from the scene of the crime.

Does meat make heroes? Professor Cathcart, of Glasgow University, says the "lack of the spirit of adventure and initiative today" is due, in part to lack of meat protein.

Into the fray leaps Frank Wyatt, secretary of the London Vegetarian Society, who says the vegetarian has combativeness of mind rather than combativeness of body. He says the Sikhs and the Pathans of India, famous fighters (and thinkers also), do not eat meat.

He might have pointed to George Bernard Shaw, who never has eaten meat, smoked or drunk anything stronger than an ice-cream soda. And certainly Shaw, now in his eighties, can still swing some verbal uppercuts!

Let us then, divide the honors between the meat-eaters and the vegetarians by saying that the meat-eater is brawny and the vegetarian is subtle-minded.

North Pole Adventures

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

This writer will never become ardently fond of the modern breed of Russians—the bird they call a "bolshevik." They are not, in his opinion, very nice people.

Edwin C. Hill

They are, as a whole, under their prevalent red lunacy, rather like bad boys who pull butterflies apart for the fun of it. They are stupid as well as cruel, for they spit on images of Jesus and stable their horses in churches. Worse even, they exhibit Soviet relics and gadgets in churches.

One thinks of them at the moment for two reasons in the current news. One reason is that something very queer is going on behind the scenes—back of all the propaganda—in Russia. There are too many official murders to account for anything less than mutiny and brooding rebellion.

Japan draws back and slaps the great lumbering Bear squarely in the face. He takes it, whimpers and backs off, whining to the other animals of the international zoo that his great aim in life is peace, peace at almost any price.

There's only one answer to that. Nerts!

AFRAID OF WAR

It's perfectly obvious that Stalin and his outfit of tyrants and assassins don't dare to go to war, for war would blow the lid off and blow them to a place which, with all its bad repute, is infinitely more pleasing and cheerful than present-day Russia.

The second reason is the presence at the North Pole of that little group of Russian scientists. One can't help but admire them, despite the poor company they keep back home. There they squat on top an ocean 14,000 feet deep, making observations which, they think will aid in establishing an air transport line between Moscow and San Francisco. They have only one link with the outside world, the radio.

No more desolate, lonely and seemingly precarious place to camp out can be imagined and yet these men will not have difficulty in living there. Other men have lived for months on drifting ice. These men will be in danger if the ice breaks under them, which is improbable, and they will face hazards when they reach the open sea, about September.

SPECTACULAR FEAT

The special interest in the adventure of the Russians lies in the fact that they chose the North Pole as their starting point. The selection of that spot, from which they have already drifted more than 100 miles, captures the imagination of the world. Any intrusion into the silent wastes around the Pole is spectacular.

There is a changing scene which may be fascinating, for seldom is one 20-hour period like another in the Arctic, and the weather shifts with a rapidity which, in itself, is a constant diversion.

• • •

I was talking to Captain Bob Bartlett about them the other day, just before he sailed away from West Brighton, Staten Island, on his eleventh trip to the Arctic.

"A great stunt," said Cap'n Bob, and that about puts the case.

He ought to know. He is one of the great adventurers of modern times. No young fellow with the fire of youth in his veins, mind you, but a tried and true veteran of the silent white north, which proves the worth of a man down to the last ounce. For Captain Bob is mighty close to 60, and though youth's fire may have dwindled some, ambition hasn't, or energy.

USED SMALL VESSEL

He sailed away on a little mite of a fishing schooner, only a hundred feet from tiller to bowsprit, a two-master, painted black, with a broad white stripe, so people will know her when they meet up with her on the high seas. Captain Bartlett goes adventuring again for the American Museum of Natural History and the Smithsonian Institution to observe weather and water conditions.

He will drive the old schooner as far north as the ice will let him, with a Diesel engine to help out when the wind falls slack. His first stop was at Brigus, Newfoundland, where his 85-year-old mother lives, and as usual she said:

"Now, Robert, be careful. Keep your feet dry and warm."

In fact, he took a Jersey cow up to Newfoundland as a present for the old lady, and what good son could do more? With the Cap'n is his brother, Bill, as first mate, along with a paid crew of eight and a bunch of college students who are paying a thousand dollars apiece for a taste of high adventure.

LOVES THE SEA

At 60, or around there, Bob Bartlett is squat and solid, 210 pounds of Newfoundland muscle and brawn, and wise in the ways of the bitter north. He has been going down to sea for more than 40 years. Twelve times he's been shipwrecked and four times crushed in the ice. And in his quaint speech that savors both burr and brogue, he'd tell you:

"I do like the sea as a dog loves its master, in spite of the clouts he gives it."

They go back a long way, the Bartlett breed of Newfoundlanders. They were fishing for cod off the Grand Banks when Thomas Jefferson was President of the United States. Bob was hunting seal when he was 17.

In 1909 he accompanied Commander Robert E. Peary to within a hundred miles of the North Pole. And when the commander picked Matt Henson, a Negro member of the crew to make the final dash with him, it was all right with Cap'n Bartlett. Some of his friends grumbled, but Bob silenced them.

REJECTS WOMEN

"I'm a better sailor than Matt, "but Matt's a better dog-driver. The Commander knows his business."

He's never married, always the hard-boiled bachelor.

"Women," says he, with a twinkle in his blue eye, "sure, and they break the heart of you."

So there he goes, his sails already horizon-down, and good luck go with him, a man of heart and mind, navigating clear and wide of all the meannesses of this troubled world.

That's That

By Bruce Gustin

Instead of ending 15 years of bloodshed, Great Britain's scheme for dividing Palestine, giving one-third of the country to the Jews and two-thirds to the Arabs, is likely to cause more local trouble and international complications, too. Senator Copeland of New York, when it was first reported that a plan for partitioning Palestine had been decided upon, warned such a program would be a violation of the terms of Great Britain's mandate and that "it cannot be lawfully or morally made without the consent of the United States." He pointed out that under a treaty with the United States, Great Britain agreed no change should be made in the terms of the mandate without the assent of the United States.

"The British," Senator Copeland said, "are treating Palestine as if it were English territory. Palestine does NOT belong to the English. The Holy Land is a possession of the civilized world. In this time of distress and disturbance, when Jews are in trouble everywhere, there ought to be one place in the sun where they can go and live in peace and contentment and in physical safety. That was the intent of the supreme council.

"The pledges that were made to the world indicated that Palestine was to be made a home for the Jews. During the war, the now famous Balfour Declaration was made that in the event of a successful war the Jews would be given a National Home in Palestine. The Congress of the United States, by unanimous vote, ratified, confirmed and repeated the Balfour Declaration."

Treaties and agreements between nations are only so many "scraps of paper." Every repudiated war debt payment pledge is a constant reminder of that.

The Mexican government has discovered that as a practical matter there are drawbacks to an arbitrary division of wealth and natural resources. A big sugar plantation and sugar mills owned by a former United States consul were to have been cut up for distribution among peasants and factory workers. But before the expropriation order was put into effect, somebody discovered the division would result in shutting down the mills thereby cutting off the income of more than 20,000 families and stopping the annual production of 30,000 tons of sugar and 75,000 gallons of alcohol.

Dollars and acres of land and livestock may be divided. But it's different with a big industrial plant. Industry is neither self starting nor self operating. It must have management. And that is something which cannot be cut into thousands of parts without any controlling head.
